WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Congratulations, Colonel.
Dollar or Daughter.
Freezing Europe.
The President's Retreat.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

COL. LINDBERGH is to marry Miss Morrow, daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico. No marriage could interest or please the American people more. Many American girls from the Atlantic to the Pacific will now change their plans and select another hero for their dreams.

It is pleasing to know that the chain of Lindbergh's ancestry, stretching back across the ocean to powerful men in the North, is not to be broken.

TRAVELING East from Chicago on the Pennsylvania Limited, you read in Paul Block's Pittsburgh Post-Gazette the heading "DOLLAR OR DAUGHTER."

John Borkoski, who worked in the Pennsylvania mines for thirty years, and was, as his wife said, "always smiling, never hurting anybody," lay dead in an adjoining room, his body kicked and battered, according to charges, by the "coal and iron police."

MRS. BORKOSKI, sad but not hysterical, said, "The coal cops are always on the lookout for a man with a dollar, a pretty wife or a young daughter, some of them as young as twelve and thirteen."

MR. BLOCK'S newspaper tells you that Allegheny legislators, "roused by the savage murder of John Borkoski, slugged and stamped to death by coal and iron police," will try to wipe out the private police system.

IT WOULD seem to be about time. Property must be protected, but what would property say if the miners organized a police force of their own with barracks, repeating rifles, etc.?

The moral is that dollars are well organized and can do what men, badly organized, cannot do.

ARGUING against vivisection, in Albany, Assemblyman Vaughan suggests that murderers, instead of dogs, be used for experiments. He thought that would be better than "putting the murderer in the electric chair." The murderer probably would think not.

NOT long ago murderers and lesser criminals, especially those that had annoyed royalty, were subjected to most horrible tortures without any scientific object, beyond pleasing power, and the mob.

Even witnesses accused of no crime were tortured to make them tell what they knew. When the French Revolution stopped torture of witnesses, respectable judges said justice would be impossible without torture.

DREADFUL cold continues in Europe, temperature seventy-six degrees below zero in Poland. Thirty-four gypsies in camp near Warsaw were found frozen to death. Many children have died of cold in their beds. In Jugoslavia foxes, deer and hares, numbed with cold, were easily caught by hand.

This country should be grateful for its mercies. But even here in the Northwest, as Stefansson tells you, the temperature drops lower than it ever does at the North Pole.

AFTER three more weeks in the White House, President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge will take the train, on the afternoon of March 4th, and move to a small house in Northampton, Mass.

The President could have had four more years in the White House. He had been elected only once, and was entitled to a second election.

He chose to strain a point in the direction of the third term tradition and retires at the height of extraordinary success in public service.

In his own time he will find other important work to do. He might possibly go to the Senate and teach senators to say a good deal in a few words.

ON THE formal announcement of the agreement between the Pope and the Italian government, $9,000 received the Pope's blessing inside St. Peter's and 200,000, gathered in the rain, received the papal benediction from the balcony of St. Peter's.

LATER the King of Italy was enthusiastically applauded as he stood with the queen on the balcony of the Quirinal.

He probably was thinking hard about his latest important decision.

FROM the White House, it was announced on Tuesday that the President "has not made a study of the agreement (between the Pope and the Italian government), but unless the rights of American property owners are affected by the creation of a Papal state it would hardly be necessary to name a diplomatic representative to the Vatican."

That tentative decision may be reversed.

HOOVER and Curtis were not officially elected until the Senate and House yesterday counted the electoral votes. Our forefathers, convinced that the people didn't know enough to elect a president, arranged to choose electors, "superior men," in each state, the electors to select a President.

THAT has been changed, and in November you know for whom you are voting. Conservative higher powers still feel that the people don't know enough to use their own dollars, what to do with money supposed to be theirs. So they have a Federal Reserve Bank to tell the people what to do, and if necessary, choke them with usury until they turn in the desired direction.

GOVERNOR DISMISSES THREE POLICE IN KILLING

FREDERICK A. WOLTMAN

Arrested for attempting to speak at a meeting in Labor Temple, Woltman, graduate assistant instructor in philosophy, University of Pittsburgh, in Center Avenue Police Station today insisted that he be jailed instead of released on his $15 forfeit bond pending settlement of his case. The magistrate refused.

PITT TEACHER INSISTS HE GO TO JAIL

A Pitt teacher and three other militant members of the American Civil Liberties Union, willing and even anxious to be martyrs to the cause of free speech, pleaded in Center Avenue Police Court today for the privilege of going back to a cell.

But Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, who knows and enjoys freedom, denied them the comforts of the hoosegow and insisted that they take their chances in traffic along with the public.

These four, including Frederick Woltman of the University of Pittsburgh, had been arrested at a meeting in Lyceum Temple last night and charged with holding a meeting without a permit. The meeting was called to protest against the sending to jail of three Beaver county orators who took part in a Sacco-Vanzetti meeting and were convicted of sedition.

JAIL PREFERRED

"My clients want to take down their bail and go to jail," Attorney Henry Ellenbogen insisted.

"No!" decided the magistrate, his thoughts no doubt upon the luxurious laziness enjoyed by the inmates of city cells.

Dwight Morrow, Jr., Ill, Leaves College

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Dwight W. Morrow, Jr., son of the United States ambassador to Mexico, and brother of the fiancee of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, suffered a nervous breakdown from overstudy at Amherst College, it was learned today. Young Morrow was taken from college by his father on January 29 and brought to Stockbridge, in the Berkshire Hills, near here. Until February he was a patient at the Austin-F-X-Riggs Foundation Hospital. On that date, it was stated at the hospital, young Morrow was taken by his mother to a private hospital at Beacon, N. Y., although the forwarding address left was the Morrow family home at Englewood, N. J.

'Mayor of Broadway' Dies From Influenza

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Walter J. Kingsley, 47, for many years "Mayor of Broadway," died today in the New York Hospital. He had been ill with influenza and spinal meningitis.

For the past year Kingsley had been advisor to Florenze Ziegfeld, the musical comedy producer. Prior to that he had been for many years the general press representative of the Keith-Albee vaudeville circuit.

Kingsley was probably acquainted personally with more theatrical folk and celebrities than any other man in the country.

GANGSTERS KILL 8 IN CHICAGO

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Two carloads of gangsters, armed with every fiendish device of gang warfare, swooped down upon the stronghold of the North Side liquor gang headed by George (Bugs) Moran here today and perpetrated a wholesale massacre.

They crashed through heavy oaken doors, created an inferno of crashing machine gun bullets and roaring heavy caliber revolvers, herded eight men into an alley, lined them against a brick wall, and as a final gesture, swept them to their deaths as they stood in single file.

All available squads of police were rushed to the scene. The entire neighborhood was thrown into a frenzy.

"FIRING-SQUAD" MURDER

From fragmentary accounts reaching police it was learned the eight were lined up against the walls as if by a Latin-American firing squad, and were riddled with bullets as they stood.

Witnesses told detectives they saw two uniformed policemen and two men in civilian clothing rush out of the warehouse with their

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, present minority leader of the House of Representatives, and former Senator Irvine L. Trials Keeping Woods Run Man Busy

"Harp" McLaughlin, alleged liquor concessionaire of the Woods Run district, was too busy being tried elsewhere today to accommodate the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

McLaughlin, a prominent figure in both the federal and county grand jury probes of vice and graft, was listed for trial by the county today on an illicit liquor charge. He reported to Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park that this was impossible as he faces a similar charge in Federal Court today.

HUSBAND HELD AFTER DEATH OF WIFE

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Feb. 14.—Edward Roberts, 50, who came here from South Bend, Ind., to collect $500 insurance left him by his wife, was under arrest today while authorities sought to determine whether Mrs. Roberts had been poisoned.

Mrs. Roberts was buried Sunday, but her body was exhumed and today contents of her stomach was being examined by Pittsburgh experts.

South Bend police telegraphed Vandergrift authorities to apprehend Roberts and he was arrested at his sister-in-law's home. He told Chief of Police Dwight L. Johnson that his wife had died from eating poisoned food.

Mrs. Roberts, 48, lived in Vandergrift until three years ago, when she married Roberts. Her body was shipped here for burial.

Knapp Free in N. Y. In Bail of $5,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Charles E. Knapp, "satchel man" in the $320,000 Brotherhood Savings and Trust bond swindle at Pittsburgh two years ago, was released from the Tombs yesterday afternoon on $5,000 bail. Knapp goes on trial with three other defendants February 25 on a charge of having conspired to dispose of $1,250,000 stolen government securities in 1925 at Hamilton, Ontario. His bail was reduced from $15,000, set at removal proceedings held in Pittsburgh last week.

ART WORKS RESCUED AT FIRE

More than two score paintings, valued at half a million dollars, were hurriedly removed from the art galleries of Carnegie Institute today as smoke filled the building from flames in a steam pipe shaft.

Firemen from No. 14 Engine Company, Neville street, summoned by telephone, scaled the Institute walls, chopped a hole in the roof and flooded the blazing shaft with water.

ENDANGERED BY WATER

The water flowed through ventilating ducts into Gallery C, on the second floor of the institute, according to Roy B. Ambrose, building manager, and threatened the masterpieces constituting part of the permanent collection.

Custodians hastily took the pictures from their hangings, but not until many had been drenched. These were removed at once from their frames and taken to the basement for drying. Representatives of the art department of the institute said none of the paintings had been damaged.

In nearby galleries were exhibits of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh scheduled to open tomorrow, and Malvina Hoffman's sculptural exhibition.

OILY DUST BLAMED

The fire is believed to have resulted from spontaneous combustion of oil and dust in the shaft, which contains exhaust steam pipes. The shaft extends from basement to roof. It is lined with fire-brick and confined the blaze within the walls of the shaft.

Mr. Ambrose said the principal damage was to the roof and he believed it would not exceed $200.

Among the paintings removed were Charles Cottet's "Pardon of Brittany," a huge oil canvas, valued at $15,000; Henry Tanner's "Christ in the Home of Mary and Martha," valued at $5,000; Ambrose McEvoy's "Vicomtesse Henri de Janze," valued at $10,000, and John Lavery's "The Bridge at Grez," valued at $8,000.

Institute officials said they believed the water that poured into the galleries was from a burst hose which a janitor had taken to the roof before arrival of firemen in an effort to combat the fire, the water flowing through air duct openings.

Fisher Acts

GOV. JOHN S. FISHER

Gov. Fisher, after receiving the report of his special investigators, today revoked the licenses granted by the state to the three coal and iron policemen held here in the slaying of John Borkoski, miner-farmer beaten to death.

SON-IN-LAW NURSES EAR; WOMAN HELD

Charles Graham, Jr., 20, was walking up the steps to his mother-in-law's home, his pretty bride on his arm, and both hopeful that a parental blessing was in the offing for their secret marriage.

And it was because of the foregoing episode that Mrs. S. E. Stuhlfire, of 1731 Bedford avenue, stood before Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood last night and was accused of throwing the jelly glass. The official charge was, of course, assault and battery, and she was held for court in $1,000 bail.

Helen and Charles were married quietly in Greensburg, January 22. Helen's mother knew naught of the ceremony, it appears, and wasn't enlightened until a few days ago—via telephone.

New Mexico Senator Believed Near Death

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—United States Senator C. A. Larrazolo is near death at his home here, according to reports of physicians attending him today. A priest was called to his home to administer the last sacrament.

Senator Larrazolo, because of a general breakdown, was forced to leave the short session of Congress a few weeks ago and return home.

FISHER, DENOUNCING BRUTALITY, URGES END OF SYSTEM

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 14.—Declaring that reports received by him show that John Borkoski had been abused in a most brutal manner, Gov. John S. Fisher announced he has revoked the commissions of Lieut. W. J. Lyster and Pvts. H. P. Watts and Frank Slapikis, the three Pittsburgh Coal Company coal and iron police charged with the murder of the Santiago miner.

At the same time the Governor reiterated his opposition to the mine police system, stating "there should be a thorough revision by the Legislature of the present methods."

"REVOKED BECAUSE OF BRUTALITY"

"The licenses are revoked for two reasons," said the Governor. "First, because the coal and iron police were where they had no business to be in the first place, and, second, because of their brutality."

The commissions were revoked after he had received a report forwarded him by Maj. Lynn Adams, of the state police, and a verbal report given him by J. D. A. Morrow, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Don Rose, general counsel of the corporation.

"There was very little conflict between the two reports," said the Governor. "Both were the same as far as the statement of facts were concerned."

NOW UP TO COURTS

The Governor pointed out that the only thing he legally could do is revoke the commissions of the three men, leaving their punishment to the district attorney and the courts.

The reports were summarized by Fisher in the following manner:

The trouble started in the home of the mother-in-law of the dead man. There had been some drinking and a fight of some kind started. Watts and Slapikis became involved in that fight. One of them was stabbed, the wound being about an inch long and possibly as deep.

In the course of this fight, some of the details of which seem to be hazy, Borkoski was injured in some way.

Later Lieut. Walter J. Lyster arrived and proceeded to abuse Borkoski in the most brutal character. There is no question of that. The man was brutally treated and died as a result of his injuries.

The coal and iron police, the Governor said, claimed Borkoski did the cutting, but Morrow said the dead man was employed by the company, was a good worker with a good reputation and did not drink.

"The whole matter," he said, "emphasizes the faults of the present system of appointing and controlling coal and iron police. The original intent of the law evidently was to compel the companies to bear the expense. The viciousness of the system lies in the surrender by the state into private hands of police powers.

These powers should be jealously guarded by the state and exercised only under its jurisdiction.

The owners of property, particularly large properties are entitled to protection. It is the duty of the state to give it. There ought to be a thorough revision by the Legislature of the present methods looking to a correction of the faults I have pointed out."

FEAR STILLS WITNESSES

Fear of reprisal by coal police silenced those men and women of Santiago, Imperial and Tyre who might add to the grim details that describe how John Borkoski was beaten to death in the Pittsburgh

PASTOR GASSED IN GARAGE, CHURCH MUST PAY WIDOW

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Workmen's Compensation Board, in an opinion written by Paul W. Houck, chairman, today affirmed an award made to the widow of the pastor of a Homer City church, who was asphyxiated while adjusting his automobile to visit a sick parishioner. The claimant in the case was Mrs. Ella R. Headlee.

The minister was overcome by carbon monoxide gas in the church on March 7, 1928. The board ruled that he was killed while in the course of employment in that he had been calling upon the sick parishioner on each Wednesday for several weeks and that this was in line with his regular duties as pastor of the church.

PASTORS TESTIFY BROWN ADMITTED THEFTS

COAL POLICE LICENSES REVOKED

A committee from the Pittsburgh Civil Liberties Union was in conference late today discussing what action their organization would take to protect the interests of Mrs. Borkoski. Realizing that the widow has grounds for a damage suit, the committee members said they hope to keep her out of the hands of persons who perhaps would counsel her wrongly.

The Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day, of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church has visited the widow and talked with her and members of her family. At the meeting this afternoon, Dr. Day was conferring with the Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church; W. E. Chalmers and W. Munn, other members of the committee, about offering free of charge the legal talent of the union to Mrs. Borkoski.

If Mrs. Borkoski institutes a damage suit against the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Clarence Darrow may be brought here to lead the fight, members of the committee declared.

PROBES GO AHEAD

As the widow and four children of the farmer-miner returned from the grave of their murdered husband and father, investigators for the mine workers were striving to obtain from eyewitnesses accounts of the attack charged to coal and iron police that took place in the coal company's barracks early Sunday.

Fagan's investigation is another move toward an investigation of the private police system behind which looms its possible abolishment by legislative action.

"Our men report that everybody is scared to death," the mine workers' chief added. "They're afraid to say anything against the coal and iron police."

George Murren, chief of county detectives, said today that his investigators had uncovered evidence which will be "highly useful" in the prosecution of Lieut. W. J. Lyster and Pvts. H. P. Watts and Frank Slapikas, Pittsburgh Coal Company police, now in jail charged with Borkoski's murder.

Murren had two of his detectives in the mining communities today seeking signed statements from witnesses for presentation at the coroner's inquest.

Chief Deputy Coroner Harry Ewing and District Attorney Gardner today set the inquest for next Tuesday.

The entire state organization of the United Mine Workers is lending strength to the legislative move to abolish the coal and iron police, Fagan promised. The State Federation of Labor has passed a resolution urging such elimination and members of the Legislature have been urged to support such legislation, Fagan declared.

A letter addressed to the legislators by the United Mine Workers charges the coal and iron policemen with "brow-beating, intimidating, coercing and brutalizing the men, women and children in the strike zones."

Of the farmer-miner who was dragged from his mother-in-law's home at Tyre to death in the police barracks, Fagan said:

"There never was a quieter fellow than John Borkoski."

Two resolutions calling for an investigation of the outrage and of the coal and iron police system in general were being drawn for presentation to the Legislature Monday, and a bill providing for abolition of coal and iron police force had been drafted.

The report of Corp. H. C. Johnson, of the State Police, on the tragedy was ready for Gov. John S. Fisher.

Murren late yesterday questioned Dr. H. P. Patterson, physician for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, which employed the accused policemen. Murren expressed the belief that Dr. Patterson would "be a willing and excellent witness for the commonwealth."

He indicated that the physician had thrown additional light on the savage attacks in the police barracks at Imperial, when Borkoski was beaten with a poker, stabbed, kicked and jumped upon.

SQUIRE FACES QUIZ

Murren's plans were to question Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, today on the circumstances surrounding the dispatch of Constable Ross Shafer to take Borkoski and John Higgins, another miner, from the coal and iron police.

Murren wanted more light upon Shafer's reasons for standing by while, it is alleged, Borkoski was beaten to death. He wanted to know why Shafer, a peace officer, thought the killing was "none of his business" and why Shafer had been "sleepy and too tired to interfere."

Murren wanted to know by what right Mrs. Morgan had allowed Corp. R. H. Mechling, of the coal and iron police, to file an information charging dry law violation against Higgins on hearsay evidence, and had held Higgins for court.

Pittsburgh Coal Company officials last night refused to comment on a report that W. C. Warden, chairman of the company's board of directors, was on his way to Pittsburgh to take personal charge of an investigation into Borkoski's death.

C. E. Lesher, vice president of the company, issued a second statement, but it did not amplify his original declaration that the company would investigate the slaying thoroughly, pay Borkoski's funeral expenses, and "provide for the family."

Today's Flagism

The Flag of the United States, flying from the peak of the U. S. S. "Ranger," commanded by John Paul Jones, was first seen and saluted in foreign waters on February 14, 1778. On this date in 1876, Alexander Graham Bell was granted his first patent on the telephone. In 1912 Arizona was admitted to the Union on this day. Progress, both geographically and from an inventive standpoint, is admirably typified by the American Flag and the opportunities it offers and the spirit for which it stands.

PITT TEACHER DEMANDS CELL

want to fight this case. Our constitutional rights have been violated."

But Rothenberg turned a deaf ear. He would, he promised, consult the city's law department to determine whether these defendants had a right to gather in the Lyceum Temple without a permit.

Woltman, graduate assistant in Pitt's department of philosophy, and his three colleagues had spent three hours in jail last night after their arrest and apparently were willing to retire there for the night when friends arrived with $60—a $15 forfeit for each.

CITES CONSTITUTION

Woltman, arch-critic of the state police, was declaiming from the platform of the Lyceum Temple last night, when Lieut. George Hook and an ample squad of police dropped in.

"Congress shall make no law," Woltman's voice rang out, "abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble. . . ."

"Have you got a permit for this meeting?" Lieut. Hook interrupted.

"We don't need one," Pedagogue Woltman replied. "This meeting is free, it's being held on private property, and I have a constitutional right to speak and I'm going to."

"You're under arrest!"

HEARS HARSH WORDS

Hook heard harsh words as he was escorting his prisoners to the comfort of the hoosegow.

"Why don't you arrest the murderers and the bootleggers on the hill?"

Hook returned. He found M. Jenkins, treasurer of the building, orating, the same M. Jenkins, who had asked those pertinent questions. He ordered Jenkins and the listeners from the hall. Following the hearing Woltman explained that he was not a Communist and was only interested in the meeting insofar as it dealt with the right of free speech in which he was much concerned as secretary of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Chancellor John G. Bowman of the University of Pittsburgh said today he was unable to state whether the University would take any action as a result of Woltman's arrest.

"I have not been informed of the matter officially," he said. "I do not know whether anything will be done on Mr. Woltman's case and cannot make any statement at this time."

SCHOOLS FLOCK TO JOIN FLAG CONTEST

It is approximated that from five to ten thousand children between the ages of 14 and 18, are now participating in the Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association, which is being sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph.

Add to this number the thousands upon thousands competing in similar regional contests throughout the country and the tremendous proportions the Flag Contest has already reach I can be easily ascertained.

ALL ENTHUSIASTIC

From the South Greensburg School District, Wilbur Van Bremen, Superintendent Principal, comes this enthusiastic letter to the Flag Editor:

"We desire to become a participant in your nation-wide Flag Contest and sincerely thank you for the invitation. We would like to have all necessary material sent us at once.

The Henry Clay Society, Children of the American Revolution writes:

We should like very much to have our society in your Flag Contest. Have 50 members. Your letter and conditions received today. Think it's fine.

H. O. Crain of the Phillipsburg Public Schools, Phillipsburg, has 261 pupils entered in the Flag Contest.

CONVENT ENTERS

St. Catherine's Convent at Beechview wish the children of the seventh and eighth grades to enter the Flag Contest. St. Mary's High School, Pittsburgh; St. Benedict's Academy, St. Mary's, Penna, and the Academy of the Visitation at Parkersburg, W. Va. also have formed contest units.

The Boy Scout Troop of the Newell Railroad Y. M. C. A., has organized an enthusiastic contest unit to participate in the Regional Contest sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph.

The Monaca High School, at Monaca, has entered the Freshmen Class, according to E. G. Groleau, principal.

H. D. Blank, Principal of the Adams Township High School, at Sidman, has 40 boys and 80 girls in his school anxious to try for the unusual prizes offered Flag Contest Winners.

CATHOLIC HIGH PREPARES

Brother Philip, Principal of the Catholic High School, Pittsburgh plans to have his entire student body participate in the Flag Contest.

He says:

The plan you sponsor of promoting respect for the flag is a good one. Our flag represents law and good citizenship, and these are akin to faith and loyalty to God, the Author of law. All of our 800 students will take part in the plan.

Every school, club or organization can conduct a Flag Contest Unit by writing the contest editor of the Sun-Telegraph. The Flag Contest consists of answering 75 questions on the American Flag and writing a short essay on Old Glory's "Greatest Glory."

Fisher Greets Head Of American Legion

ANNE MORROW LEARNS PRICE OF GLORY

In the light of no more than the reflected glory of her engagement to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, she has received a flood of telegrams and cablegrams of congratulation and felicitation which have nearly overwhelmed her.

As plain Anne Morrow, former Smith College student, and daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, she might attract little more attention on a walk down the street than many another pretty demure girl.

But as financee to Col. Lindbergh, she is very much in the public eye and seems due to remain there for some time to come.

FLOOD OF MESSAGES

Messages received thus far are from friends, former class mates at Smith College, friends of the family, and many from people whose names she has never even heard—friends and well wishers of Col. Lindbergh. The messages are from all parts of the world.

Ambassador Morrow was not spared. Mexican and American friends alike told him how much to be congratulated he was at the prospect of the trans-Atlantic aviator for a son-in-law.

In Mexico the announcement has matched the turbulent political situation in interest. Everywhere there is the presumption that the wedding will take place in this city.

NO DATE SET

Further requests for information from Ambassador Morrow and members of the family as to when and where the ceremony would be held, were met with the reply that there had been no decision and it was intimated that the young couple themselves did not know.

Meanwhile, Mexican Aviation company officials are continuing their efforts to induce the trans-Atlantic aviator to open a new air mail line between New York and Mexico City soon. But if and when a visit by him to Mexico City is in prospect—and everyone believes it is—it is very much a mystery.

CLERIC ASSAILS COAL POLICE

An appeal for united action by all citizens of Pennsylvania for the abolition of the coal and iron police was made today by Dean Percy G. Kammerer in the Lenten services at Trinity Episcopal Cathedral today.

Calling attention to the fact that his words were being broadcast by radio, Dean Kammerer directed his remarks to all the people of the state as well as to the congregation that sat before him.

He declared "something must be done immediately to put a stop to this system," and called upon his hearers to support the plan to put coal and iron police out of service.

"The first step is to arouse public opinion which had been shocked by the many crimes which climaxed in an atrocious murder," he said.

Peter Gusenberg, gangster.

Arthur Hayes, North Side gangster.

Frank Foster, Moran lieutenant.

Frank Gusenberg, brother of Peter.

These killings brought the total of gang slayings here in the past few years to more than 135.

The disorder in the warehouse and the evidence of the manner in which the men had been shot led police to believe the gangsters had crashed through the doors of the warehouse and then had ordered the inmates to line up outside against the brick wall in the alley.

TRAIL OF DEATH

There were creases in the bricks of the wall, indicating how the heavy play of the machine guns had cut through the victims and then into the red brick.

The attack occurred so suddenly that before a police alarm could be given the gangsters escaped.

Strewn among the bodies were the implements of death—machine guns, sawed-off shotguns, revolvers and dynamite bombs, which had not exploded.

WAREHOUSE WRECKED

The interior of the warehouse, used as a liquor headquarters and meeting place of the North Side gang, was wrecked as if a tornado had struck it.

Just who the deadly assassins today were police could only conjecture. Some believed it was the dormant South Side "Scarface Al" Capone gang come to life. Others said the West Side "Mob" had begun to encroach upon Moran's territory.

Veteran policemen who have seen years of such activities, said the havoc of the machine guns today was the worst in the history of Chicago gang warfare.

GANG HEADQUARTERS

It was known as the office of a "cartage company" which detectives said was a "blind" for the gang activities.

Within a few minutes after the roar of the guns, all available police squads had arrived at the scene—in time to act as morticians for the bodies strewn in the scarlet-hued snow of the alley.

"I heard a sudden roar of shots, curses and inhuman screams. I rushed to my window to see a gang of men dash into an automobile. The car shot away. I looked into the alley, just across the street. It was too horrible. I called police but they were already on their way."

"END OF GANGLAND"

"This is the end of gangland in Chicago," Commissioner of Police William F. Russell declared as he looked at the bodies. "It's a war to death now and no quarter given or asked by the police.

"Every policeman in Chicago is going to get his orders. We are going to start one of the greatest fights against crime this or any other city ever has seen. The raids in which 3,000 were taken and put in jail won't be in it with what we will do now."

All victims were well dressed. In the pockets of one the police found $800.

Five men apparently constituted the murderers. They were seen leaving the garage after the shooting, lugging along their weapons without any attempt at concealing them.

Her father heard the screams and tried to beat out the flames which enveloped her body. She died yesterday.

SYMPATHY HERE FOR STEWART

Most stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in Pittsburgh favor Col. Robert W. Stewart, but John D. Rockefeller, Jr., appears to have control of a larger number of shares in the greatest fight ever waged for the control of a single corporation.

This was the summary of the situation made by W. J. Allan who, with C. R. Sammons, has been making a concerted drive to bring the local proxies into Stewart's camp. Mr. Allan is a contractor living in Pittsburgh. His interest in the contest, he says, is purely as a stockholder.

CLEVELAND FOR STEWART

"A similar condition has been found to prevail in practically ever locality which has been canvassed. Even in Cleveland, where the Rockefeller interest was expected to be great, more of the stockholders wanted Mr. Stewart to remain in control," said Mr. Allan.

OUTCOME PROBLEM

"The exact outcome of the contest cannot be known until the stockholders' meeting is held," Mr. Allen continued. "Although the Rockefeller interests have secured proxies for 51 per cent of the stock, many of these stockholders have since revoked their proxies. To do this it is merely necessary for them to make out a new proxy to Col. Stewart. The proxy with the latest date is the effective one."

About 400,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana stock are held by individuals in Pittsburgh. Much of this stock still is in the hands of early investors in the original Standard Oil Company. The holdings in the names of local brokers account for about 50,000 more shares. A total of 1,300 Pittsburghers have an interest in the ownership of the company.

VALENTINE DAY OBSERVED

"Will you be my Valentine?"

Millions of children and incautious adults will put that question to other millions today. Most of them will ask it through the medium of gaily colored squares, oblongs or circles of card board. The squares, oblongs or circles inevitably will bear a red heart, transfixed by the painful dart of love.

Among historians of doubtful status there is a story to the effect that a man once sent a Valentine's greeting without a red heart transfixed by the painful dart of love. None has dared to investigate the matter. The wretch, if he ever existed, has sunk to merited oblivion; and, at any rate the story is probably untrue. Where could he have purchased such a greeting?

Better grounded historians assure us that Valentine's Day, in its popular form, began among the Romans as a lovers' festival. Later, it was widely observed in England, and to a certain extent upon the Continent, too. Mention of it is found in Chaucer's writings of nine centuries ago.

"The custom," says the encyclopedia, "was to place the names of young men and women in a box and draw them out in pairs on St. Valentine's Eve. Those whose names were drawn together had to exchange presents and be each other's Valentines throughout the ensuing year. Later only the men made presents.

Any man knows that part of the custom has stood the test of time.

LINDY ADMITS BETROTHAL

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Col. Charles Lindbergh for the first time today admitted his engagement to Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico.

He indicated that he would have a little "private flying" to do within the next few days and asked that if he were missing a day or even several days that no searching parties be sent out to look for him. He declined to admit that the "private flying" might be a swift trip to Mexico City for a visit with his fiancee.

But he refused absolutely to give his schedule between now and the time, a week hence, when he expects to start plotting air lines between New York and the Pacific Coast.

CHURCH FUND JUGGLING CHARGED

Guy W. Brown, former state senator and elder in the Redstone Presbyterian Church of Fayette County, admitted his deficiencies in large sums as treasurer of the Mission Fund of the Redstone Presbytery and promised to make good every cent, Jresbyterian clergymen representing the presbytery testified today in United States Court.

As vice president and managing head of the Fayette City National Bank, Brown transferred $15,209 through devious bookkeeping channels from the account of the mission to his own account, according to the government charges, and accounting testimony was presented to show the transaction. This sum is part of approximately $130,000 alleged to have been embezzled by Brown and constitutes one of the few remaining counts of the 30 in the indictment upon which the prosecution is presenting evidence before resting.

TELLS OF ADMISSION

The Rev. J. L. Proudfit, head of a special investigating committee for the presbytery, told of summoning Brown to answer for the missing funds. "Brown admitted the deficiencies and promised to repay every cent," he testified. "The supposition was that he took the funds and he did not deny it."

Rev. W. Scott Bowman, secretary and treasurer of the presbytery, declared that the transfer of the mission fund of $15,000 was done by Brown without the knowledge of the presbytery.

Brown admitted the deficiency, although he would not state what it amounted to, and promised to repay it, Rev. Bowman testified.

One of the alleged fictitious notes, alleged by Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh, to have been discounted by Brown in the Fayette City National Bank and signed "A. R. Wilson," was shown to Andrew B. Wilson, of Belle Vernon, testifying for the prosecution.

SIGNATURE DENIED

The witness said he had not signed the note and that the only person of that name he knew was Dr. A. R. Wilson, of Monessen. Previous government testimony was that Dr. Wilson had denied any knowledge of the note.

L. H. Humbert, treasurer of the Citizens Title and Trust Company of Uniontown, testified that collateral worth $10,000 of the Fayette City Water Company, held for a note of $9,000 of the company, was surrendered to Brown several days in advance of the payment of the note.

Brown was a vice president of the Citizens company and a director of the water company, he testified. Alleged further dealings with this collateral, attempted to be placed in evidence by government Counsel Marsh, were ruled out by Judge R. M. Gibson.

The prosecution rested this afternoon and immediately defense counsel asked that 20 of the 30 counts against Brown bed ismissed, contending the government had not proved misapplication of funds. The court denied the motion.

Attorney W. G. Heiner, counsel for Brown, in his address to the jury promised to show that the many notes Brown had discounted were so executed with the consent of the bank directors.

BILL DRAFTED TO RAISE MOTHERS' FUND $750,000

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Acting in behalf of the thousands of widows and orphans in Pennsylvania eligible to receive state aid through the Mothers' Assistance Act, but who are deprived of help on account of lack of funds, the Mothers' Pension League of Allegheny County here yesterday authorized a bill appropriating approximately $750,000 over the amount named in the governor's budget for mothers' assistance.

The bill now being drafted by a special committee of the league, will be presented next week by Senator Frank J. Harris.

The league action followed a meeting of representatives of mothers' assistance trustees from counties in all parts of the state, welfare workers and state officials. Unfavorable economic conditions, increase in population and the influenza epidemic were declared by a score of speakers to be responsible for the growth of demands for assistance from an increasing number of widows.

The amount required to assist the present waiting list of 1,900 widows and 6,000 children was said to be $3,403,257 for the next biennium. Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, secretary of the department of welfare, declared that the question of an increase for pensions depended on obtaining larger revenues for the state.

Attorney Hermann F. Ruoff, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the mothers' pension legislative committee, presided. The committee at work on the Harris bill is composed of Mrs. Marcus Spiro, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Robert M. Murphy, Washington; Mrs. M. B. Tate, Harrisburg; Mrs. E. S. Everhart, Cumberland County; Mrs. John Von Bergen, Scranton; Mrs. Elizabeth E. Lenhardt, Norristown and Mrs. Anna B. Pratt, Philadelphia.

The bill will be reviewed at a state meeting of Mothers' Assistance Fund [illegible] here tomorrow.

X-Ray of Skulls Said to Beat Fingerprints

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—X-rays will be used in the future to identify criminals, instead of fingerprints, Prof. G. L. Clark, of the University of Illinois, told delegates attending the mid-West engineering conference here.

"Radiographs will soon supplant fingerprints for identification, for X-ray photographs of the skull are more individualistic," he explained.

Prof. Clark also told of the X-ray's use for examination of mysterious packages suspected as infernal machines.

7 BANK CRASHES ROCK INDIANA

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—An epidemic of bank crashes which reached a total of seven in the last 24 hours, today rocked Indiana banking circles. Six of the bank suspensions were due to a mad panic that started at Bluffton, in Wells county. The seventh bank closing was blamed on an alleged $100,000 defalcation by a cashier.

With the frenzy spreading from Wells to adjoining counties, every possible effort was made by state banking officials and bankers to allay public fear.

Community mass meetings were being resorted to in some towns to enlist citizens to help their banks weather the crisis.

DRY BUREAU TO ASK ADDITIONAL $2,500,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Treasury has advised the House Appropriations Committee that it could use an additional $2,500,000 this year in the enforcement of prohibition.

The estimate was sent to the committee in response to an inquiry that developed in consideration of the proposal of Senator Harris, of Georgia, to make an additional $24,000,000 available immediately. That phoposal now is awaiting action by the Senate since the refusal of House conferees to accept it.

The Treasury advised the committee that the $2,500,000 could be used to strengthen the prohibition and customs bureaus.

Secretary Mellon said today that the request for the additional appropriation would be transmitted to the House through the budget bureau in the ordinary course of business.

Crowd Startled As Basketball Blows Up

OSHKOSH, Wis., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—If it had happened in Chicago they would have blamed the gangsters, but when the basketball blew up during a game here, the crowd, after the first shock, realized it was from natural causes.

Frank Andresko was poised in approved court fashion under the basket, prepared to receive the ball from a teammate. It came toward him with great speed and exploded just as he was about to make the catch. Andresko was thrown against the wall several feet away, and his jersey was torn.

The referee is still wondering what he would have done if the ball had exploded a second or two later during a toss for basket by Andresko.

APPEAL LIKELY IN EXTORTION CONVICTION

Motion for a new trial probably will be filed before Monday by counsel for Charles W. Collins, investigator for the Children's Service Bureau; Alderman George S. Wilson, of the Eighth Ward, and George P. Andrews, private detective working out of Wilson's office, it was announced today.

All three were found guilty by a jury in Criminal Court late yesterday of six charges of extortion and seven of conspiracy in connection with slot machine racketeering. Wilson was found guilty on an additional charge of malfeasance in office. The court room of Judge J. Frank Graff was crowded to the doors when the verdict was returned.

Wilson and Collins were released under $2,000 bail each, while a standing bond of $1,500 for Andrews was raised to $5,000.

The maximum sentence for each of the defendants under the combined conspiracy and extortion charges would be 32 years and fines aggregating $12,500. Wilson will lose his commission because of the additional charge and also is liable to a penalty.

WORK AND ACHIEVEMENT FORD HAPPINESS FORMULA

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

FORT MEYERS, Fla., Feb. 14.—Henry Ford, one of the world's greatest manufacturers, sat in his laboratory among swaying palm trees on his tropical estate here today and, in an exclusive interview with International News Service, revealed his psychology of life, his formula for success, his ideas on health and diet and his views on the national and international problems of the day.

In his keen, interesting way, Mr. Ford, who is termed the "richest man in the world," disclosed that the business of making money merely for the sake of accumulating wealth does not interest him, he made that clear.

MONEY NOT OBJECT

"I don't care for money," he said. "I never think of it. Money is good only for what it can do. Money is a transmitter, it's like a belt on a piece of machinery. It's needed to operate with."

His formula for success can be summed up in a single word: "work." He believes a good wife an "incalculable" aid to any man, he regards his friend, Thomas A. Edison, the happiest man he knows. He thinks most people have only themselves to blame if they are ill.

He foresees nothing ahead that will interfere with a prosperous Hoover administration. He is of the opinion that prohibition is proving a success in this country and that the world will be dry in a few years because it cannot afford not to be dry.

COUNTRY ALL RIGHT

"What strikes you as the country's most important problem that calls for solution?" he was asked.

"There is nothing wrong with the country," Mr. Ford replied, with characteristic quickness. "We seem to have the proper proportion of everything, there is a chance for everybody to work. That is the main thing. I can see more opportunity to work today than ever before. There are no old people any more. People past 50 are working and pushing on—doing things. You don't find them sitting around the country store chatting as they did years ago, or sitting on the fences whittling. They are busy, and it's a good thing."

"What is your reaction to the heavy speculation by people all over the country in the New York stock market?"

NEVER GAMBLES

"I don't know a thing about it," he answered with charming frankness.

"I never looked at a stock quotation in my life."

"Then you are not of a gambling nature, Mr. Ford?"

"I never gamble," he replied.

"What's the outlook for the automobile business?"

"Very good."

"How about the future of aviation?"

"That is transportation, too," he replied. "Aviation has a splendid future."

COPELAND ASKS 'DOPE' SURVEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Dope is a worse scourge to humanity than the virulent epidemic, Senator Copeland, (Dem.), of New York, has declared.

Senator Copeland, former health commissioner of New York City, yesterday strongly urged adoption of the resolution calling for a joint congressional survey of the traffic in narcotic drugs.

"The people do not realize fully the danger of the drug evil," said Copeland. "I believe the investigation will have great beneficial results."

Further support also was pledged to the resolution.

In a letter to Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, who with Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, is sponsoring the inquiry, Maj. S. W. Brewster, warden of district prisons of New York City, declared the survey would clear up the uncertainty as to actual conditions in the narcotic trade.

"I have made a study of this question for many years, first from a prison angle, where we have a difficult problem; later, into the question of uniform state laws, and I have finally studied the international problem, going to Geneva in October, 1927," Brewster wrote.

"If you have hearings on the resolution, I would be very glad to appear, and I am quite certain that the commissioner of corrections would approve my submitting statistics of the department of correction. I could probably give the committee considerable information on all phases of the problem."

FISHING CLUB CASE TO REACH JURY TODAY

The trial of the Union Fishing Club and 14 individual defendants before Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, charged with conspiring to violate the prohibition law, will reach the jury today.

This morning defense counsel, allowed 75 minutes by Judge Nelson McVicar, began summing up its case to the jury. Government counsel, given an hour, was ready to follow.

Attorney Samuel Rossiter, for the club, said there was no conspiracy case made out and that the prosecution should have been brought for a violation of the prohibition act. He said Frayne, who made the charge of conspiracy, laid the child on the doorstep of the district attorney to prosecute after going to a gentleman's club with an ax to smash things up. Attorneys John N. Piatt, C. B. Prichard and W. W. Stoner also spoke for the defendants.

BIG PARADE STARTS

For more than two hours yesterday there was a steady stream of character witnesses to the stand, who told of good reputations borne by defendants on trial. In the procession were city councilmen, state and city employes, bankers and many prominent business men of the North Side and other parts of the city.

A number of physicians went on the stand in behalf of Dr. F. H. Frederick, a defendant, who is chairman of the board of directors of the club and head of the city Civil Service Commission.

HERRON ON STAND

Councilman John S. Herron testified as to the reputation of William H. Robertson and Joseph P. Hilldorfer, president, and former president, respectively, of the club. Councilman P. J. McArdle testified in behalf of Robertson, who at one time served in Council with him.

Among the 48 character witnesses called were Clifford B. Connelly, librarian at the North Side Carnegie Library; James P. Mulvihill, of Squirrel Hill; Thomas C. McMahon, city assessor; Police Magistrate Edward M. Hough; George Schmidt, cashier of the National Bank of America, and C. W. Gerwig, president of Manchester Savings and Trust Company.

The combatants shook hands and then retired to the nearest cafe to bind their reconciliation with a drink.

Weather Conditions.

There is much cloudy weather over the country this morning, and light snow is falling in the lake region and westward over the northern plains. Low pressure is centered over Manitoba, lowest barometer, 29.78 inches, at Minnedosa, and in the Southwest lowest barometer, 29.80, at Flagstaff.

Relatively high pressure overlies the Atlantic Coast states, and the states south of the Ohio River, with a ridge extending from the Southeast to the far Northwest. There was a change to colder over Indiana, Illinois and southward over Western Tennessee and Arkansas. Elsewhere the temperature changes, generally, were towards warmer.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary at low stages. The upper Monongahela pools are frozen over, and the Allegheny is frozen almost its entire length, except at the riffles. R. A. Fergus, river observer at Franklin, reports the ice from five to eight inches thick over most of the river, and about two inches of snow and ice of high water content on the ground.

Council Approves Asphalt Plant Pay

Council has approved an appropriation of $1,864 to pay employes of the asphalt plant for last November and December.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, was asked to explain why the payroll deficit for last year was not reported in response to councilmanic inquiry when the 1929 budget was being prepared. Lang also was asked why engineers were credited with time during two months that the plant was shut down.

It's "Flu" Weather!

...guard health this way

TO AVOID colds, "flu" and other dangerous winter ills, keep the body clear of intestinal poisons. But instead of nasty oils, harsh cathartics and pills that often upset the stomach and gripe, use safe Ex-Lax.

Children love this laxative. It tastes like candy. It is chocolate treated with tasteless, non-habit-forming phenolphthalein, which relieves constipation, cleanses the system and restores normal elimination.

As your doctor will tell you, Ex-Lax is good for both children and grown-ups. It's "flu" weather now! Keep Ex-Lax always on hand. It will safeguard health if taken at the first warning of trouble. Sold by all druggists. Three sizes, 10c, 25c and 50c.

TROTZKY'S "ST. HELENA" SITE TROUBLES TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A strong guard of Russian troops barred the gateway to the Russian consulate where Leon Trotzky slept last night, a prisoner. Trotzky was brought here yesterday on the steamer Illitch. The choice of his place of exile remains in doubt. The night train left Constantinople for Angora, but watchers found no sign of him among the passengers.

The Soviet consulate, formerly the embassy of czarist Russia, is a huge building of 200 rooms. It was noted in the past for its regal receptions and lavish furnishings. Throughout the day sentries paced in front of the entrance and efforts to approach the prisoner were futile.

The Turkish press has published nothing concerning the arrival of Trotzky. Among various conflicting rumors is one to the effect that he will be kept in Constantinople for several days pending a decision whether to send him to Angora or Broussa. If Angora is chosen as Trotzky's "St. Helena," the hot summers and presence of malaria conceivably might play havoc with his failing health.

There are signs that the situation has given the Turkish government moments of anxiety.

Fund for Sanitary Code Appropriated

Small bequests are made to charities. The will stipulates that George M. Trefall, his business associate, is to have first option in purchasing the testator's interest in the McLaughlin Contracting Company. James Houlahen, former county commissioner, and the Pennsylvania Trust Company are named executors.

THINK of it!.. Hardly seems possible that so much energy could be hidden away in the popular 1lb package of Sunshine Soda Crackers.

But this estimate must be pretty close to fact because it's figured on scientific data compiled by doctors and dieticians.

That's why these delicately browned, oven-crisp crackers should have a prominent place on your table at every meal... And especially when soups, salads and cheese are served.

HIGGINS BREAKS BOOTHS' SALVATION ARMY DYNASTY

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Edward J. Higgins, of England, is the new commanding general of the Salvation Army's world-wide organization, succeeding Gen. Bramwell Booth. The high council's choice of a new general last night followed action earlier when Gen. Booth was adjudicated unfit to continue as head of the army, the vote against Gen. Booth was 52 to 5.

The election of Gen. Higgins, heretofore a commissioner of the army and chief of staff, marks a new phase in the long struggle to release the organization, with its property assets, from control by members of the Booth family.

The council's action puts the next move to Gen. Booth. He has already filed proceedings questioning the legality of the 1904 deed poll under which the council functions.

EMINENT N. Y. PHYSICIAN GIVES VIEWS ON ALCOHOL

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, president of the New York Academy of Medicine, and known in the medical profession as one of the greatest diagnosticians of America, holds pronounced views against prohibition which furnish a valuable guide to entrants in the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest.

The almost overwhelming opinion of scientific men on Prohibition and its evils has often been expressed in no uncertain language, though they are unanimous in advocacy of temperance. Dr. Lambert, eminent in his profession, lately gave expression before his confreres to his views on temperance and the prescribing of wines, ales and other beverages in practice, which the Hearst newspapers are privileged to give more general currency today.

Paying his respects to those immovable fanatics who demand continuance of so-called prohibition, absolute and outright, as a remedy for temperance, though in 10 years, prohibition has increased vastly thee consumption of vicious, green and poisonous substitutes for pure alcoholic beverages and filled hospitals and asylums with their victims, Dr. Lambert says:

"It is impossible to argue on this subject with a reformer who has turned his attention from the control of the alcoholic problem and the saloon o the compelling of total abstinence on everyone, the invalid as well as the drunkard.

"Everyone agrees that the saloon was bad, but nearly everyone is now convinced that the speakeasy is worse. In fact, it is impossible to get upon a common ground for discussion. The reformer thinks only of drunkenness and debauchery, and the physician thinks only in terms of moderation, temperance and medicinal values for the normal person and of inebriety and excess as a pathological condition of mind."

What Alcohol Does

Dr. Lambert goes on to discuss the physiology of alcohol as definitely proved in the laboratory. He calls it a sedative to reflex irritability; a dilator of the peripheral blood vessels, relieving strain on the heart muscle and improving the circulation, though it is not a direct cardiac stimulant. The authority adds:

It is also a depressant to the central nervous system for it permits rest and sleep and relieves thereby the sense of discomfort and restlessness due to disease.

"It stimulates the secretions of the salivary glands and the gastric juice; it improves the action of the stomach and upper intestine, and thereby especially improves digestion.

"Alcohol is food ready for oxidation that requires no further change to be available, although it cannot be stored up in the body for future use as can other foods. Its caloric value as a food is high, yanking bulk for bulk second with fats. One gram of protein or carbohydrate is equivalent to four calories; one gram of alcohol to seven, and a gram of fat is nearly nine calories.

"An ounce of alcohol represents 217 calories and the investigation of Mellanby shows that a healthy person can oxidize under the most favorable conditions of laboratory experiment some four ounces of alcohol a day without causing any symptoms of intoxication. This is equivalent to 868 calories.

"In practice, however, half of this, or about 435 calories, can easily be taken by a healthy man under the ordinary methods of eating. This will supply about one-fifth of the energy necessary to a man weighing 150 pounds.

For Aged and Ill

"In the aged and in sufferers from chronic diseases, alcohol is an appetizer and helps to digest other foods. In severe cases of those in the last stages of cancer, and in the cachexias of other chronic ailments which present in an exaggerated degree the condition of pathological physiology characteristic of old age, alcohol is often the only food which the diseased stomach can retain and absorb.

"Alcohol in the form of malted liquors such as beer and stout is a stimulating tonic and frequently is the least harmful of all soporifics for the neurasthenic and nervous patient.

"Fermented liquors form most useful tonic and food in convalescence from prolonged infections and from severe surgical procedures.

"Alcohol by its rapid absorption without the necessity of previous digestion, by its action to increase the amount of blood circulating in the capillaries of the skin which have been dilated by its use, gives a feeling of distinct warmth and comfort to the aged. It reduces the tendency to brood over the inevitable accumulation of years beyond three score and ten. The individual feels less despondent and is able to endure the lessened activities of this mind and the insertion of his aging tissues with a greater equanimity.

"Wines are never wasted upon the rabbits and guinea pigs of the laboratory, and the action of wines and beers and also of well-aged liquors are something more than mere diluted alcohol.

"The wines in particular contain other derivatives from the result of fermentation which can neither be quantitatively analyzed nor duplicated in synthetic manufacture.

Wine as Food

"Alcohol and water is a disagreeable drink in any dilution. Whisky or brandy mixed with water is quite the reverse to most palates, and the wines are the most agreeable of all. The action of a well-flavored wine which may contain anywhere from eight to fifteen per cent of alcohol, is felt by one partaking of it as soon as the beverage is taken into the mouth. Its agreeable aromas stimulate appetite and increase the secretion of the salivary glands. Its action on the stomach is similar.

"It causes an increased flow of blood to the stomach wall and increased secretion of gastric juice, and does so to some degree whether the previous secretion from the stomach was normal or lacking in the digestive ferment and a normal amount of hydrochloric acid.

"The taking of wine with a meal increases the desire for food and improves the nutrition. The wine itself requires no further digestion and is almost the only food product which will be absorbed from the stomach itself without further preparation or delay in its reaching the capillaries of the tissues."

Dr. Lambert finally declared to his fellow members of the Academy of Medicine, which has taken a strong stand in the matter of the rights of physicians to prescribe wines, beers and liquors in the amounts they deem requisite:

"I hasten to deny that I am advocating drunkenness for anyone, although I may be accused of it. The claim that alcohol is toxic in all doses is put forward as a strong plea for the intemperance of teetotal abstinence. This is absurd, for the normal brain gives a reaction in persons who have taken no alcohol exactly the same as the brains of the man dead of acute alcoholism."

A reader of the views expressed by eminent men on the Hearst temperance prize contest, in which thousands of entries have been received, writes in to quote from Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe."

"'Know, foolish Saracen,' replied the Christian without hesitation, 'that thou blasphemest the gifts of God, even with the blasphemy of thy father, Ishmael. The juice of the grape is given to him that will use it wisely, as that which cheers the heart of man after toil, refreshes him in sickness and comforts him in sorrow.

"'He who so enjoyeth it may thank God for his wine-cup as for his daily bread; and he who abuseth the gift of Heaven is not a greater fool in his intoxication than thou in thine abstinence.'"

Subjoined are further interviews by Hearst newspaper correspondents with persons of note in relation to the prize contest:

Oscar W. Stoehr

"I think that Mr. Hearst's offer is a great thing for the nation. Any movement to shed light upon the enforcement of the prohibition law or to reveal that it has not been enforced or cannot be enforced, is an excellent thing."

Dr. H. T. Moore

Dr. H. T. Moore, president of Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill.:

"I approve most heartily of Mr. Hearst's plan to advance ideas for real temperance. I am not in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, but we all realize that temperance is the ultimate issue. The prohibition amendment and temperance should and could work together.

"That men of Mr. Hearst's caliber are interested in temperance is encouraging. His $25,000 prize offer should be helpful and educational. Time will show whether prohibition means an increase in temperance or whether countries like England and Scotland where liquor is openly sold are more temperate than the United States."

Prohibition Farce, Says Reserve Bank Member

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—Prohibition, as constituted under present dry laws, is farcical; a change is needed and almost any change would bring improvement.

Commenting on William Randolph Hearst's offer of $25,000 for a practical temperance plan, George Rossa James, member of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, made this declaration. James is in San Francisco on his annual tour of Federal Reserve banks.

After expressing an opinion that prohibition laws are unsound, he swung into a discussion of national business conditions. These he finds good, but deprecates the tendency toward general speculation. "Everybody in America," he said, "is trying to get rich, too."

$200,000 BLAZE IN OIL CITY

OIL CITY, Pa., Feb. 14.—Fire swept through the main business district of Oil City last night, virtually destroyed three buildings and caused damage totaling $200,000.

The Knights of Pythias Hall and seven business establishments were swept by the flames.

All of Oil City's fire-fighting apparatus was rushed to the scene. For a time the flames threatened to spread and wipe out the entire business district.

The blaze started at the time theaters were closing and several thousand persons gathered in the streets as spectators. Street car and auto traffic was tied up.

Among the establishments damaged were those of J. C. Penney Company, Newark shoe store, Melody music store, Samielson company and Crawford undertaking establishment. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

$85,000 BLAZE AT BROWNSVILLE

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 14.—Fire, breaking out in the business district early today, caused damage estimated at $85,000. The confectionery store owned by George Laskey and the poolroom owned by John Casper were destroyed.

Fire departments of three boroughs, Brownsville, South Brownsville and West Brownsville, fought the blaze, but it was not under control for several hours.

Britons May Hold Election Late in May

LONDON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Speculation is increasing as to the date of the coming general election. There is considerable support for the belief that the poll will be held in the last week of May. It may be possible to hold the election in the third week of May. Opposition parties are working on the basis that the government will select that period.

$20,000 to Be Spent For Survey of Mains

Council has appropriated $20,000 and authorized the Water Bureau to make a pitometer survey of feeder mains to correct any existing leaks.

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

MUSIC — TRISTAN AND ISOLDE — SYRIA MOSQUE

Sketches by Margaret Louise Pershing.

Dr. Rabl, Conductor — Miss Lippe as Isolde — Joern as Tristan

THE CAST.

Tristan	Karl Joern
King Marke	Albert Marwick
Kurwenal	Werner Kius
Melot	Franz Egenieff
Isolde	Juliette Lippe
Brangaene	Sonia Sharnova
Shepherd	Waldemar Henke

The German Grand Opera Company again distinguished itself in Syria Mosque with a performance of Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde." The score, unequalled in all music for its sensual beauty, grows more eloquent with each hearing, and, when given in its entirety, is hardly surpassed in artistic unity.

Each role in the opera is associated with the greatest singers of all times. Every interpretation differs, many have been superlative, and last night there were moments of exceedingly fine opera. To sing the role of the Irish princess is the ambition of every soprano; it spells the climax of her career. If she can uphold the first act, survive the tremendous difficulties of the second, and sing the "Liebestod" acceptably after hours on the stage, she is a distinguished singer. Juliette Lippe's "Isolde" was a great performance. Her majestic bearing, thoughtful stage business, above all, her excellent singing won for her the laurels of the evening.

In her earlier appearance as "Sieglinde," she gave only a suspicion of her possibilities in the high dramatic part. Her plastic body was at all times in the picture. The richly developed lower and middle registers of her voice again stood her in good stead, especially in the earlier lines, which were marked by most musical nuances. More rehearsal, one might believe, could support the duet in the garden. But the finale was as lovely a bit of sustained singing as one could demand.

Karl Joern's "Tristan" hardly came up to the mark. Not often did his voice become musical, nor his declamation easy. Franz Egenieff made the small part of "Melot" stand in relief. Kurwenal is a very grateful role, and Werner Kius should not stifle his good baritone to make it dull. Albert Marwick's "King Mark" lost some of its best lines in cutting.

Sonia Sharnova's "Brangaene" was another most sincere reading of splendid phrases. Her "Warning" was sung with full rich mezzo voice, as satisfactory a fragment as heard during the opera. There is a touch of wildness in this slave which the singer did not lose.

Dr. Walter Rabl conducted with a sure hand. His tempo dragged early in the prelude. Finer soloists in the woodwinds might have lent him a good hand just in the beginning, but his orchestra was soon in good swing and again respected the singers' voices.

As to stage management, the combats are always stupidly portrayed, and last night's were no exception. Scenically, the ship scene was best; the others had to accommodate themselves to the shallowness of the Mosque stage. We are to have more of this same company next season, and may predict its success, knowing what good ensemble it has acquired in the few weeks of its existence.

"I light up a Lucky whenever I am tempted to eat between meals"
Herbert Bayard Swope

Internationally known journalist, former Executive Editor, N. Y. Morning World

"The activities of a newspaper demand good physical condition. I find Lucky Strike an immeasurable aid in helping me keep trim and fit. Whenever I am tempted to eat between meals, I light up a Lucky. Toasting makes Lucky Strike the cigarette of joy and benefit."
HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

TREASURY SEES HARM IN LOAN LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Legislation which might be passed by Congress would not curb speculation in the opinion of high Treasury officials, it was learned today.

Speculation is largely for some constructive purpose and in interest of promotion of industry. In the opinion of these officials any legislation which might be passed to curb the marginal speculation would be disastrous to business as a whole.

Such measures as have been proposed to curb activities on the exchanges would interfere with the establishment of values and would be more harmful to the producers of these commodities than it would be to the speculators.

Speculation has caused some withdrawals from the banks in savings accounts and others but has been used mostly, statistics show, for outright purchases and not for marginal speculation.

It also was pointed out that Federal Reserve Board cannot control call money as this money is not being loaned by the banks but is being furnished by large corporations and individuals who are desirous of taking advantage of the high rates.

It was emphasized that present speculative market is an actual result of increase in values of various securities over a period of years. The rise in these securities has created a demand for stocks which caused their rise in value and nothing that Congress could do would remedy this situation and in fact, it was said, it would have a contrary effect.

BALL PLAYERS' RELATIVES HURT, SUITS ASK $75,000

Damage suits aggregating $75,000 were on file today in Common Pleas Court on behalf of Mrs. Burleigh Grimes, wife of the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitching ace, and Mrs. Ellen Wright, mother of Glenn Wright, former Pittsburgh shortstop.

The petitions set forth that the two women were seriously injured May 17 when Wright's automobile collided with a truck owned by the Pittsburgh Casket House, 208 West Ohio street, which is named defendant. The accident occurred in Murray avenue.

Mrs. Grimes charges her nose was permanently disfigured and that she suffered other severe bruises. She asks $25,000 damages. Her husband asks $20,000 addition because of expense evolved upon him by her injuries.

Mrs. Wright, whose petition declares she incurred broken ribs and a spine injury, is suing for $25,000.

HEARST PAPERS PRAISED FOR NAVY FIGHT

By CARL VINSON,

Representative from Georgia, Ranking Democrat on the Naval Affairs Committee of the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Coolidge in signing the bill authorizing construction of 15 cruisers and an aircraft carrier yesterday, put the finishing touch on notice to the world that the United States intends to have a Navy second to none.

This is not a belligerent attitude for us to take. Anyone who has followed events sin the war knows that we have made many futile efforts to reduce world armament. And this country stands ready to join in such a reduction.

But as long as other nations refuse to listen to us we must not lull ourselves into a false sense of security and permit our defenses to deteriorate. The cruiser bill is strictly a replacement measure.

In the final triumph of this measure for National insurance, I believe the newspapers operated by William Randolph Hearst deserve much credit.

They have done much to educate the nation to the need for passing this bill. There was opposition from a misinformed though conscientious group, and the Hearst papers did valiant service to our nation in pointing out the facts.

Feud Over Stray Mule Fatal to Two Farmers

RUSHVILLE, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A feud started by a mule was blamed today for the deaths of Newton Sowers and Gilda Strausbaugh, farmers. Several years ago Sowers' mule strayed into Strausbaugh's pasture. Sowers said his neighbor beat the animal, and threatened reprisal. The grudge was well known to neighbors. Yesterday, Strausbaugh went into Sowers' barn, shot him dead and then turned the gun on himself.

A DREAM REALIZED

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO.

A MUTUAL ORGANIZATION, FOUNDED IN 1845

EIGHTY-FOURTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

To the Policy-holders:

Our Eighty-fourth Annual Report has been verified and is being filed with various governmental authorities. May I point out to you, the people chiefly interested, some of its salient facts?

As policy-holders you paid the Company last year in round figures $256,000,000.

The Company paid to you and to beneficiaries $156,000,000.

We put that $100,000,000 in our reserves.

You may ask, what are reserves?

Broadly speaking, they are funds set aside from which future liabilities are to be met.

We put that $100,000,000 in reserves at the close of the year for that specific purpose.

A policy of Life Insurance is almost exactly like a bond. It will mature some day. Nearly all bonds mature at a definite date. Most policies of Life Insurance mature at an indefinite date, but all will mature, in some form, within a limited period of years.

A sound bond is protected by a Sinking Fund—from which the bond is to be redeemed at maturity. The Sinking Fund is accumulated by yearly deposits.

That $100,000,000 was our 1928 deposit, our addition to the Sinking Fund for that year.

The law requires it. If we had failed to make or could not make that entry (deposit) we would soon be declared insolvent by the Insurance Departments and the Courts.

The reserve increase for 1928 was large, but no larger than the law requires.

That we shall redeem all our bonds (policies) as they come due is certain. You know that.

The other income of the Company was sufficient to pay all the expenses of acquiring $900,000,000 of new business in 1928, the care of about $6,500,000,000 of old business, taxes, $6,700,000, the care of invested funds, the maintenance of other legal reserves and a sum sufficient to pay in 1929 $8,000,000 more in dividends than we paid in 1928, and to increase the general surplus by $4,000,000.

In addition the Company loaned you on the sole security of your policies $52,700,000.

SAVING YOUR MONEY

How much of the $156,000,000 we paid you or to beneficiaries during 1928 and how much of the $52,700,000 loaned you during that year will be lost because unwisely invested? That is a very important question. It goes to the very heart of the usefulness of Life Insurance. To save money by investing it soundly is difficult.

Even men of experience frequently make mistakes.

REMEMBER

You can leave the proceeds of your insurance with this Company in trust for your beneficiaries or you can leave any cash due under your policy and the Company will hold it, guaranteeing your principal and not less than 3% interest.

On all such funds we will pay in 1929 (as we have done for some years) 4.6%.

Your total under these accounts on January 1, 1929, was $70,000,000.

That $70,000,000 is not just a deposit. It is mingled with the Company's entire assets and is a part of the Company's liabilities. It is backed, as all our liabilities are, by $1,500,000,000.

Finally study the balance sheet below. There you have the facts about our financial condition, while above you have a picture of the new Home Office: "A Dream Realized."

Show the "Dream" and the balance sheet to your neighbor.

Drink Hot Tea for Bad Cold!

Don't let a cold develop into flu! At the first chill or feverish feeling, go right to your druggist and get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea. Put a tablespoonful of this hamburg tea into a strainer, pour a cup of boiling water over it, and drink it at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and relieve grippe, as it heats the body and opens the bowels. This breaks up congestion and frees the body of poisons. Hamburg Breast Tea is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

POLICE LAXITY, BRUTALITY CHARGES PUT UP TO MAYOR

Council has forwarded to Mayor Charles H. Kline and Safety Director James M. Clark, letters charging police with laxity, which permits repeated robberies of business houses and with brutality in the treatment of prisoners.

Officials of the James W. Houston Company complained that their building at Liberty avenue and Fourteenth street had been broken into five times.

Christ Seibel, 170 Webster avenue, reported his store had been robbed and two other places he owns in that vicinity also had been entered.

Fred R. Kiefbacker, 803 Publication Building, submitted his third letter, complaining of the treatment accorded Charles Donameyer, who was found dead January 1 in a cell in Central Police Station.

Council ordered replies sent to all the complainants, acknowledging receipt of their communications and saying that Council "would be glad to grant them an oral hearing."

MAN, 71, FREE OF DOUBLE AILMENT AFTER 35 YEARS

"Wonderful Konjola Was the Medicine I Should Have Had in the First Place," Says Grateful Pittsburgh Resident.

If you have lost hope of ever finding relief, if your suffering has been of years duration; take new heart and faith for this new and totally different medicine. Konjola, is at hand with a matchless record of astounding successes over those chronic and obstinate cases that have resisted and baffled all else tried. What sufferer does not desire above all else, to find new and glorious health? Then call on the Konjola Man today, at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and have him explain how Konjola works at the very source, the root of the ailments. He will tell you how the 32 ingredients of Konjola, 22 of which are the juices from roots and herbs, each have a special mission to perform, and yet all work simultaneously—stimulating and invigorating the system—preparing the body for the ever-welcome tenant—new, glorious and lasting health. What a world of hope and cheer there is for all who suffer in the fine experience of Mr. John N. Glogger, 219 South Mathilda street, Pittsburgh. Mr. Glogger recently called on the Konjola Man and made this remarkable statement about the work of Konjola in his case:

"After taking Konjola but a short time I realized that it was the medicine I should have had in the first place. Even at my age of seventy-one years, it went to the source of my ailments and ended thirty-five years of suffering. My bladder was in a very serious condition. My stomach was dreadfully disordered and although I have traveled in Europe, taking treatments and medicines galore, I failed to find the slightest relief. There was a constant pain in my sides. My appetite failed me and I did not get the proper nourishment from the food I managed to eat. The combination of these two diseases made a wreck of my nervous system. Sound sleep was denied me and I steadily got worse.

"Not so long ago I began hearing of the amazing accomplishments of this new medicine, Konjola. Could it be possible for it to benefit me? The only way to find out was to give it a trial. This I decided to do, but was hardly prepared for the wonderful surprise that was in store for me. Betterment was not long in coming. For the first time in thirty-five years I had relief from the stomach and bladder troubles. In a few weeks my appetite had returned and food was digesting perfectly. I have gained in energy and strength. The pains fast disappeared and the road to glorious health was before me. What a glorious thing it is to have health again and I hope that others will profit from the lesson my experience teaches."

An exceptional case, you ask? Not a bit of it. Such amazing accomplishments are being added to Konjola's splendid record daily. The files of this medicine fairly overflow with the glad statements of men and women made well and happy through the use of this modern medicine.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

TOTO THE CLOWN DOES TALK BUT SAYS LAUGHTER IS LANGUAGE ALL KNOW

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

THOUSANDS of people have seen Toto, the Man of 1,000 Laughs, but no one has ever heard him talk. Even when he has to make a curtain speech, he brings on a Loud Speaker to do it for him. But Toto can talk in a number of languages. There is a city in Switzerland where the watches come from. Its name is Geneva—it is famous for two reasons. It is the home of the League of Nations and it is the birthplace of Toto. In Geneva everybody knows at least three languages, and so Toto is master of at least four. Five if we count laughter, which, he says, is the universal language that everybody understands. Six if we count Russian, which he got a smattering of when he appeared in St. Petersburg in 1913.

Toto had been everywhere between Constantinople and Paris when he came to America in 1914, just before the war. He made a big hit in the Hippodrome, and ever since then has been an American. But he goes back occasionally to the other side, and when he appears in Paris the critics write columns about him. Edwin Booth wouldn't get such notices in New York if he came back to play "Hamlet."

First Appearance At Age of Four

Toto made his first appearance at the age of 4, carrying blue and silver globes in a pantomime. He has been on the stage ever since, and that was 36 years ago. But his family has been in the profession for generations—acrobats, dancers, jugglers, clowns, tumblers, riders, and everything else.

Toto's real name is Arnold Novello. His father was Italian, his mother German. The father was an equestrian; the mother a lion-tamer. Is it any wonder he is versatile and daring, swift in action and graceful in every movement?

"Are you related to Ernesto Novello, the great Italian tragedian?" I asked him.

"No," he replied, "and tragedy is the one thing I've never tried. Everything else I have meddled with, from music to mystery. But tears are not in my line—I would rather sell handkerchiefs."

And he is truly a Jack of all trades. The many clever episodes in his act are all his own invention. The allusion to drying tears, rather than drawing them, is also to the point. One of Toto's delights is to go to a children's hospital and amuse the little ones with his art.

The dog that takes part in Toto's act is one of his best friends. The dog knows that Toto is one of his best friends. When Toto steps off the stage the dog is there, waiting to be kissed. You wouldn't believe it, but that dog knows he has an important part to play—maybe he thinks Toto is his assistant.

When Toto first appeared in America, he did his famous fall—climbing to the top of a pyramid of tables and chairs, rocking to and fro until the audience was hysterical, and then landing safely on the stage when the pyramid toppled over. All the time he would croon his little song to himself or emit funny wheezes. The originality of the act astonished his audiences, while its seeming danger held them in suspense.

Now Toto presents a whole circus by himself. Everything is his own idea. He is a genius. He has studied the art of getting laughter just as a great tragedian studies the art of getting tears. And Toto thinks he has chosen the better part, for he calls Laughter the universal language.

TODAY IS CUPID'S :-: BUSY DAY :-: IN HOLLYWOOD

Pity the mail man! There's no limit to the size a Valentine may be as this photograph indicates. And well can Norma Shearer smile, for she has the distinction of receiving the largest letter ever delivered in Hollywood.

SHOW BILLS HAVE PEP, VARIETY

Seats are on sale in the box office of the Nixon for Myron C. Fagan's new play, "Indiscretion," which goes direct to Broadway immediately after its engagement in the Nixon, opening Monday, February 18. Minna Gombell is the featured player.

George Jessel, the original "Jazz Singer," will be seen and heard in Loew's Aldine next week in his first talking and singing feature production, "Lucky Boy." Jessel sings five songs in the picture, the theme being "My Mother's Eyes."

A Pretty Girl—until

She Opened Her Mouth

—then YELLOW TEETH Queered Her!

She couldn't understand it—men anxious to dance with her for the first time never made a second request. Even her girl friends seemed a bit uncomfortable in her presence. What could it be? She was pretty, pleasing and well-groomed.

Why did people seem to back away from her? The truth dawned upon her one day when a girl friend casually mentioned something about "yellow teeth".

YELLOW TEETH! She went hastily to a mirror. Yes, her teeth were—yellow! They looked dingy and uncared for, despite the twice-a-day brushing they religiously received...

The world judges by little things—finger nails—teeth—breath. Yellow teeth are impossible! Unsightly in themselves, they suggest the unforgivable—unclean personal habits.

Removes the "Yellow"

Yellow teeth are neither natural nor necessary. For the "yellow" is but a mucin coating, or plaque, that forms on the teeth and absorbs stains. The average dentifrice only cuts tiny furrows in this slippery coating, but the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique removes it!

A half-inch of Kolynos on a dry tooth brush fills the mouth with a foam that is "live" and antiseptic. The use of a dry brush means that you use Kolynos full strength; also that the brush bristles remain stiff enough for scrubbing the teeth and penetrating the spaces between.

The "live" and active Kolynos foam works on the yellow plaque like millions of tiny fingers. It breaks it up and washes it completely off the teeth, cleaning them down to the naked white enamel. The foam pushes its way into all the crevices between the teeth. It cleans out and disinfects those places where germs lodge and cause decay. It cleans and purifies the entire mouth.

M'NUTT WANTS NO MORE HYPHENATED AMERICANS

The hyphenated American, universal service in time of war and limitation of immigration were discussed here last night by National Commander Paul V. McNutt, of the American Legion. Commander McNutt was addressing more than 1,000 members of the Legion at the eighth annual banquet of the Allegheny County committee in the William Penn Hotel.

"The time has come to repudiate formally the claim of foreign nations to the allegiance of those persons who have become naturalized American citizens," said Commander McNutt," and to say to those nations that the United States of America demands the exclusive allegiance of every person who claims to be an American citizen.

"The American Legion favors limitation of immigration, at least for the present. The flood gates had been down before the World War and from 1917 to 1919 more than 2,500,000 men, or 8 per cent of the military man power of this country, sought exemption from national military service because of their allegiance to an alien power.

"If we are to succeed with this great experiment with representative government, we must not allow the melting pot to overflow. We must admit only those who can and will become responsible and responsive American citizens. No man can serve two masters; no man can be a loyal citizen of two nations. No nation can suffer a divided allegiance and long endure."

On the subject of universal service, Commander McNutt said: 'This year we must lay the basis for the adoption of an acceptable universal service act, not necessarily the one which is now in Congress. We are the organization which can bring the various interested factors together. We must do it this year. Universal service is nothing more than legislative preparedness. It is a statement that the true basis of an adequate national defense is equal service from all and special profit to none."

Among others who spoke were Charles E. Gebert, state commander and Capt. Irving O'Hay, veteran of seven wars. Edward Crump, Jr., was general chairman of the committee in charge of the affair. Greetings were brought to the legionnaires by Mayor Charles H. Kline and President of Council, James F. Malone.

What a funny way to escape a COLD

PREVENT a cold by rinsing the hands with Listerine before each meal? Sounds strange doesn't it? Not when you know the facts, however.

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membrane. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follows.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S.90, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for

Sore Throat

Listerine built its reputation on its ability to quickly check sore throat which is also caused by germs. At the first symptom of trouble, gargle with it full strength. Repeat the treatment frequently.

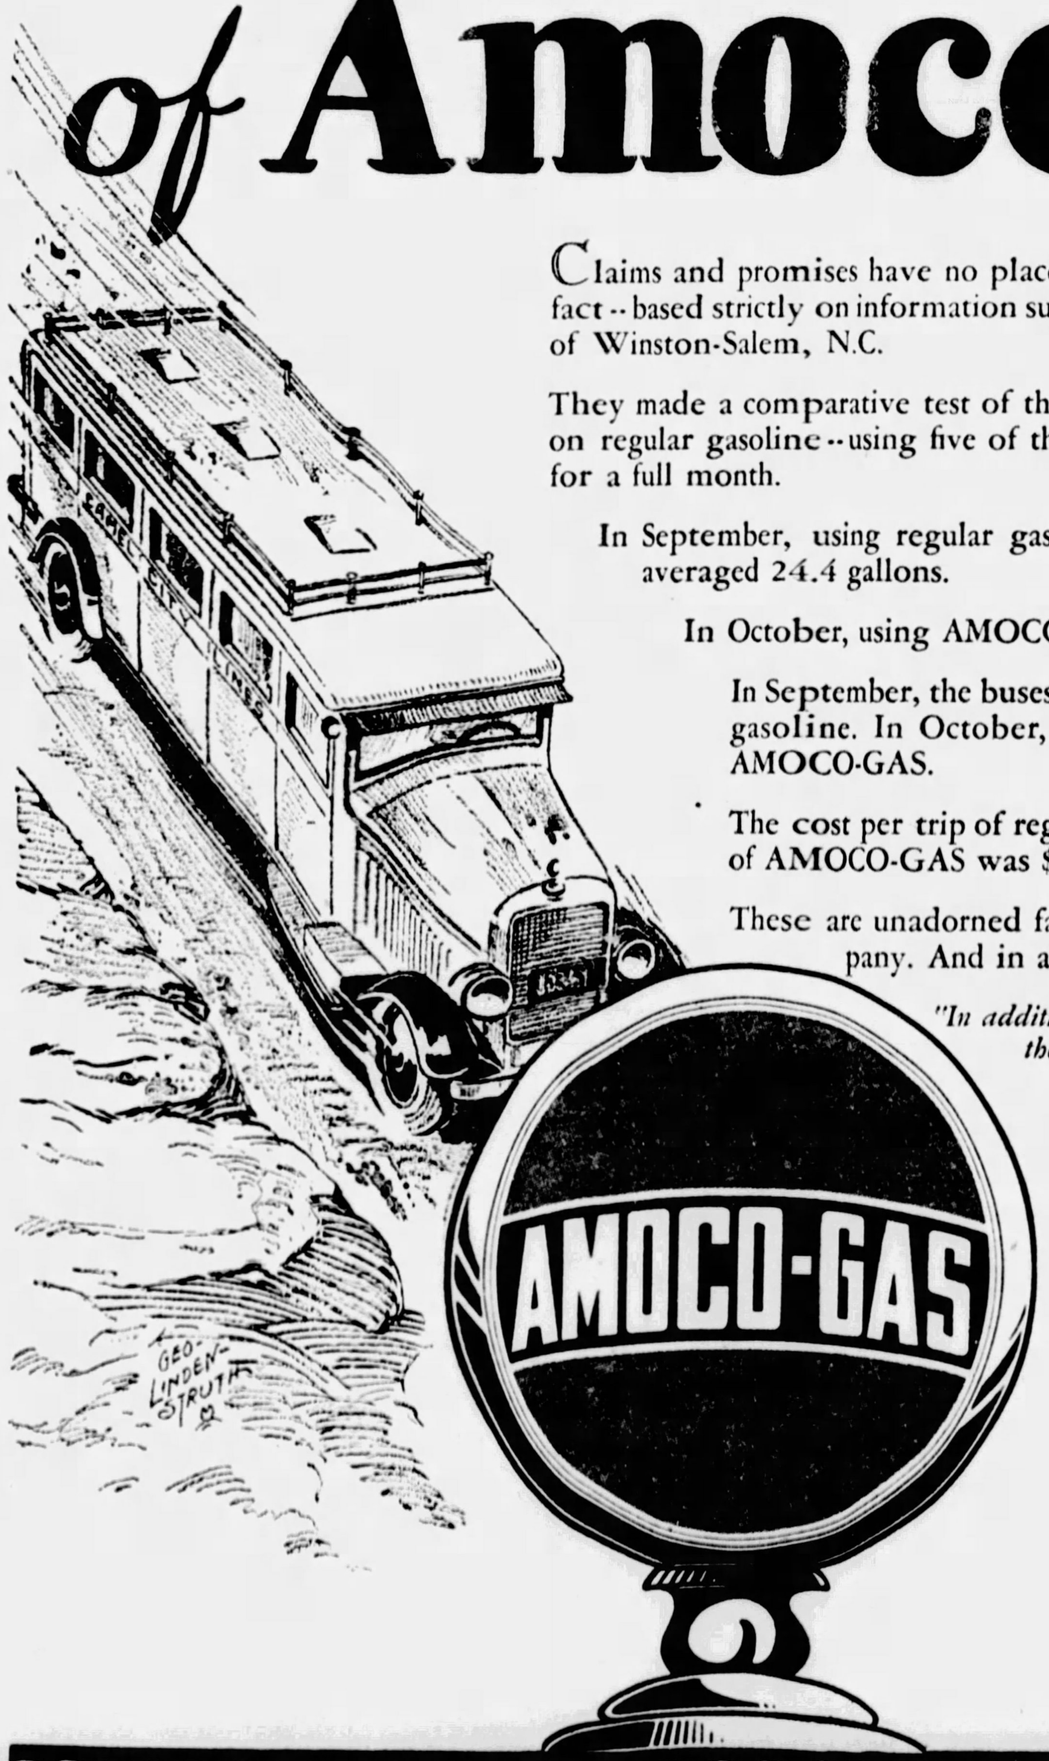
Facts and Figures that convinced a big bus company of the economy of Amoco-Gas



Claims and promises have no place in this advertisement. It's a statement of fact -- based strictly on information supplied by the Camel City Coach Company of Winston-Salem, N.C.

They made a comparative test of the cost of operating on AMOCO-GAS and on regular gasoline -- using five of their big fleet of buses -- keeping close tab for a full month.

In September, using regular gasoline -- the amount of gas used per trip averaged 24.4 gallons.

In October, using AMOCO-GAS -- the average was 18.7 gallons.

In September, the buses averaged 8.5 miles per gallon on regular gasoline. In October, they averaged 11.1 miles per gallon of AMOCO-GAS.

The cost per trip of regular gasoline was $4.15 -- the cost per trip of AMOCO-GAS was $3.93.

These are unadorned facts from the records of this big bus company. And in a letter reporting this test, they add:

"In addition to the saving in gasoline, AMOCO-GAS gave the motors better and smoother acceleration, easier starting and a marked decrease in spark plug and carbon trouble. ALL THE COACHES ON OUR NORTH CAROLINA DIVISION ARE NOW BEING FILLED WITH AMOCO-GAS AND WE HOPE YOU WILL MAKE IT AVAILABLE ON OUR OTHER DIVISIONS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE."

Straight facts and figures -- that's all -- but the most convincing proof of the economy of AMOCO-GAS!

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

More Leave For Sunny Climes

BACK in the days of good Queen Bess, when traveling was an event, not a seasonal occupation, there were those who knew that journeys to other lands were beneficial to man's mental outlook. Don't you recall from your school days what Will Shakespeare had to say about globe-trotting—"How come keeping youths have ever homely wits?" Pittsburgh society has a decidedly cosmopolitan attitude, and no wonder, for its members are forever going or coming.

At this time of the year it seems to those of us who are remaining in the city this winter everyone is setting forth upon a fascinating voyage to see new lands and to court the rays of the sun, which does not deign to regard Pittsburgh with much warmth these monotonous February days.

* * *

NOW that we have all talked over Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's engagement to Anne Morrow, whom many of our young set know, and whose father is a former Pittsburgher, we are returning to that never failing topic of interest during this time of the year—our travelers.

* * *

HAVE you heard that Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., of "Joy Gardens," Sewickley, and her daughter, Jane Joy Edson, a debutante of this season, are going to Washington for the inauguration on March 4? Just where they'll go after seeing Mr. Hoover make his debut, if one may speak socially of such an august President-to-be, Mrs. Edson hasn't decided.

Palm Beach is attracting more and more of the members of our "400." Mary Carroll, daughter of the Walter C. Carrolls, of College avenue, will leave the end of this week with her sister, Mrs. Edward Standish Bradford, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., to join the Pittsburgh colony at that most popular of Florida winter resorts.

Miss Marjorie Gethoefer, of the Schenley apartments, will leave soon for California, I hear. Miss Gethoefer was chairman, I recall, of the Cinderella ball, an outstanding event of the winter.

Mrs. Wallace Hurte Rowe, her daughter, Eleanor, and Wilhelmina Balken are now in Hawaii, I've been told.

Simultaneous with the departures of Pittsburgh folks here are arrivals from the East. Florence Remington, of Springfield, Mass., is taking advantage of the decline of the season back home to spend some time with her sister, a very young matron, Mrs. Graham McCargo.

Mrs. Blair Childs and her young daughter will spend some time in California with Mrs. Childs' mother, Mrs. Samuel Robinson, did you know?

The Thomas Howe Childses and their daughter, Anna K. Childs, of Woodland road, have joined friends in Bermuda, news has reached me.

I wonder if you know that Helen Clay Frick is in Pittsburgh for a while? Miss Frick, who now spends most of her time in New York, still has keen interest in her home city. Yesterday I saw her in the Carnegie Art Galleries viewing the work being exhibited in the annual show of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh.

* * *

FOR some time I've been wondering if Frances Wooldridge, daughter of the Charles L. Wooldridges, of St. James street, might not make her bow to the social world next season. Frances will not come out, I've learned, at least not next year. In the fall she'll matriculate at Vassar, according to the family plans. Just now she is at the Madeira School.

* * *

A PLEASANT break in the social monotony was the small wedding of Helen H. Benney, daughter of Mrs. George Andrew Benney, of Rockledge Farm, Sewickley Heights, and Rogers Dudley McMahon, son of the Harry B. McMahons, of Lombary, Coraopolis Heights. This took place on Tuesday afternoon, I hear, in the chapel of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, with the Rev. Dr. Alleyne Carleton Howell, rector of St. Stephen's Church in Sewickley, performing the ceremony. Just the two families were there, and the bride and bridegroom were unattended. Helen wore a frock of fuchsia crepe with a hat to match, and her flowers were white roses.

The young Mr. and Mrs. McMahon have left for the South, where they will make an extensive stay, and when they get back they will live in Alan Arms, Sewickley.

* * *

MRS. ROBERT SCOTT NEWTON, of Emlenton, will be matron of honor and Miss Ruth Anderson, of Beaver, maid of honor, at the wedding of Miss Ellen Mary Reeve, granddaughter of F. H. Stark, of Ridge avenue, Coraopolis, and Howard Hill Hobaugh, son of Mrs. J. S. Hobaugh, of Butler, which will take place Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Coraopolis Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. C. A. Hartung will perform the ceremony. Marjorie and Carol Stark, of Erie, will be the flower girls. Harold W. Diebler, of Apollo, will be best man and the ushers will include Robert Scott Newton, John Waddell, of Beaver; Frederick J. Reeve and Dr. J. D. Stark, of Erie. Mr. and Mrs. Newton will give the rehearsal dinner tomorrow night.

* * *

THE marriage of Miss Anna Louise Stephany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Stephany, of Olympia place, and Rollo Evans Venn, of Wichita, Kan., and Los Angeles, son of Frank Venn, of Wichita, will be solemnized Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in St. Clement's Episcopal Church, Huntington Park, Cal., by the Rev. Harry G. Gray. Miss Katherine Francis Bryan, of this city, will be maid of honor and Harry B. Morris, of Indianapolis, is to be best man. A reception and dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Stocking, of Beverly Hills, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, will follow the service.

* * *

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Elsie Mary Scott, daughter of Mrs. Jessie R. Scott, of Summerlea street, and Paul K. Mullen, of Fairmont, W. Va., which was solemnized Saturday, February 2, in the Scott home by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Mullen will make their home in Fairmont.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES H. GOETTLER, of Brownsville road, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth E. Goettler, and George Flotzinger, son of Mrs. C. Flotzinger, of Charles street, which was solemnized Tuesday.

* * *

PITTSBURGH SECTION, National Council of Jewish Juniors, will hold "Club Georgian," a night club dance, on February 25, in Webster Hall. Miss Ruth Schwartz is general chairman for the affair.

* * *

KENNETH NEWMAN POST, of the American Legion, will hold a card party tomorrow night in Maennerchor Hall, Southern avenue, Mt. Washington. There will be no admission charges, but donations of canned goods for the needy of Mt. Washington will be received. R. J. Windjassen is commander of the post.

City Club Planning New Fashion Show

THE Woman's City Club is to have another fashion show and March 22 and 23 have been chosen as the dates. Another March date already set is Friday evening, the 8th, for a bridge party, the proceeds of which will be used for the purpose of books.

Several interesting events have been scheduled for this month. Dr. Andre Morize, of Harvard, will be a guest of the club at luncheon on Saturday and will speak. Luncheon reservations are being taken by the house secretary. A musicale-tea is to be an event of Sunday from 5 until 7 o'clock. Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield has arranged the program, which will be presented by Mark Myer, violinist, and Marjorie Myer, pianist. George Seibel, literary editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will speak on "Adventures Among Books" at a book luncheon on February 23.

* * *

HAMPTON TOWNSHIP, Glenshaw and Elfinwild Parent-Teacher Associations will combine for a meeting in the Elfinwild United Presbyterian Church on Monday night. William Voelker will give an organ recital, Catherine Reineman Murray and George Schreiber will sing duets, Grace Summers and Donald Sandy will present violin duets and the Elfinwild P. T. A. sextet will sing. The meeting has been called to hear Mrs. Charles Roe, of the National P. T. A., speak on "The Parent-Teacher Association—What It Is—What It Is Not."

* * *

"WHY WRITE A SHORT STORY?" will be discussed by Dr. Percival Hunt, of the University of Pittsburgh, at a meeting of the League of American Pen Women on Thursday in the Woman's City Club. The meeting will take the form of a literary tea in honor of Dr. Hunt. The tea, to which members are privileged to bring guests, will be preceded by a board meeting.

DON'T LET YOUR HANDS GET OLD!

A magical new kind of cream...Specially for the HANDS.....

. . . preserves the satiny suppleness and texture of youth
. . . Instantly whitens hands.

HANDS UP! Let's look at them! Do they give away your age—even make you appear older than you are? That's a trick hands have unless you watch them carefully.

The famous "youthful grandmothers" of stage and society say that their hardest struggle to keep young-looking is with their hands. Nowhere does age so quickly betray itself as in their suppleness and texture.

Look at your own hands! Do they look like the supple, milk-white hands of a debutante? Or do they show at a glance how busy they are at homekeeping and office tasks? Are they work-scarred, red and rough? Traced with tiny grimy lines that soap and water simply won't remove? Prematurely old-looking?

Never mind. No matter how much you use them—no matter how unsightly they may be now—you can make them as exquisitely white and soft as if you kept them demurely folded in your lap!

New Beauty for Your Hands in 2 minutes!

An amazing new kind of cream will do for your hands—in two minutes—what expensive massage and rejuvenation treatments do for your complexion. A two-minute test with THINC Hand Creme (pronounced "think"), as this marvelous cream is called, will prove your hands naturally white and youthful. Consistent use of THINC will keep them that way.

Instantly THINC banishes any dryness or irritation—smoothes away every bit of roughness—blanches—beautifies. It's like a touch of magic, bringing your hands new loveliness while you wait! No wiping it off, for it leaves no trace of greasiness. No waiting for it to dry, for it is instantly absorbed. THINC makes your hands as smooth and cool and white as alabaster!

Efficient Office Hands—deftly typing, handling smudgy carbons, sorting through dusty files all day—and paying for it with a tracery of fine grimy lines. With THINC to protect them, your hands can be always attractive.

Society Hands—playing gracefully over the tea things, lighting a cigarette, dealing out cards. Thinc keeps them smooth and cool as ivory, accents their smart perfection.

THINC Hand Creme is unique. It is not a cold cream, vanishing cream or lotion, but a wholly new preparation especially designed to preserve the precious beauty of your hands. It has the unqualified endorsement of Good Housekeeping

Note the Instantaneous Improvement

Try this simple two-minute test before you go to bed tonight; smooth a bit of THINC on one hand and then compare that hand with the other. You can plainly see the instant whitening, the astonishing improvement. Leave the dainty cream on your hands all night and see what a difference there is in the morning. Depend upon THINC always to preserve the charm and youth.

Get THINC Hand Creme at any drug store, toilet counter or beauty shop and make the two-minute test tonight. Money back if not completely delighted.

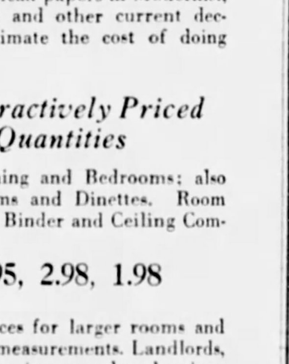
THINC WHEN THINKING OF BEAUTY

The Romance that ended so soon



Her version: What a disappointment Bob had been! Once he was always bright and cheery—well-groomed. Then something happened. Bob became careless. Seemed to lose his ambition. Even his appearance was affected. Why, she was actually ashamed of him now!

His version: What had come over Mary? Two years ago he had been so much in love with her. But these days she was always so cross. Her old-time youth and charm had fled. True, he'd slipped somewhat, himself. But, Mary. . . .

What a tragedy that constipation can wreck so much happiness! It begins with such little things—headaches, listlessness. But it eventually saps the strongest body, and may lead to serious disease. And all the while it could be so easily prevented—so surely relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to safely prevent it.

ALL-BRAN is effective and natural

Bulk or roughage relieves constipation in a natural way. ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. It carries moisture through the intestines, gently sweeping out poisons. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Don't risk drugs!

ALL-BRAN brings lasting relief. Far better than habit-forming pills whose dose must be constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is an appetizing cereal—delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Mix it with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use it in cooking. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It will protect the health of your family.

All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Served at hotels, restaurants, on diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

PACIFIC COAST ORCHESTRA TONIGHT'S RADIO FEATURE

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

VALENTINE DAY and not one program dedicated to Cupid!

Have program managers forgotten what makes the world go 'round?

Russell Patterson, artist, may save the day with his talk on "Feminine Beauty" over KDKA at 8 p. m.

Here and there we find references to romance. For instance, in one program we find a sweet melody, "The Precious Little Thing Called Love," followed by a piano solo, "Dizzy Fingers." And again, "Spring Song of Shanewis," followed by "Oh, Dry Those Tears."

Regardless, the radio evening looks rather complete.

Lovers of the classical will have their moment when the American Philharmonic plays over WJAS at 10 o'clock in the first of a series of concerts from the Pacific Coast. The title sounds romantic enough—"Symphony of the Sea."

Three very interesting chain programs will be heard at 8 o'clock. Besides Mr. Patterson at KDKA, we will be treated to Jesse Greer, composer, from WCAE, and the U. S. Army Band and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant from WJAS.

Ohman and Arden will play "The Glow Worm" as a piano duet from WCAE at 9 p. m. A "Symphony of Roses" will bring this program to a close. The usual 50-piece orchestra will broadcast.

Best Remedy for Obstinate Cough Made at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It also promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and at the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

BRADDOCK BANQUETS SEA HERO TONIGHT

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

A POLICEMAN'S lot may not be an 'appy one, as Gilbert and Sullivan declared, yet it is seldom you read of a policeman leaving the force voluntarily before his time is in. They have a great deal to contend with in carrying out their duties, yet there is compensation in the form of the general body of citizens recognizing them somehow as personages. It is the unusual citizen who does not pride himself on knowing a policeman or many of them.

And while the policemen, as a rule, stick on the job until their 20 years is in to give them a modest pension, it is remarkable how easily and how quickly they get off the force to go into pursuits certainly less exciting, judged by conventional standards of excitement.

The number of retired "cops" who have quietly eased off on a pension to the obscurity of a farm must be large.

* * *

Such reflections are prompted by considering Farmer Ed Brophy, of Wexford. Here is a man who rose from the ranks of a patrolman to be superintendent of the city police. For many years he was a city detective until his promotion to the superintendency. Partnered with Jack Barry for a long time even the casual reader of police affairs recalls how often Barry and Brophy were mentioned in some exploit in the policemen's realm.

In the light of such an eventful life, it will seem curious to the city-bred boy, at least, that without hesitation and without regrets, Ed Brophy moved from the scene of intense activity to a sphere where a slow day is made relatively eventful with word from one of the hands that the dappled mare has come up with a limp.

* * *

NOW on a farm, Farmer Brophy, who once held by his position a line on the thousands of interesting and exciting affairs that come to the desk of a police superintendent, speculates on the family affairs of his Leghorns and Barred Rocks and on why there seems to be either too much rain for the crops or not quite enough.

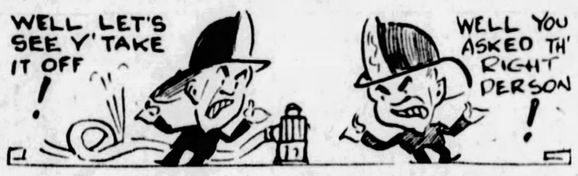
* * *

Brophy's rise to the superintendency, of course, has been duplicated by every superintendent, as so far as I know no civilian ever held that position. I believe Robert Alderdice, a present councilman, is the only Pittsburgher who rose from a patrolman to be director of public safety.

* * *

AND since I seem to be mixed up in the public safety department more or less this might be a good time to remind Fire Chief Richard Smith that any day now I'm ready for that tour of the fire houses with him. It was only natural that a former volunteer might have a little prejudice against a paid department, but a recent conversation with genial Chief Smith straightened out all points of difference.

I recalled to the chief that once I saw a city fire company put its line on a water plug that was well within the limits of a certain borough and I recalled to him that the panting volunteers who had arrived just a little behind the city's fire laddies wanted the city boys to take their line off the plug so the volunteer line could be attached. There was a wordy argument, with the city boys making what must be conceded a strong point when they said that the house then on fire might burn down in the meantime. As I recall it, too, the man whose house was burning seemed to lean to the city fire laddies. But after Chief Smith explained the whole thing I agreed to forget the unfortunate occurrence and I am glad to say we parted good friends.



Victor

THOMAS P. DELANEY

Burgess Delaney, Castle Shannon, is again victor in the disagreement over ousting the borough's police force of three, one of whom is a salaried officer. Opposition in the borough council failed to muster enough votes to overcome his veto of the original bill to oust the officers.

TRAFFORD BANK SUSPECTS GUARDED

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 14.—Precautions against a possible attempted delivery of Samuel Fucci and Patrick Trader, Monongah, W. Va., and Eddie Motes, of Fairmont, were taken when the trial started in Criminal Court here today on charges of participating in the holdup and robbery of the Trafford City National Bank last November 23.

Judge W. T. Dom admitted no one to the courtroom except jurors, attorneys and officers until, at least, the jury is drawn. It was understood that a number of friends and relatives of three defendants will attend the trial.

The three, with another man, who escaped, are alleged to have held up the bank, stolen $75,000 in cash and escaped in an automobile, taking with them O. M. Kimmell, an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad and a bank customer who attempted to detain them. Fucci and Trader were captured in the car by police near Pittsburgh, with Kimmel held a prisoner. Motes was not captured until two weeks ago when he attempted to visit the other two at the county jail.

NOTED PERSONS TO SPEAK AT DINNER

Malcolm Goldsmith, Braddock businessman, has been chosen as toastmaster for the testimonial banquet to be given in honor of Fonce Kellams, Braddock's sea hero, tonight in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 309 Braddock avenue, Braddock.

Congressman Clyde Kelly, M. A. Musmanno, Titus Hodder and Kellams are scheduled for addresses. John Harrobin, who also was one of the heroic crew which rescued the sailors and officers of the liner Florida, will attend the affair.

One of the features of the banquet will be the presentation of an oil painting of Kellams. Angelo Di Vicenzo, Braddock artist, painted the portrait, which is now exhibited in the first National Bank, of Braddock.

Members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Braddock honored Kellams at a reception last night in the church. Kellams was a member of the Sunday school class until 1918, when he enlisted in the Navy.

L. J. Loughner, John M. Taylor and Oscar F. Westland had charge of arrangements. Prof. T. G. McCleary, of the Braddock School, introduced Kellams. The sailor described the rescue.

CALL MEETINGS AS PROTEST

The Rev. Dr. O. H. Milligan, pastor of Avalon United Presbyterian Church, has been chosen to speak at a mass meeting in the Oakmont Presbyterian Church next Sunday afternoon called under the auspices of the Sabbath Association of the Pittsburgh Area to oppose any change in the so called "Blue laws." The Rev. Dr. Charles A. McCrea is pastor of the Oakmont Church.

The Rev. Dr. R. F. Galbreath, of Bellevue Presbyterian Church is scheduled to address a similar meeting, in the First United Presbyterian Church, Oakland.

The Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, of the First U. P. Church, North Side will address a meeting to be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh.

A meeting in the Eighth U. P. Church, Perrysville avenue, North Side, will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. John McNaugher, president of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and the Rev. F. M. Blick.

A community meeting to protest against any change in the Sunday observance laws, as proposed by a bill introduced in the Legislature, will be held Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church. Churches of Bellevue, Avalon, Ben Avon and Emsworth will join. The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, North Side, and former moderator of the United Presbyterian general assembly. Pastors of the different churches will have a part in the program.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.

Who cares whether we voted 16 new cruisers, or just a row boat?

What do we care what J. P. Morgan and Young decide the indemnity shall be?

What do we care about an extra session?

All those are a lot of applesauce.

The world's mind is on romance. It's Annie and Lindy that our minds are on.

What do we care if Hoover catches a whale? Or Coolidge shoots a bear?

It's our boy and that fine girl we are thinking of.

The Museum Murder

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

PROF. VON GRUBAU was probably the most disagreeable man in Egypt. In the two years he had been digging around among relics of the haughty tyrants of past centuries he had managed to antagonize every human being in Cairo who had so much as brushed by him on the street. He had quarreled with every Egyptologist in the Nile valley before he had been there three weeks. There was not a fellaheen in Africa who did not mutter at the sight of the tall, stooped German with the pince-nez and the inevitable old-fashioned cloak and broad-brimmed hat. The hotel servants spat oaths at him in 17 languages; the Jehus despised him; he was a festering sore to the police.

Therefore no one was in the least sorry when he was found in the cellar of the museum with his head beaten in. No one was less sorry than Inspector Briggs, although he was routed from his bed at 2:15 a. m. by the curator of the museum.

He had been annoyed by the libel suits, street fights, and assault charges which Prof. Von Grubau was always bringing upon himself. Only a few days before, Von Grubau's keenest rival, Travilio of the University of Milan, had threatened to beat him up if he ever spoke to him again. Travilio was a fiery little man, a great authority on the furniture of the Third Dynasty, and it was customary to allow him to see any finds in this field, as he was making an extensive catalogue. The fight with Von Grubau had started because Travilio had asked to see a stool that the German had unearthed and had been refused with insults. The week before that, a native workman had sworn to get even when the irascible archaeologist had struck him. And Briggs knew how vindictive the fellaheen can be.

"DID you notify his son?" he asked the agitated curator, when he reached the museum.

"Yes," said that worthy, "he is coming right over."

Briggs had seen the son around. He was a pleasant, sociable man who assisted his father during the day, but in the evening, when the old professor was locked up with his books, Eric was more likely to be at the roulette table at the Casino.

"The professor's son was working with him until 12:30—but Hawkins had better tell you his own story," replied the curator.

"It was this way," said Hawkins. "The museum closes at 6, and them two had called up and asked if they could bring some valuable stuff over after hours because their workmen had walked out on them. The assistant curator had told them to come ahead. It ain't nothing unusual for the old professor to work here at night as he never went out and always did his own cataloguing. I go on duty at 6, and about 7, I see their car standing outside the basement entrance with a lot of things in it. I got my rounds to make and when I get back to this here office, where I always stay at night, I find young Mr. Von Grubau waiting for me. He says that they are going to work late and not to bother them. There isn't a sound except a low murmur of voices once in a while—this floor isn't very thick—and things being dragged around. About 12:30, Mr. Eric comes up in a great hurry and says that he is fed up and is going over to the Casino. I let him out the front door. Just a few minutes later, his old man comes tearing up. He comes to the door and says in his gruff voice: "Is dot damn young scoundrel gone?"—begging your pardon, sir—and I says 'Yes,' and he says he is going to work until 2, and will I call him because he hasn't any watch. 'Two it is,' I says, and he stamps off to the cellar, as mad as a 'uman could be. I thinks at the time that it was funny that he had his hat and cloak on, although he always wears 'em. He was a queer 'un.

"WELL, I goes down cellar at 2 and I knocks. Not a sound. I pounds and pounds and finally I telephones the curator—begging your pardon, sir—from the office and he comes with a policeman and breaks down the door."

"Were you in the office all night?" asked Briggs.

"Yes," replied voluble Hawkins. "After I've seen that the place is properly shut up, I always stays here and reads. I've never known myself to fall asleep," he added proudly.

"Are there many lights on in the building?" asked the inspector. "Are there any in the basement?"

"In the corridors there are," answered the watchman, "but not downstairs unless someone is working. I have a good light in here, of course."

"But this little hall leading to the stairs going down to the cellar?"

"No, sir, that is always dark."

"Is it possible for anyone to get into the building without your knowing it?" asked the police inspector.

"LORD, no," said Hawkins. "The only doors are this big front one and the basement door for unloading. That is always locked and it was still locked when we broke in. I looked the first thing. It's a big fine springlock, and it hadn't been touched."

"I think that that is all. I would like to see the body now."

"Nothing has been touched," said the curator, "and perhaps you would rather go down alone."

Briggs went down a short hall from the office and descended a flight of steps. He found himself in a huge cellar, most of which was unpartitioned and used for storage. In the front of the building, however, there were two or three separate rooms, and Briggs entered the one directly under the office. He tried the doors of the two other rooms and found them locked. It was a fairly large room with an earthen floor and no windows. There was no opening except the door he had come in by. All around the room were heaps of ancient Egyptian objects: furniture, pieces of cloth, a couple of mummies and their cases, utensils, and ornaments. Some of them had been neatly sorted, but there were still some piles of miscellaneous articles.

IN the middle of the floor lay the body of Prof. Von Grubau, doubled up as though he had died in agony. As a matter of fact he was terribly beaten about the head. Briggs examined him more closely. He had on an ordinary sack suit, and his cloak and broad-brimmed hat were on a case near by. Briggs opened the coat. There was a bullet wound through the heart. One could see at a glance this had been the cause of death—and an immediate death, if he was any judge of bullet wounds. The abrasions on the head were not serious enough to have killed a strong man like the professor. Then one of the hands attracted his attention. With great difficulty, he pried open the fingers, even breaking the thumb, and took out of the dead man's grasp the setting of a ring. Even Inspector Briggs could see that it had been a beautiful thing. There was something else funny about the body, he thought. Ah, he had it. The professor had always worn glasses. He was dreadfully near-sighted, Briggs remembered. They were nowhere about the cellar room. Briggs searched the body, and found nothing of interest in the pockets except the key to the door and an old-fashioned revolver. One bullet was missing, and all the fingerprints had been carefully cleared away.

BUT Briggs did make some other discoveries. In the heap of cloth he found a very modern bit of fabric. It was a handkerchief marked with the professor's initials. It was blood-stained, and the blood was dry. Then there was a little wooden box on a large table that formed the only modern furnishings of the room. It had a strong padlock but now it was gaping open and the key was sticking in the lock. Inside were neat little trays with Egyptian jewelry in them, but there were gaping holes in the ranks of trinkets. Briggs examined the box for finger prints, but they had been wiped, almost polished off. Beside the wooden box was a beautifully carved piece of wood. One end looked a little strange, and a careful examination showed that blood had been carefully—but not quite carefully enough—wiped from it.

That was all, but it was enough. Before he left he did a curious thing. He deliberately fired a shot at the floor with the revolver. The watchman and the curator rushed down immediately.

"It's nothing," said Briggs, "but how is it you didn't hear the shot last night?" he asked Hawkins.

"I didn't, sir," said the watchman.

BRIGGS led the way up to the office again with his ring, his box, his piece of carved wood and his gun. In the meantime Eric had been summoned from the Casino. He gasped when he saw the wooden box.

"Why, father always kept the key to that in his own pocket," he exclaimed.

"Look and see if anything is missing," said Briggs.

While Eric examined the box carefully Briggs looked with interest at the tall, straight young man. This boy bore a certain resemblance to his father, but only in the shape of the head and the small blue eyes.

"Some things are. I could not give you a list of them, but I distinctly remember a carnelian necklace which is not here any more."

"And this ring?" asked the detective.

Eric looked surprised and puzzled.

"Why, no, I never saw it before," said Eric.

The gun both he and the curator identified as his father's. He had always carried one, and they had both seen it and noticed that it was an old-fashioned affair.

The curator held out his hand with professional interest. "Why, that is the leg of a very fine Third Dynasty chair," he said.

"One thing," said Briggs to the curator, "was this key which I found in the dead man's pocket the only key to the basement door!"

"Yes, indeed," replied the curator. "I am quite sure it is. It is a room that we seldom use, and I sent that over to the diggin's myself at my assistant's request, when the professor phoned for it early in the afternoon."

"Yes, father, and I received it soon after the workmen struck," said Eric. "Father and I had made quite a find," the young man went on in his low, pleasant voice. "A tomb which had been built in two parts. The later room had been opened and rifled, several mummy cases had been opened and everything of value had been stolen. But back of this antechamber was a tomb of a much earlier dynasty containing considerable treasure. The place had been entirely excavated by yesterday noon, when father, as usual, had and argument with the laborers and they all quit. So we stayed until almost night sorting and roughly packing the most valuable things, and we brought them over ourselves to the museum for safety. We took them in through the cellar entrance and spent some time sorting them, but I finally got tired and decided to go over to the Casino. Father was an awful slave-driver, you know. He was quite angry about it. I was still at the Casino when the curator called me."

"I guess that is about all," said Briggs. "In the morning I can accomplish more. Good-night. I will send someone over for the body."

But the morning brought little help.

Briggs always came up against that key being found in the old man's pocket. The son was really the only one who had a chance to take it, and he had arrived at the Casino at 10 minutes to 1, according to several reliable witnesses. If he had walked slowly, that was a fair time to arrive, considering he left the museum at 12:30. There was only one thing against Eric. He had sold a valuable emerald the morning of the murder, and had already gambled away the money he had received for it.

Then there was the watchman. But how could he have gotten the key? And why on earth would he want to murder the professor? He was one of the few people in Cairo who was on good terms with the old nuisance.

PROF. TRAVILIO presented a neat problem. His alibi was very weak. He said he had been asleep at home all night, but he lived alone except for one servant, and he could easily have stolen out. Still, how on earth could he get into the museum without Hawkins seeing him?

There remained the natives. Briggs knew that it was hopeless to try to check up on them.

And what had become of the glasses? And what about the bullet shot Hawkins never heard, although he should by all rights have heard it clearly? And where were the jewels missing from the wooden box? They had never been offered for sale.

Briggs was in a quandary.

Solution of Yesterday's Mystery: "The Alibis"

THE Old Colony Trust Company, of Boston, has a direct wire to New York, and it can be called from New York as a local call. Andrew Van Pelt's alibi was based on this fact. On the day of his uncle's murder he breakfasted at his club and called Edward Van Pelt in New York by long distance, making sure that his uncle would be at home at a certain hour in the afternoon. He caught the 10 o'clock train for New York, arriving around 3, and immediately telephoned Kitty in Boston, by making a local call to the Old Colony Trust Company's New York number. Kitty connected him with several Boston acquaintances who appeared to be receiving local calls. She then put in a long distance call for New York on another wire and connected him with a New York friend who could swear that he had spoken to Andrew at long distance from Boston. Van Pelt went to his uncle's home, entering with his own key, committed the murder, and caught the 5 o'clock train for Boston which gets in about 11. He hurried to his club and was seen there at supper. He had gone to the theater a few nights before to familiarize himself with the play in question.

NANCY DEANE — By Roy L. Foley

CHAPTER XXXIV.

HOWARD WESCOTT was in his office, dictating when Nancy arrived at work the next morning. She was just on time, but she had had to hurry so that she came away without even a cup of coffee. It was so hard to get up in the morning. At night she was reluctant to turn out the lights on her pretty sitting room. Often she sat up late just thinking, wondering if she dared be so happy.

Often she sat on the edge of the bed wishing she were a grand lady who didn't have to rush out in the cold every morning to struggle into a bus or street car in order to be at the office by 8:30. She was always ashamed of these thoughts as fast as they came into her head, still they came.

Persistent, tempting little thought devils that jabbed ideas into her brain which she didn't want to let in.

This morning she had awakened late again. She hadn't even lighted the light in her bedroom when she came in last night. She didn't want to look in her own eyes, to see her own lips still burning with Howard Wescott's kisses.

She had fallen into bed. She had gone to sleep wondering at his sudden change yesterday after she had pointed to his mother's portrait. Was he in love with her or she with him? She began to fear for herself.

As she passed the slightly open door between the two offices she caught a glimpse of the back of his sleek head. He was the picture of a brusque business man, faultlessly tailored, keen minded, a catch for any woman, truly, and so far a successful dodger of them all.

The very way he answered the society girls who called him on the telephone was proof that if there were any pursuing to be done, he was going to do it.

"Don't ring my telephone unless they are men, unless, of course, it's my mother," he directed. "Find out who's calling before you let them know I am in."

"You are a liability to this firm. We will have to dispense with your services."

The words were uttered with absolutely no feeling. How different was the tone he had used last evening. How very different.

She admired the warmth of his voice, the persuasion he could put into it, the command that was sometimes in it, the culture.

Yesterday his voice had been soft, gentle, now it was no more gentle than a piece of steel.

For no particular reason she dreaded to meet his eyes this morning.

She called herself a fool. She despised herself. She wished that she could despise Wescott. She tried to find within her some little spark of hate for him. There seemed to be none there. She tried to hate him and she could feel the hurt of his strong hands on her arms. She told herself he was despicable, "a big bum," and she could feel his lips on hers. In spite of a warning inner voice that kept calling: "he doesn't really love you—not as John Blair does—" She tried to shut her ears.

"That's all for now, Miss Crosby," she heard Wescott saying, "if you can get this letter out early I'd appreciate it."

Harriet came out of the office, flipping the pages of her notebook. She barely glanced at Nancy and snapped out a curt "good morning." Nancy heaved a sigh of relief. Evidently Harriet wasn't in a mood to converse. As she sat down to her typewriter and began hitting the keys without looking at them, her eyes fastened on the hieroglyphics in the note book before her. Nancy remembered with a pang of conscience her own shorthand studies.

She had wanted to go home early last night to practice, to recite those pesky R rules over and over again until Miss Williamson, the shorthand teacher, wouldn't be able to catch her.

The telephone on Harriet's desk rang.

"Answer that, will you, Nancy?" she asked. "I'm terribly busy."

Nancy took down the receiver, trying to say—"Wear-Ever Knitting Mills, Mr. Wescott's office"—in the tone Harriet used. The attempt was a failure.

"Is Mr. Wescott there?" a voice repeated.

How familiar the voice was. She remembered Wescott's instructions to find out who was calling.

"Who is it please?"

"This is Mr. Blair speaking," the voice answered. "John Blair. An old friend of Mr. Wescott's."

Nancy's answer was an exclamation: "Oh, John!"

Blair talked to Nancy so long and she had to answer his questions so rapidly that Harriet stopped typewriting and leaned back in her chair to listen.

"Yes, I'm fine. Yes, the work is very nice. Yes. Yes. Yes. I'm going to class three times a week."

If Nancy had eyes in the back of her head she would have seen that Harriet was gasping with impatience and amazement.

Through the half open door they could hear Wescott talking on the telephone to John Blair.

"Sure, come right over," he was saying, "go to lunch with me. We can talk over old times. I've been wanting to see you ever since Miss O'Day brought me your letter. Yes, she's getting along famously."

So John Blair was coming to the office, and Howard Wescott in that sure way of his had remarked that Nancy was getting along famously, as though saying: "Yes, it's a very nice day."

Nancy stamped her foot. Not much of a stamp, her desk wouldn't allow it, but enough to make Harriet look up.

"I wish I were a man. Oh, how I wish I were a man!" Nancy said under her breath. "Men are never afraid."

"What's that you're saying," Harriet asked.

"Nothing, nothing. I'm just talking to myself."

Harriet's answer was "humph!"

After that Nancy managed not to express her thoughts aloud and when Blair came into the office she apparently was very engrossed in her work.

"Well, well, I'm glad to see you, Nancy!"

He held out his hand and she felt its rough strength. John's strong, big, well-shaped hands were one of the first things she had noticed about him.

"Thought I'd drop in to renew my neglected friendship with Howard," he said, "and to see how you're getting along in the big city."

No, his background should be fields and sky and hills. He was not made to be judged against the background of the polished walnut panels in Wescott's office.

He was still holding her hand, shaking it, when Wescott came into the office. The two men greeted each other, and in the face of each was a look of genuine pleasure.

"I see you've accepted my recommendation for a very fine little girl," Blair said, nodding toward Nancy. "But I hardly thought she'd advance so rapidly, why this must be the sanctum sanctorum of the Wear Ever Knitting Mills."

Wescott laughed. He looked at Nancy. It was the first time she had looked into his eyes since she closed the door after him at the apartment the night before. There was just a touch of tenderness in them, as he looked at her. But only a portion of a second. His expression became cool, he looked at her very steadily.

Was this the way men looked at women whose love they sought?

"Awfully glad to see you," Wescott repeated, to John.

They walked into the inner office and Wescott closed the door. Harriet was rattling the keys of her typewriter so fast now that her desk shook. When the clock struck twelve she jammed on her hat, and walked out without saying yes, aye or no. She didn't even powder her nose. She didn't give a glance toward Nancy, whose head was bent low over her work.

"Of course we want you to come to lunch with us," Wescott said when they came out of the inner office, hats in hand. "You two must have a great deal to talk about."

Nancy accepted the invitation, she could not have told why, except that she did not want to make excuses. She couldn't trust her own voice.

At the table John explained that he was on his way to Chicago to make a report and get instructions where to go next. He had to catch a 1:15 train so they had to hurry. On the way to the station Nancy sat between them in Westcott's roadster. Both had proposed marriage.

Could a girl be in love with two men at the same time?

Nancy looked from one to the other. She closed her eyes.

* * *

At the station while Westcott went to the back of the car to get John's bag, John leaned over to Nancy.

"I'm waiting for my answer," he said.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Price, Love?

"ALAS, alas!" saith Saint Valentine, "when will mortals cease from folly and become wise to their own hearts? When will they discover that LOVE is life's carburetor, and that all things else are as nothing beside it!"

* * *

"Go to! They are as babes that play with paper hearts and candy kisses! They are as children that play with fireworks, and wail at burned fingers.

* * *

"Behold, I have watched them and wept! For there is no trinket in Fate's basket so trivial, no bauble so tawdry, that men and women will not eagerly offer to barter Love in exchange for it!

* * *

"Lo, how cheerfully will a woman cast aside love for a string of pearls and an imported car, for a gilt coronet and a little limelight.

* * *

"Alas, how many a damsel hath renounced love for the sake of wearing an Eastern mink coat instead of a Japanese mink coat. Even for a slight difference in the location of a little animal!

* * *

"Yea, how many a youth hath blithely exchanged love for a few tawdry adventures, which bored him to death after the third kiss, and called it 'freedom!'

* * *

"How many a perfect and beautiful love hath been risked and lost for a passing sex attraction and a few hours' dalliance under a summer moon!

* * *

"How many a young love hath been sacrificed upon the altar of a silly prejudice! Even for a mere difference of opinion as to what kind of candles to burn upon the altar of the same God! A difference of taste in national anthems!

* * *

"How many loves have been sold out cheap in the name of ambition, and cheerfully renounced for a 'career!' Even for half a column of space in the newspapers, after thou art dead!

* * *

"Go to, ye foolish mortals! When will ye learn that naught in all the world bringeth joy unless LOVE cometh in the same package?

* * *

"When will ye cease to be as a child which tradeth off a first water diamond for a handful of chips?

* * *

"When will ye discover that of all tragedies, there is none so great as to go through life WITHOUT love?

* * *

"When will ye perceive that Love is worth ANY price which thou shalt pay for it? And that he who SELLETH love, for whatsoever price, cheateth himself?

* * *

"Alas, alas!" saith Saint Valentine, "when will mortals become wise to their own hearts? When will they discover that Love is life's carburetor, without which all else is 'just junk?'"

Horoscope

Friday, February 15

A PARTICULARLY important and interesting day is forecast by the aspects of Luna to leading planets. There will be much constructive work for new projects, for government or diplomatic activities, or affiliations with combines or "rings," but beware lest idle report becloud the best interests. The incentive to secret deals and sharp practice must be subdued if the good fortune prefigured is to be reaped. Social and domestic pleasure is shown.

Those whose birthdate it is are confronted by a year of great opportunity, possibly with excellent openings with the government, diplomacy or with close corporations or secret "rings;" but a sinister note is heard, with slanderous report and treachery, possibly incited by a leaning to sharp deals and fraudulent methods, which would be ruinous to the best interests.

A child born on this day may have many fine qualities for success and important position, but a predisposition to fraud and double dealing should be guarded against.

Queen of Hearts -:- By Madge Geyer

QUEEN of Hearts? Yes, but on this day of lovers
How she wishes there were but one to which she Could lay claim—and forget all else in the Thrill of knowing they were each for the other.
Perhaps, though this day may be the last when she reign
Securely over all hearts. Perhaps this may be the Day
On which she swear allegiance to but One—and that One
King of her heart and she Queen of His for all time to come.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Turns to Madge's Father for Counsel

WITH hands that were slightly tremulous Lillian folded the note she had just written to her old friend, Helen Brixton, and looked over at Katherine and me. There was no mirthful comment on Katherine's lips now as there had been when Lillian had read us the answer to Samuel Brixton's letter, which was to enclose the one to his wife. Both of us knew Lillian Underwood's capacity for loyal, loving friendship, and knew that this message from her troubled past, when Helen Brixton had been her best friend, had moved her strongly.

"Will it do?" Lillian asked, as meekly as if she were a schoolgirl submitting a "bread and butter letter" for her mother's criticism.

"I don't see how you could better it," I told her, and Katherine promptly seconded my verdict.

"Then, that's that," Lillian said, rising and putting both letters in her desk. "I'll copy them and get them off on the first mail tomorrow."

"Why don't you type Mr. Brixton's and keep a carbon," I suggested.

"Thanks, I'll just do that little thing," she answered, and returning to her chair, sat down in it and stretched her arms high above her head.

"The well-known aspen has nothing on me in shakiness over this," she confessed. "Allah knows I'm used to fighting my own battles and sizing up people without asking advice of what Mrs. Ticer calls 'the opposite sects,' but I would like a man on this job. Oh!" as I started to speak, "either Harry or Dicky would stick around if I asked them to, but they wouldn't be of any aid in sizing up Sam Brixton, for they're too prejudiced on account of—the—past. But I feel as though it would take a man—I don't mean just anybody but one of keen mentality to penetrate the murk which Sam Brixton calls his soul."

"Madge is probably too modest to call your attention to the fact that her father answers your description. Get your letters off and give me the telegram when it arrives," Katherine said quietly.

Lillian struck one hand against the other.

"I told you this thing had me goofy," she said. "The blessed old chief! He's been away so long that I had forgotten he was available for wise counsel again. I'll tell him about this tomorrow —"

Her voice trailed away dispiritedly and there was unconscious appeal in her eyes. I answered it promptly.

"You've had enough of this for a while," I said. "Fix up your letters, then give me your copies and the one from Mr. Brixton. I'll show them to father and tell him all about it. You can be sure he won't say anything to you about it until the guests arrive. Then he'll do anything you wish."

"You blessed child!" Lillian said fervently. "I am fed up with this thing and it's getting on my nerves, I guess."

"Why do you need to think of it again until they get here?" I asked. "You've only two details to think of, and I will attend to everything else."

Katherine nodded an assent, then looked keenly at Lillian.

"I prescribe an immediate dose of sleep," she said. "Madge, will you keep an eye on Junior's room so if he wakes up—which I doubt—you can get him a drink of water? I'm going to give this lady an alcohol rub and tuck her in for the night."

I went out of the room abruptly, for I had caught a look on Lillian's face which told me that she was very near nervous tears, something so rare in her routine that it frightens me when I see them. But I knew that Katherine could calm her if anyone could, and as I sat in the darkened upper hall I blessed my little kinswoman's tact and insight.

It was half an hour before Katherine came into the hall, and then she drew me into her own room and closed the door before speaking.

"She's asleep," she said, "but I don't want to take any chance of her waking and hearing me. Tell me did she have anything upset her today besides this Brixton matter?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Congratulate Him

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I learned today of the marriage of a young man friend of mine. I have known this boy all my life. I went to high school with him, also went out with him regularly for about a year. He, as well as his family, have always treated me beautifully. In the past two years we have seen each other about three times, because he moved to another part of the state. Under the circumstances, is it proper that I write him a note of congratulation? If so, just what should I say? L. S.

YES. I am sure that your friend would be most happy to have your note of congratulations and best wishes, and it is quite proper for you to write to him on this felicitous occasion. Tell him of your delight in having the good news of his engagement, of your hearty congratulations, and of your sincere wishes for his happiness. Express, too, the hope that you are soon to know his wife.

No Pink Paper

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When introduced to a lady, should a gentleman remove his glove before shaking hands?

2. Is "Pardon my glove" good form at any time?

3. Should a lady offer her hand first upon being introduced to a gentleman?

4. Please tell me if you consider my handwriting good form and is my letter in good form?

INTERESTED READER.

YES.

2. No, the glove should be removed and then there is no reason for saying this awkward phrase.

3. Yes. The gentleman waits for this signal from her that she wishes to shake hands.

4. Yes, your letter is well written and your handwriting is very good, unusually interesting, in fact. But your letter paper is awful—we should never use pink paper!

Formal Attire

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to attend a dance given by a large organization and the ticket reads "Formal." Would it be good form for me to wear a dark business suit or is it necessary that I wear a Tuxedo?

ROBERT.

STRICTLY speaking, "Formal" means that a gentleman wears evening clothes. But usually, at a dance, dinner jackets (the Tuxedo) are worn. The business suit would not at all be correct.

Sets Style

This lovely New York girl, now appearing in George White's famous "Scandals," has plenty of personality. Not only has she won Broadway's admiration by the cleverness of her acting and dancing, but she has literally "set the style" for Fifth Avenue by the way she dresses her hair.

"Girls in my position must do everything to keep their appearance pleasing," says Miss Manners. "But I lead such a busy life that I can use only the simplest methods. I know I have discovered the easiest way of doing my hair. It's so popular now here in New York. It keeps my hair so easily manageable that I can dress it any way I want and it stays in place wonderfully. All I do is put a little Danderine on my brush every time I use it. My hair was dull and wiry before I started using Danderine. Now it's so bright and sparkling and so soft and fluffy that every one compliments me. Danderine soothes my scalp and keeps away all traces of dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so clean I don't need to shampoo half as often as I used to."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from the hair, brings out its natural color, makes it fairly sparkle. It keeps your hair soft and easily manageable while you're letting it grow to the new length. It helps stop dandruff. It is delightfully fragranced, isn't oily, doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 25c bottles. Over five million used in a year.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Expert Care Needed for Swollen Glands

MOTHERS never fail to command my respect and admiration. They have great responsibilities. Their watchfulness is responsible for the early discovery of conditions quickly relieved by good treatment.

DR. COPELAND

Many times I have told you that disease is not a mean enemy. If you are at all watchful there are plain signs, given a long time in advance, of what attack is to be made. If you heed these warnings and are governed accordingly, you will escape untold misery.

Little babies have limited means of informing you about these early symptoms. It is the mother's alertness that discovers them.

Among the conditions I have in mind are enlarged glands. Of course the baby can't locate them with its tiny hands. But the eager mother is quick to discover there is something wrong under the delicate skin.

The common place to find those swollen glands is just below the jawbone, in the tissues of the neck. There may be a single lump of considerable size, or a number of smaller ones.

As they are felt by the finger, it is found the lumps are somewhat movable. Under gentle pressure they slide away, slipping past the finger end.

Pressure on the swollen gland may cause the child to jerk away, or to cry. This shows that tenderness accompanies the swelling. The degree of tenderness depends on the extent of the inflammation present.

If there is such inflammation and it grows worse, the swelling and tenderness increase. There may be redness of the skin over the swollen glands. The redness may increase and the swelling may grow more pronounced. Ultimately the skin may be so stretched it looks as if it would burst.

The more suddenly a trouble develops the less likely it is to be serious. Of course, there are many exceptions to this rule, but in general it is correct. The slowly developing, tedious, persistent ailments are apt to be more harmful in the long run. The resistance of the body wears out in the face of prolonged attacks.

Enlargement of the glands coming on suddenly indicates the probability of infection somewhere. Inflammation in the mouth, adenoids or diseased tonsils may cause the neck glands to inflame. Disease of the scalp may be the chief factor at fault for enlarged glands in the back of the neck. A running ear may disturb the glands below or back of the ear.

Slowly developing glandular swelling, involving one gland after another, is a more serious condition. In some cases it may be due to tuberculosis. In any event, it requires skillful attention.

You need not lose sleep over the discovery of enlarged glands. But you should lose no time in seeing a doctor for advice.

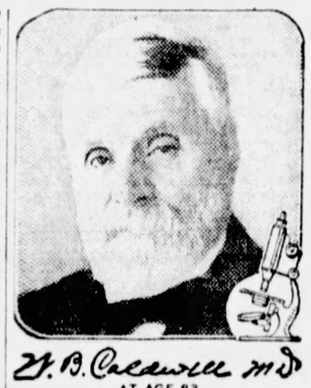
Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription



W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

RICHARD KOEHLER

Penn. Mother Knew the Way

Every mother knows what it means when her child begins to get underweight, pale, listless, bilious, feverish and fretful, with bad breath, coated tongue and no appetite. What every one of them doesn't know is that it's dangerous to use harsh methods to start the little stomach and bowels.

There's no use experimenting in such cases. Millions of mothers have proved the merit and reliability of pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup. It gently clears up the most stubborn cases of constipation; stimulates the appetite; gives tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels so they continue to act normally of their own accord; and makes pale, lifeless children, bright, rosy-cheeked and full of energy.

A Pennsylvania mother, Mrs. F. Koehler, 250 Ithan St., Philadelphia, says: "My little son, Richard, developed constipation. He became bilious, pale and fretful; had no appetite and couldn't digest right. Being the mother of five children and having used California Fig Syrup with them for nine years, I knew how good it is, so I gave it to Richard. It regulated him quick. He began eating heartily and digesting everything. Soon he was his robust, happy self again."

Ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Our Daily Short Story

CASE AFFIRMED

By William Allen Ward

FOR six weeks Chisel Grimes and Silent Mulvey had worked secretly on their scheme to make a getaway. Chisel faced life in Huntsville for his part in a Fort Worth holdup, while Silent Mulvey had drawn the death penalty for an oil field killing near Burkburnett.

Mulvey claimed "'twas an accident." He pointed with pride to his 30 years in gangland without a killing . . . He knew the danger of killing a man. Texas believed in taking a life for a life! Mulvey admitted plugging a cafe keeper, but declared he was trying to stage a "peaceful" holdup and that he didn't really intend for his pistol to discharge.

Grimes and Mulvey were lodged in the Fort Worth jail while their cases were on appeal. Smart lawyers, trying to find loop holes in the law, carried the cases up from the lower courts. Meanwhile Grimes and Mulvey were taken to substantial jails and held without bond pending action of the appellate court.

It was midnight. A sullen October cloud brooded over the great city. Other prisoners slept or amused themselves at cards or in exchanging jokes with companions. But Mulvey and Grimes were busy. With sharp steel chisels smuggled to them by crafty confederates outside, they were digging through the brick wall of the prison. Mulvey and Grimes were in cells on the sixth floor of the Criminal Courts building. They planned to use their bed blankets to make a rope to be used in escaping through the hole.

"It's big enough," said Grimes in a low tone, "let's cut the blankets and make a rope . . . then, all that is left to be done is to remove the bricks . . . the mortar already has given away to our chisels."

An hour later the prisoners fastened the improvised rope to the steel bed post. Everything was in readiness for the getaway.

"Who goes first?" asked Grimes.

"We'll cut cards," said Grimes, "the high card man makes his getaway first."

Mulvey, under the death penalty, was burning with desire to flee. He heard footsteps! The steps were down the corridor.

"The guard," he thought.

"It's a trade," said Mulvey, "cut the cards first!"

The footsteps were louder.

Mulvey was crazed with fear. In his distorted mind he could hear the footsteps of the warden coming down the somber death chamber to call him to the chair.

Grimes cut the cards. His was the king of spades!

"A hard card to beat," said Mulvey.

But Mulvey had not forgotten the days in the oil fields when he played poker when taking a "layoff" from hijacking.

Mulvey knew as well as anyone that a deck of cards held many a trick . . . and that each trick was worth an ace. So—he cut the cards and displayed on his stack an ace—an ace from the bottom.

"You win!" said Grimes.

"Goodby . . . " Mulvey said, as he gripped the rope and started sliding, "goodby, Grimes, they'll never cook me!"

Grimes, watching from above, heard Mulvey's scream for help but could do nothing but watch in terror-stricken awe. He turned away and shut his eyes as Mulvey struck the pavement.

There were foot-steps.

Grimes opened his eyes and looked into the face of Mulvey's attorney.

"Good news for Mulvey," he said, "the higher court has reversed his death penalty . . . "

"Where's Mulvey?" the attorney asked.

Mulvey pointed to the hole in the wall. The rope had snapped near the bed post. The lawyer saw and understood. A guard, standing near, also understood. Grimes was removed to another cell.

For an instant the attorney was silent. Then he scribbled across the case of Silent Mulvey, under death sentence, "case affirmed."

Five-Footer Held In Fake Height Device Sale

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Bernard Bernard, 38, who is just 5 feet 1 inch tall, was arrested by postal inspectors, who charged him with using the mails to defraud in the sale of a device which he represented would increase the height of his clients.

Postal Inspector L. E. Miller said Bernard's scheme included a cradle and pulley to be attached to the ceiling and a rope to the client on the floor which he claimed would "lengthen the bones of the spine."

He is said to have made $10,000 by the device during 1928.

A New Complexion in 5 Minutes

Lighten Your Skin, Reduce Enlarged Pores, Banish Blackheads, Eruptions and Oily Skin

Five Minutes Works Wonders

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Not being a cold cream, it cannot grow hair on the face. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow skin to ivory-white and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. The dollar size holds three fifty-cent bottles. Get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It's Guaranteed!

"One thing my daughter must be told"

—Says a mother of today about an old hygienic problem

The intelligent mother is careful to protect the health and insure the comfort of her daughter by advising the use of this scientific sanitary protection

IN homes where progress has kept pace with the times, daughters are growing up without the unhappy self-consciousness of former days. Mothers who have learned the great advantages of Kotex naturally advise their daughters of its superiorities over old-fashioned makeshift methods of sanitary protection. The result means a carefree composure, never before possible.

New perfections in Kotex

One of the most important of recent improvements in this scientifically designed sanitary pad is a patented* process which deodorizes safely and thoroughly! No other napkin offers this advantage.

Because corners of the pad are rounded and tapered, it may be worn without evidence under the most clinging gown. There is none of that conspicuous bulkiness so often associated with old-fashioned methods. And you can adjust the filler to suit your own special needs.

It is easily disposed of, no laundering is necessary. A new process makes it softer than ever before. And, finally, Cellucotton absorbent wadding takes up 16 times its own weight in moisture, which is 5 times more than cotton itself.

Buy a box of Kotex today. It is 45c for a box of 12 at any drug, dry goods or department store; also obtainable through vending cabinets in restrooms by West Disinfecting Co.

Use Super-size Kotex
Formerly 90c—now 65c

Super-size Kotex differs from Regular Kotex only in giving the extra protection of additional layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding. The advantages in using it in connection with the Regular are thus obvious. Disposable the same way. Doctors and nurses consider it indispensable where extra protection is needed. At the new low price, you can easily afford to buy one box of Super-size to every three of Kotex Regular. Its extra layers of filler mean much in added comfort and security.

Beware of Diets to reduce

Medical authorities warn that reducing has gone too far

MEDICAL authorities are becoming alarmed at the extent to which American girls, women and men are reducing their weight by starvation diets. This has gone too far, they say, and in many cases is resulting in permanent injury.

One famous doctor says: "Starving leads to anemia, which may become so persistent that the tissues are no longer able to form blood in the proper way, even when sufficient food is subsequently supplied to them, and a state of actual starvation throughout life may result." "This," he goes on to say, "is because any method which defeats nature, long carried out, produces disease changes in the body which frequently become permanent."

Another error is the belief by some that sugar in the diet is the only cause of overweight. This is not true. Any food that is nourishing is fattening and nature should be allowed to store a certain amount of fat in the tissues as a reserve supply of energy when it is needed. Don't undereat; it is dangerous. Eat enough of a great variety of foods and enjoy them. Remember that nothing adds so much enjoyment to other foods as sugar. Sweetness is nature's ideal flavor and modern sugar is food in its least expensive form. Put one cup of sugar in the water used for boiling ham and notice the improvement in appetizing flavor. Be sure of tasteful variety in food. The Sugar Institute.

MAXWELL HOUSE COFFEE

A shade of difference in flavor that WON AMERICA

Bred in Dixie's tradition of good living, he had the expert's interest in flavor and he was dissatisfied with all the coffees he had ever tasted. Piquant, or mild, rich and syrupy, or acidly "winy"—none of them seemed to him quite perfect. So he had the happy inspiration to create a new flavor to suit himself.

Through months of experimenting he combined and tested and re-combined choice coffees. Skillfully he mingled flavors and shades of flavors until at last he had a blend, deep and rich and mellow—yet lively and sparkling—which delighted even his critical palate.

That delicious blend is Maxwell House Coffee, named for the famous old Maxwell House in Nashville, Tennessee, where this coffee won its first renown.

The flower of Southern society gathered at the brilliant balls and banquets given at the old Maxwell House. Marvelous Southern cooking, real Southern hospitality, characterized its entertainment—and the coffee was its special boast. "Good to the last drop," the guests proclaimed it, and "Good to the last drop" it has come to be widely known.

Within his own lifetime, "the Old Colonel" has seen the popularity of the blend he created spread throughout the whole United States—the first coffee ever to become a national favorite. Wherever you live—North, South, East or West—your grocer carries Maxwell House Coffee, sealed in the blue-wrapped tin to protect all its fragrance and flavor.

Fight Backers Hopeful See Profit in Florida Susce Ready for Test

SULLIVAN-KILRAIN BATTLE IS RECALLED

HOW much faith he has in his own predictions, or to what extent he intends them merely for effect upon the outside world, can only be surmised, but William F. Carey, vice president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of New York, who is on the ground at Miami Beach in active charge of the arrangements for the Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling fistic show on February 27, prophesies with every appearance of sincerity that the affair is going to be a money-maker.

William F. Carey.

Just why such a feeble attraction should draw even expenses has not been clear to experienced members of the fistic fraternity, and it has been freely predicted that the thing would go into boxing history as the "Florida Flop." But Carey insists that the dopesters are all wrong, and that the show is going to yield a profit. He figures that receipts of $255,000 will give the promoters an even break and asserts that more than that sum has been taken in already; that there is sufficient cash in hand right now to insure the Tex Rickard's successors against loss.

"LET us assume that the total gate is $300,000," Carey said. "The taxes, even with the government taking 25 per cent on everything over $5, will not average more than 20 per cent. That means $60,000, leaving $240,000. Stribling's 20 per cent would amount to $48,000, and Sharkey's guarantee is $100,000. The arena will cost $23,000 and the preliminary bouts $7,000.

"Odds and ends of promotion will not go more than $15,000. That would leave us $45,000 to the good on an intake of $300,000. We have taken in as much money already as the show will cost, and that does not include $93,000 worth of tickets out on consignment. Basing my predictions on the way tickets are moving now, I look for the fight to draw between $350,000 and $400,000. And no one will be able to come back to me after the show and tell me that I misrepresented things for publicity purposes."

WHEN Manager Burt Shotton leads his Philly pitchers and catchers out of Philadelphia toward Winter Haven, Fla., two weeks hence, George Susce, youthful Oakland giant and former catcher of the Schenley High School team, will be in the entourage.

After finishing up at Schenley Susce worked out with the Quakers when they came to Forbes Field. His actions and manner were so well liked by Manager Shotton that he immediately tendered George a fine contract, together with a liberal bonus for signing.

George Susce.

WEIGHING about 190 pounds in condition, this youngster of Slavish extraction is an unusual athletic specimen. He starred at football for Schenley before going to Bellefonte Academy, where he proved a brilliant fullback in his one year at the insttution. For baseball, however, he appeared to have a stronger liking. George played with County League clubs last summer his teammates and rivals pronouncing him a fine prospect. He is a hitter of the slugging type and an aggressive receiver. Shotton states that he expects to keep Susce as third-string catcher, without farming him out.

AT A testimonial banquet in the William Penn Hotel tonight, the sports writers of Pittsburgh and hundreds of invited guests, including a number of world-famous figures, will join in paying tribute to one of this city's own notables of the sporting realm, a man who in his own particular sphere has been and still is just as great a star and just as fine a character as any of the luminaries that will gather to do him honor.

The individual to whom this tribute will be paid is John H. Gruber, dean of Pittsburgh sports writers, 75 years young, and for 35 consecutive years official baseball scorer for the National League in this city. The length of time that Mr. Gruber has served as scorer is alone sufficient to establish a record for him, to put him out in front as the oldest man still active in that capacity in the United States.

BUT the period of his service is the least notable part of it. Of minor note, too, is the fact that for scoring accuracy and knowledge of the rules he is without an equal, past or present.

The greatest item of all is that from one end of the country to the other he is recognized as the personification of impartiality and square-shooting, a man than whom no scorer or writer in the game is a stronger stickler for all that is fair and honorable.

THERE never is any home team on the field in the eyes of Mr. Gruber. There are always two clubs out there and he sees

GAMES TONIGHT

Ottawa at Montreal.
Canadiens at Chicago.
N. Y. Rangers at Toronto.
Detroit at N. Y. Americans.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Jerry Lowery will make his debut as a Pirate and George Owen, former Harvard all-America gridder, will make his local bow as a big league iceman at Duquesne Garden tonight when the Pirates meet the bruising Bruins of Boston.

Lowery is the sturdy wingman whom the Toronto Leafs sent here in exchange for Harold Cotton. The deal was put through Tuesday night and Lowery reported to Manager Odia Cleghorn here yesterday evening. He is to be assigned to the reserve line, and local officials are confident that he will give the Bucs a more powerful scoring punch.

GRID FANS TO TURN OUT

Although Owen won nation-wide fame while carrying the Crimson football banner of Harvard, he never has appeared in National Hockey competition here. He probably will attract many grid fans to the Craig street arena, and Mickey MacKay, a former Pirate who went to Boston when Frederickson came here, will help Lowery and Owen make tonight's program an exceptionally attractive one. Mickey has not played here since he was sent to Boston several weeks ago, but reports of his fine work as a Bruin have been received regularly, and local interest in his activities is far from dead.

And the Bruins are just as interesting as a group as they are individually. A few weeks ago they hung up a winning streak of 13 games, the longest success string turned in in the National League in several seasons, and they are the only club in the circuit that the Pirates have neither beaten nor tied this season.

Now that the Hub skaters have found the Bucs an easy mark. Two of their three triumphs over the locals were by the slender margins of 1-0, and in their last meeting at Boston, the Bruins won by 3-2 in one of the most thrilling bouts of the season. The rivalry between the Bucs and Bruins ever has been very keen, and tonight's fray probably will be a fury of action from gong to gong.

The Pirates, incidentally, were the skaters who helped the Bruins to start their 13-game winning streak a few weeks ago. Tonight the Bucs hope to reverse the decision and use the Bruins to start a winning streak of their own. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh Athletic Association's swimming team is in Cleveland today. It will meet the Cleveland Athletic Club tonight in a dual meet. The local team includes William J. Wright, William J. Geissinger, Herbert Simpson, Scotty Moore, Henry Stanton, J. E. Weaver, Joseph Beacon, John Law and Jay LeFevre.

WESTMINSTER HANDS TECH DRUBBING

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 14.—Westminster scored its ninth victory in 10 starts by overwhelming Carnegie Tech of Pittsburgh, 40 to 21, here last night. Outside of the first few minutes of play, the United Presbyterians had the game well in hand, adding point after point when the Plaid defense weakened.

Delahunty and Crowell, the latter a substitute, shared the major portion of the scoring honors with the former, getting three from the field and the sub registering four. A flock of substitutes more than held their own with the Carnegie passers during the final half.

The score at half time found Westminster leading, 17 to 10, after a hectic first session which brought out the best in the Tartan passers. The United Presbyterians' defense tightened after the rest period with the result that only White was able to crash through for Carnegie to register more than one field goal. The lineup:

Westminster—40.		Tech—21.
O'Donovan	F.	Nease
Delahunty	F.	Crum
Brownlee	C.	Merton
T. Lewis (A. C.)	G.	(C.) White
Rice	G.	Hill

Score at half time—Westminster, 17; Carnegie Tech, 10.

Substitutions—Crowell for Brownlee, W. Lewis for Delahunty, Kocheran for O'Donovan, Cieszenski for T. Lewis, Amos for W. Lewis, Fisher for Rice, Bair for Cieszenski, Campbell for Merton, Brown for Crum, Fox for Merton, White for Hkn. Kilgore for Nease.

Referee—Al Slack.
Umpire—Dan Brickley.

Heydler Picks Cubs as Best In National

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs, if their pitching staff performs as well this season as it did last, stands a fair chance to win the National League pennant, in the opinion of President John A. Heydler, of the circuit.

"For the past two years," he said, "we have been weather-bound, and if the weatherman gives us a break this season it should be one of the best in the league's history. Six clubs in the circuit will be hard to beat, and winning ball clubs are necessary to make the turnstiles click.

"Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Pittsburgh have strong ball clubs, Brooklyn looks good on paper and the Phillies are a greatly improved aggregation and will do more this season than they have done in several years."

Burns to Pilot Springfield Club

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—George Burns, former outfielder of the New York Giants, has been appointed manager of the Springfield Eastern League baseball club.

COUNTY LEAGUE LEAD PRIZE TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

Action galore is promised the followers of the Allegheny County League race tonight when the Goldensons and Duquesne Lafayettes battle for first place at the South Side Market House, while the Enoch Rauhs and Miele-Franchinas renew their old feud at Columbus Temple.

The Goldensons and Lafayettes are tied for first place in the second round of the County League fight and the outcome of tonight's contest will decide to a great extent whether or not there will be a playoff at the close of the season. The Lafayettes, two-time winner of the championship, have captured the first-round laurels and in event they win tonight there will be little chance of any other contenders overtaking them down the home stretch.

The Felders appear at Greenfield and Alumni opposes the Conleys in the two P. & O. League games on the schedule tonight. The Greenfield passers who play their home games at Hamilton School have been staging a fine comeback after a mediocre showing in the first round and they are favorites to win over the Jeannette quintet.

Pope Racquets Coach At Keystone Club

The appointment of Benjamin F. Pope, of New York City, as the squash racquets professional for the Keystone Athletic Club, third avenue and Wood street, was announced today by Harry Hainsworth, athletic director of the club. The appointment takes effect tomorrow it is announced.

BARNARD FIRST TO ARRIVE IN CITY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Notables began pouring into Pittsburgh early this morning for the first annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, to be held in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel tonight as a testimonial to John H. Gruber, 74-year-old veteran local official scorer and former sports editor. Meanwhile sportsmen to the number of approximately 750, the capacity of the dining hall, were making ready to observe the occasion and make it one of the gala events in the city's sporting history.

E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, was the first of the honor guests to arrive. He was followed by Capt. Biff Jones, head coach of the Army football squad, who came from West Point; Judge Walter P. Steffen, head coach of Carnegie Tech, who came from Chicago; Head Coach S. S. Willaman, of Ohio State, and Leo Raskowski, star tackle of the Buckeyes, who came from Columbus, and others. Former Gov. John K. Tener, a former big league pitcher and National League president, will arrive late this afternoon from his home in Charleroi.

LUNCHEON HELD

As fast as they arrived the distinguished visitors were taken in tow by the reception committee and their stay in the city was made pleasant. The early comers were entertained at a luncheon at the Keystone Athletic Club in which Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, former Pitt coach, who has been here several days from California for the festivities participated.

The diners will sit down to the tables at 6 o'clock this evening and it has been decided to defer the vaudeville features of the program until after the eating has been dispensed with, for the reason that the guests can do better justice to the meal if their minds are not distracted by the entertainment and the entertainers can do their stuff better without the aid of musical soup. The performers will work on a stage and will sandwich in their acts between the end of the meal and the time the toastmaster, Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills, rises to start off the verbal fireworks.

Every branch of sport will be represented among the guests, and it will be the biggest get-together party ever arranged here along these lines. Oldtimers will share the spotlight with the stars of today and considerable reminiscing appears inevitable.

NOTABLES TO SPEAK

The speakers will include former Gov. Tener, President E. S. Barnard, of the American League; Frank Calder, of Montreal, president of the National Hockey League; Mayor Charles H. Kline, Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the Pirates; John (Honus) Wagner, baseball's great of another day; Sam Willaman, the Ohio State coach; Ed F. Balinger, chairman of the local chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association, who will introduce the toastmaster; Harvey J. Boyle, state boxing commissioner and member of the staff of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who will introduce Gruber, and Gruber himself. The Rev. August A. Vogt, of West View, will say the invocation. All of the speeches will be short and notables who are not called upon to speak will be introduced to the guests.

The banquet hall has been especially decorated with a sporting atmosphere for the evening, and everything is set for the kickoff. The doors will open at 5:30, and it is hoped to get the affair over with

GUS DEFENDS TITLE

PITT DEFEATS W. & J. FIVE BY 38-18

By JESS CARVER.

Pitt scored a decisive 38-18 victory over W. and J. in a Big Four basketball game in the Stadium pavilion last night. Eddie Baker, of the Panthers, and McKissock, smart guard of the Presidents, were the stars of the game.

The Panthers employed the stalling tactics of Middle Western teams during the first half, which ended with the locals on the long end of a 15-12 count. Wash-Jeff was playing a steady, heady defensive game. McKissock, given Hyatt to guard, did so very effectively, holding the Panther ace to a single field goal. Hyatt, however, was intrusted with the task of starting Pitt's plays, and handled the ball three-quarters of the time for Pitt.

Field goals by Zehfuss and Baker, one by Hyatt and fouls tossed through by Zehfuss, Wunderlich, Hyatt and Baker, five out of five in all, gave the Panthers their 15 points in the first period. Adam Saunders, with a brace of buckets, and diminutive Hoskins, Morty Robinson and McKissock, with one each accounted for W.-J.'s 12.

In the second half, Dr. Carlson gave the word to open up a bit more to his Pitt team, and there was noticeably less stalling during the last 20 minutes. McKissock kept on Hyatt's tail, though the latter sank two field goals, but Robinson found it difficult indeed to keep pace with Baker, who slipped four shots through the net.

PREXIES' DEFENSE POOR

Zehfuss scored another goal, Wunderlich made one and Ray Montgomery, the Warwood Adonis, also broke the scoring ice of Pitt. Fouls were contributed by Hyatt, three; Baker, one, and Willie Artiture, one, to make up the 23 points.

Wash-Jeff's offense was practically nil, only one field goal being scored in the entire period. Robinson threw this one from out in front early in the half. Four fouls completed Wash-Jeff's scoring for the evening.

The lineup:

Pitt—38.		Wash-Jeff—18.
Zehfuss	F	Hoskins
Hyatt	F	Robinson
A. Cohen	C	Saunders
Baker	G	Gilchrist
Wunderlich (C.)	G	McKissock

Score by periods:

Pitt	15	23—38
Wash-Jeff	12	6—18

Fouls—Pitt, Zehfuss, 2 out of 2; Hyatt, 4 out of 4; Baker, 2 out of 3; Wunderlich, 1 out of 2; Artiure, 1 out of 2; Wash-Jeff, Hoskins, 1 out of 1; Robinson, 3 out of 4; Saunders, 2 out of 3; Gilchrist, 0 out of 1.

PIRATES OPEN SEASON HERE APRIL 24

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Sunday dates for Boston stand out as the big innovation in the National League schedule made public today. The Braves are listed for 12 Sunday games on their own field as a result of the new legislation written by the Massachusetts commonwealth.

GOOD HOLIDAY BILL

The Pirates, as usual, get a heavy allotment of Saturday and holiday attractions, Forbes Field patrons will see their favorites in action on 15 Saturdays and the three big holidays—Memorial Day, July 4 and Labor Day. The Cubs, Cardinals and Reds will be the holiday attractions in the order named.

The Pirates will jump off this season against the Cubs at Wrigley Field in Chicago, and the Bruins will help to inaugurate the season at Forbes Field about one week later.

The season will get under way Tuesday, April 16, and will close Sunday, October 6, the starting and finishing dates being moved back almost one week as compared with previous drafts.

Donie Bush and his athletes will play four games with the Cubs in Chicago beginning April 16. After completing this series they will move to Cincinnati for three games with the Reds on succeeding afternoons.

SUNDAY DATES ADDED

An open date is provided for the Pirates after they leave Cincinnati. They are due in Pittsburgh on April 23 to make ready for the home opener on Wednesday, April 24.

The adopted schedule shows several changes over the original drafts, the Pirates being affected by each of them. In two cases, June 9 and Sept. 8, the Buccos will have to make one-day Sunday jumps to Brooklyn, week-day games on August 13 and 26 being canceled to provide the two Sunday games.

The added Sunday dates cut out a peculiar twist that had been arranged in the early drafts. Originally the Freebooters were slated to play in New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia on three successive days beginning August 25, but the removal of the middle date breaks this movement.

PROFIO-RUDY BOX AGAIN TONIGHT

Young Rudy, of Charlerol, and Dominick Profio, of Cecil, do their stuff again tonight. Three weeks ago they put up one of the greatest club fights ever seen in the McKeesport arena, with the hard-hitting Profio carrying off the decision, and, as a result, they have been rematched for the same ring. The fans look for a repeat of their hurricane number.

Phil Scello, of McKeesport, and Jackie Murray, of the Hill, box the semi-final; Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, and Lee Sala, of Donora, meet in the second bout and Bob Collura, of Beechview, and Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, will open the show.

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, reports his biggest advance sale for his show tomorrow night, which will feature Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, and Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, in the 10-round main bout. Red Ryan, of Washington, Pa., and Buck McTiernan box the semi-final, Patsy Young and Andy Stahura meet in the second bout and Georgie Tomosky and Nat Litkin show in the opener.

SMACKEY AT CLARKSBURG

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Joe Eirene, of the North Side, clash at Steubenville tonight. Sammy Paris, of the Hill, boxes Young Ketchel in the semi-final.

An eight-bout amateur boxing card made up of local talent will be held at the P. A. A. on the night of March 9.

Bobby Young, of Duquesne, who has been boxing lately around Detroit, wants to meet Young Gizzy at any of the clubs in this section. He is under the management of Charles Moore, of Detroit, who is represented in this section by Jules Beck, of Duquesne.

Sammy Novia, Atlantic City featherweight, who a few weeks ago fought Al Singer at the Arena in Philadelphia, was a visitor in Pittsburgh yesterday with his manager, Bill Thompson, former Pittsburgh Collegian and Federal League baseball star, who now resides at Atlantic City. Complaints Are Granted Against Braves, Brusse

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Complaints charging the Boston National League Baseball Company and O. J. Brusse, secretary of the Outdoor Recreation League, with violation of the corrupt practices act, were granted by Judge Charles T. Carr, of the Municipal Court, here yesterday.

The complaints, returnable next Wednesday, were granted on application of the attorney general's department, which for several weeks has been investigating the activities of the Braves and the Recreation League in connection with the campaign for the Sunday professional sports law, which was adopted by a referendum at the last election.

SCHMELING HIT BY COMISH

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The New York State Athletic Commission has laid a heavy hand on the shoulder of Max Schmeling, deciding that he must be bound by contracts made by his German manager, Arthur Bulow, whom he is seeking to repudiate, and by no other.

At the same time the Commission passed a brace of rules designed to prevent future controversies of similar nature by curbing the activities of American managers who swarm about visiting heavyweights of promise and checking the custom of assigning "pieces" of fighters to speculators in cauliflowers.

MUST FIGHT FOR BULOW

In the specific case of "The German Dempsey," the Commission announced that neither Schmeling himself nor Joe Jacobs, whom the fighter wants as his manager and who holds 7 per cent of his contract, will be permitted to make his matches, that power belonging to Bulow alone.

Under this ruling, Schmeling must abide by a contract signed by Bulow under which the German is to fight for Jess McMahon, former Madison Square Garden matchmaker, at the new Starlight Arena on his return from Germany, probably some time in April.

WAXMAN STABLE BARRED

Charley Phil Rosenberg, former bantamweight, was suspended for fouling recently in a Syracuse fight, and Bud Taylor was set down for fouling Al Singer at the Garden Friday night.

MANGANS INCREASE LEAD

HEINZ HOUSE VICTOR

Heinz House toppled East Liberty Y, 38-26, in an A. A. U. tourney game last night.

ROUT LEADERS IN TENPIN TOURNEY

New leaders were established yesterday in the doubles and five-men events of the Tri-State tenpin tournament being staged on the Club alleys, downtown, the Old Honesty team, of the Allegheny Social Club, bowling 2,725 to take the top position in the five-men event, while the Bilstian brothers moved into first place in the doubles with 1,168.

Sol Kuchler rolled 599 to enter in a deadlock with Marone, of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, for the lead in the singles.

More changes in the standings are expected during the fourth day of competition, which started at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

HEADQUARTERS AT HOTEL

Announcement was made this morning by John L. Hernon, treasurer of the committee, that all unclaimed reservations may be picked up at Room 1620 in the William Penn Hotel today. The final ticket sale also will be held there. Members of the committee will be on hand all day.

Chillysauce

Among those who came from afar to honor John Gruber is Joe Page, of the traffic department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who also is an honorary member of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. For many years a scout for the White Sox, Joe has long been in charge of the baseball writers' tours into Canada. Page is the guest of Joe Huhn, local newspaperman. The Canadian is one of the men who helped to make hockey a major winter sport in the United States.

President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, came to Pittsburgh today from Philadelphia, where he spent yesterday. The head of the junior league will be one of the principal speakers at tonight's doings.

Barney Dreyfuss, accompanied by Mrs. Dreyfuss, will leave Pittsburgh tonight for New York on the first lap of a long jaunt to California. Mr. and Mrs. Dreyfuss will enjoy a two weeks' cruise via the Panama Canal. They probably will spend some time with the Buccaneers at the Paso Robles camp.

Sam Dreyfuss, Sam Watters, Jewel Ens, Dr. William Marks and others will represent the Pittsburgh club at the festive board tonight. The treasurer of the club is down for one of the speeches of the evening, but Sam last night opined there might be an open season declared on long talks so he plans to complete his act quite a bit under the 10-minute limit.

SCHAEFER AGAIN 18.2 CHAMP

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Jake Schaefer, Chicago star, beat back the courageous rally of Welker Cochran, former champion, to regain his 18.2 balkline billiard crown in the final match of the International series. Schaefer, tournament victor in 1921 and 1925, won 400 to 328.

Schaefer's victory gave him a record of four wins and one defeat in the tournament that opened with a field of six at the Lotos Club February 4. Schaefer has held the title five times in all. He won it back in a challenge match from Edouard Horemans, after losing to the Belgian champion in 1925, and defeated Cochran in another challenge match in 1928, following the Californian's tournament victory in 1927.

both of them in the same light. It is the same with individual players. He would scorn to think of playing a favorite. They all look alike to him, and the play has yet to be made in Pittsburgh that Mr. Gruber did not score exactly as he saw it and without regard to any side influence or sentiment. He is not only the country's most experienced and most perfect scorer, but the soul of honor and one of nature's noblemen. Well may the sport world pay tribute to him. No tribute can be equal to what he deserves.

Charley Gelbert.

NO NEWCOMER in the big baseball leagues this spring will be watched more closely than Charley Gelbert, the Cardinals' shortstop recruit from Rochester in the International League. The Redbird bosses are taking a long chance on Gelbert, their action in releasing Rabbit Maranville, Tommy Thevenow and Heinie Sand having left the Rochester rookie as their only bet for the shortfield.

Gelbert, who, by the way is a son of Charley Gelbert, former University of Pennsylvania football star and all-America end in 1894, 1895 and 1896, later a member of the D. C. & A. C. professional team here, has a strong booster in George Toporcer, who played beside him in the Rochester infield. "Gelbert will be a great player," Toporcer said. "The only question is 'When?' To develop properly Gelbert must be in action every day with the Cardinals. They must be prepared to have him lose a game here and there through his inexperience. But there's no doubt in my mind as to the final result. Four or five years hence, Gelbert will be one of the greatest infielders in baseball."

THE last heavyweight championship battle that was fought with bare knuckles was recalled by James P. McHale, in a discussion of th old days with Stan Baumgartner. McHale was one of Jake Kilrain's seconds in the fight at Richburg, Miss., on July 8, 1899, in which Sullivan defended his championship successfully by winning in 75 rounds.

"The battle was waged on turf, a sandy soil," said McHale. "It was hot that day. The thermometer registered 135 in the sun, and after the first 20 rounds, when I went to rub the perspiration off Kilrains legs I took skin and all off. The heat of the sun drew all the resin out of the green pine boards of which the seats were constructed, adding to the stickiness of the afternoon and the discomfort of the 2,000 spectators.

"FRESH water also was scarce. Only the fighters had small tubs of ice. The rest of us had nothing to drink from the time we left New Orleans until we returned 36 hours later. The excitement did not end with the conclusion of the fight, when Mike Donovan tossed in the sponge despite the fact that Kilrain was ready and eager to continue. Coming back to New Orleans by rail we were stopped by the state militia. Fighting in those days was illegal in every state in the Union. The Governor of Mississippi did not learn of the site picked for the fight until the battle was over, and then he sent out the soldiers to arrest the spectators and principals.

"THE militia halted the train and started to uncouple the engine, but as they were about to do so, about 100 Texans, with sawed-off shotguns, led by Bat Masterson, a fast man on the trigger, jumped out of the coaches. 'Uncouple that engine and I'll blow your hand off,' Masterson threatened.

"That was enough to hold off the militia, as they looked into the tense, drawn faces of the Texans who were balancing the sawed-off shotguns on their arms. We were allowed to proceed homeward then, glad it was all over. The period of bare-knuckle fighting surely had an exciting finish that day."

Lawmakers Seek to Punish Abnormal Stock Gambling.

By B. C. FORBES

Washington legislative physicians must have a care lest they apply nostrums bound to do more harm than good.

THAT the ongoings in Wall Street would lead to various dangers and troubles was clearly foreseen and repeatedly voiced in this column. Excesses always court disaster. Excessive speculation long has been rampant.

Let it here be emphasized, however, that "Wall Street" is not solely responsible. "Wall Street" is the nation's chief market place for security dealings, but a very great part of the speculative dealings has originated not in Wall Street or New York, but throughout the rest of the country. Indeed, city after city has jointed with something of pride to the record-breaking activities of its local stock exchange. And those of us who have traveled have been impressed by the fact that the stock speculation is a daily topic of discussion in even the humblest of communities.

Therefore, it is wholly unfair to talk or act as if "Wall Street" was alone responsible for speculative excesses.

THE writer has long counseled a return to sanity, to moderation, to normalcy in stock speculation—incidentally, incurring widespread denunciation for not joining the almost universal whoopee chorus. It could be foreseen by anyone familiar with financial history that the speculative orgy, involving heavier and heavier borrowing, would inevitably bring trouble, not only to unwary gamblers and speculators, but to legitimate industry and business and employment. It was as plain as a pike staff that if speculators outbid everybody else for loanable funds and thereby drained this country and the world of available money and credit, other classes of borrowers, including merchants and manufacturers and other business men, would be denied accommodation except at a cost calculated to restrict enterprise and activity and, ultimately, employment.

WELL, our law-makers have lost little time in getting into action. How bitter the hostility aroused against "Wall Street," and how eager Washington solons are to rush drastic legislation on the statute books can be gathered from these extracts selected from one day's Congressional Record:

Senator Glass: "There is not a thing in the world constructive in the system of pure gambling that menaces the entire commercial and financial fabric of the nation. It is an absurdity and there ought to be some statutory definition made of investment as contradistinguished from pure gambling and laws should be enacted to put these people out of business. It is a matching of the gambling wit against the gambling wit. They do not produce a thing on earth that contributes either to the happiness or to the prosperity of legitimate business."

Senator Heflin: "Wall Street is becoming the most notorious gambling center in the universe. It is the hot-bed and breeding place of the worst form of gambling that ever cursed the country. The Louisiana State Lottery slew its hundreds, but the New York state gambling exchanges slay their hundreds of thousands. The government owes it to itself and to its people to put an end to this monstrous evil."

In the House, Chairman McFadden, of the Banking and Currency Committee, announced he would introduce a resolution before March 4 for an inquiry into the operations of the Federal Reserve Board. He also said he had written asking Gov. Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, if he cared to answer questions contained in a resolution by Representative Black, of New York, concerning the alleged conferences between Gov. Montagu Norman, of the Bank of England, and members of the Reserve Board.

ONE danger is that our Federal Reserve banking system may be thrown into the political vortex, seriously unsettling financial and business confidence. Probably in the end, sensible counsels will prevail and no really harmful legislation passed. But should this be the fortunate outcome, no thanks will be due those who have persistently fanned the flames of abnormal speculation.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

HARBISON HITS NEW TOP PRICE HERE

Harbison's strength was based on its recent earnings showing an increase of 10 per cent in 1928. Earnings on the new stock were equivalent to $2.94 a share on the present 1,440,000 outstanding shares of common stock which represents a four-for-one split-up of the old $100 par common. Net of $4,412,533 for 1928 compares with $4,012,268 the previous year. The 1927 net was equal to $2.66 on the present share basis. Improvements made during 1928 are only partially reflected in the year's report and it is expected that the current year's earnings will show a larger ratio when the full benefits of the improvements and replacements will be felt.

Union Steel Casting, which dropped more than two points yesterday, suffered a further fractional decline and established a new low record early in the session. The company recently passed the dividend as a result of a poor year due to curtailed buying of equipment by the railroads.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was under a little pressure and sagged slightly, but appeared to be meeting good support on the recession. The new D. L. Clark Company shares were steady around 19, comparing with yesterday's high of 20.

In the fuel division, price changes were mixed. Lone Star Gas was in demand and rallied back to 73 following its dip yesterday to 72. Plymouth Oil recorded a new low for the movement on selling induced by the unfavorable aspects of the crude oil situation. Overproduction again faces the industry, although leading interests in the Mid-Continent and Southwest producing areas have been in conference this week looking to the adoption of measures to relieve the pressure of new oil on the markets.

The Pennsylvania Industries, Inc., units offered today at public subscription sold in the unlisted department at 111. The offering price of the units was 110. The units consist of one share of preferred and one-half share of common, the preferred carrying a warrant to purchase one share of common at $30 on or before February 1, 1934.

CHICAGO BOARD

Downturns in Chicago wheat prices today were influenced a good deal not only by the fact that a let-up in the European cold wave was forecast, but also by unexpected setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations. Reports also were circulated that crops in European countries were protected by snow except in parts of France and Belgium which have suffered damage. According to some estimates, 5 to 10 per cent of the winter wheat acreage in France will have to be re-sown with spring wheat.

Good-sized shipments of wheat from Argentina, 6,738,000 bushels for the week as against 5,869,000 bushels a year ago, were mentioned as partly responsible for lower quotations today at Liverpool. On the other hand, the leading British trade authority announced that estimates on world import requirements of wheat had been raised 40,000,000 bushels to 880,000,000 bushels. This amount, however, was still 40,000,000 bushels below a recent German unofficial estimate.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Prospects of warmer weather for Europe led to an early setback today in wheat values here. Before the market swung downward, however, July wheat delivery established a new high-price record for the season. Opening at ¼c off to ¼c up Chicago wheat later underwent a general downturn. Corn also was easier, starting at ⅛ to ⅝c decline, and subsequently holding near to the initial figures. Oats were relatively steady. Provisions tended to advance.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Prices in the curb market rallied at midday today, many issues more than regaining their earlier losses of 1 to 15 points. The opening decline followed heatish overnight letters of many of the larger brokerage houses and uneasiness over the Federal Reserve Bank directors meeting. Call money was in supply after renewing at 6½ per cent.

The early rush to take profits carried most of the utilities off 1 to 7 points. Electric Bond & Share rallied 9 points after a sharp decline, and American Foreign Power warrants napped back 9 points after dropping 7 to 82. United Gas Improvement lost 5 points and American Gas & Electric 3 before rallying. Electric Bond & Share new stock ranged between 86½ and 89.

Automotives were heavy, Auburn and Checker Cab suffering losses. Boeing Aircraft dropped 5 points. The widest decline in the early dealings was a 15-point drop in Crocker Wheeler.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today. Buyers appeared interested at 3.71c for spots duty paid, but holders asked fractionally higher. No sales were reported.

Raw sugar opened unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and a little trade buying, but soon weakened under increased March liquidation, which had an unsettling effect in the later deliveries. Prices at midday were net unchanged to 1 point lower.

Increased spot offerings seemed to discourage aggressive new buying, and trading again consisted largely of exchanging from near to more distant deliveries.

Refined was quiet and prices were unchanged at 4.90c for fine granulated. The trade said it has considerable sugar due on old contracts. Withdrawals were fair but little new inquiry was reported.

Lawmakers Seek to Punish Abnormal Stock Gambling.

By B. C. FORBES

THE abnormal begets the abnormal. Abnormal stock speculation has incited clamor for abnormal corrective measures.

When a doctor discovers an abnormal condition, his aim is to bring back normalcy. But he exercises care lest his medicines kill rather than cure.

Washington legislative physicians must have a care lest they apply nostrums bound to do more harm than good.

THAT the ongoings in Wall Street would lead to various dangers and troubles was clearly foreseen and repeatedly voiced in this column. Excesses always court disaster. Excessive speculation long has been rampant.

Let it here be emphasized, however, that "Wall Street" is not solely responsible. "Wall Street" is the nation's chief market place for security dealings, but a very great part of the speculative dealings has originated not in Wall Street or New York, but throughout the rest of the country. Indeed, city after city has pointed with something of pride to the record-breaking activities of its local stock exchange. And those of us who have traveled have been impressed by the fact that the stock speculation is a daily topic of discussion in even the humblest of communities.

Therefore, it is wholly unfair to talk or act as if "Wall Street" was alone responsible for speculative excesses.

THE writer has long counseled a return to sanity, to moderation, to normalcy in stock speculation—incidentally, incurring widespread denunciation for not joining the almost universal whoopee chorus. It could be foreseen by anyone familiar with financial history that the speculative orgy, involving heavier and heavier borrowing, would inevitably bring trouble, not only to unwary gamblers and speculators, but to legitimate industry and business and employment. It was as plain as a pike staff that if speculators outbid everybody else for loanable funds and thereby drained this country and the world of available money and credit, other classes of borrowers, including merchants and manufacturers and other business men, would be denied accommodation except at a cost calculated to restrict enterprise and activity and, ultimately, employment.

Nor was it difficult to reason that punitive legislation would be invited, with what consequences no mortal could foretell.

WELL, our law-makers have lost little time in getting into action. How bitter the hostility aroused against "Wall Street," and how eager Washington solons are to rush drastic legislation on the statute books can be gathered from these extracts selected from one day's Congressional Record:

The Senate adopted the Heflin resolution requesting from the Federal Reserve Board suggestion for legislation to "prevent illegitimate and harmful speculations."

Senator Glass: "There is not a thing in the world constructive in the system of pure gambling that menaces the entire commercial and financial fabric of the nation. It is an absurdity and there ought to be some statutory definition made of investment as contradistinguished from pure gambling and laws should be enacted to put these people out of business. It is a matching of the gambling wit against the gambling wit. They do not produce a thing on earth that contributes either to the happiness or to the prosperity of legitimate business."

Senator Heflin: "Wall Street is becoming the most notorious gambling center in the universe. It is the hot-bed and breeding place of the worst form of gambling that ever cursed the country. The Louisiana State Lottery slew its hundreds, but the New York state gambling exchanges slay their hundreds of thousands. The government owes it to itself and to its people to put an end to this monstrous evil."

In the House, Chairman McFadden, of the Banking and Currency Committee, announced he would introduce a resolution before March 4 for an inquiry into the operations of the Federal Reserve Board. He also said he had written asking Gov. Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, if he cared to answer questions contained in a resolution by Representative Black, of New York, concerning the alleged conferences between Gov. Montagu Norman, of the Bank of England, and members of the Reserve Board.

Representative Black announced that unless satisfactory response was received, he would demand immediate action by the House.

ONE danger is that our Federal Reserve banking system may be thrown into the political vortex, seriously unsettling financial and business confidence. Probably in the end, sensible counsels will prevail and no really harmful legislation passed. But should this be the fortunate outcome, no thanks will be due those who have persistently fanned the flames of abnormal speculation.

HARBISON HITS NEW TOP PRICE HERE

Harbison's strength was based on its recent earnings showing an increase of 10 per cent in 1928. Earnings on the new stock were equivalent to $2.94 a share on the present 3,440,000 outstanding shares of common stock which represents a four-for-one split-up of the old $100 par common. Net of $4,412,533 for 1928 compares with $4,012,268 the previous year. The 1927 net was equal to $2.66 on the present share basis. Improvements made during 1928 are only partially reflected in the year's report and it is expected that the current year's earnings will show a larger ratio when the full benefits of the improvements and replacements will be felt.

Union Steel Casting, which dropped more than two points yesterday, suffered a further fractional decline and established a new low record early in the session. The company recently passed the dividend as a result of a poor year due to curtailed buying of equipment by the railroads.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was under a little pressure and sagged slightly, but appeared to be meeting good support on the recession. The new D. L. Clark Company shares were steady around 19, comparing with yesterday's high of 20.

In the fuel division, price changes were mixed. Lone Star Gas was in demand and rallied back to 73 following its dip yesterday to 72. Plymouth Oil recorded a new low for the movement on selling induced by the unfavorable aspects of the crude oil situation. Overproduction again faces the industry, although leading interests in the Mid-Continent and Southwest producing areas have been in conference this week looking to the adoption of measures to relieve the pressure of new oil on the markets.

The Pennsylvania Industries, Inc., units offered today at public subscription sold in the unlisted department at 111. The offering price of the units was 110. The units consist of one share of preferred and one-half share of common, the preferred carrying a warrant to purchase one share of common at $30 on or before February 1, 1934.

CHICAGO BOARD

Downturns in Chicago wheat prices today were influenced a good deal not only by the fact that a let-up in the European cold wave was forecast, but also by unexpected setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations. Reports also were circulated that crops in European countries were protected by snow except in parts of France and Belgium which have suffered damage. According to some estimates, 5 to 10 per cent of the winter wheat acreage in France will have to be re-sown with spring wheat.

Good-sized shipments of wheat from Argentina, 6,738,000 bushels for the week as against 5,869,000 bushels a year ago, were mentioned as partly responsible for lower quotations today at Liverpool. On the other hand, the leading British trade authority announced that estimates on world import requirements of wheat had been raised 40,000,000 bushels to 880,000,000 bushels. This amount, however, was still 40,000,000 bushels below a recent German unofficial estimate.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Prospects of warmer weather for Europe led to an early setback today in wheat values here. Before the market swung downward, however, July wheat delivery established a new high-price record for the season. Opening at ¼c off to ¾c up Chicago wheat later underwent a general downturn. Corn also was easier, starting at ⅛ to ⅝c decline, and subsequently holding near to the initial figures. Oats were relatively steady. Provisions tended to advance.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Prices in the curb market rallied at midday today, many issues more than regaining their earlier losses of 1 to 15 points. The opening decline followed bearish overnight letters of many of the larger brokerage houses and uneasiness over the Federal Reserve Bank directors meeting. Call money was in supply after renewing at 6½ per cent.

The early rush to take profits carried most of the utilities off 1 to 7 points. Electric Bond & Share rallied 9 points after a sharp decline, and American Foreign Power warrants napped back 9 points after dropping 7 to 82. United Gas Improvement lost 5 points and American Gas & Electric 3 before rallying. Electric Bond & Share new stock ranged between 86½ and 89.

Automotives were heavy, Auburn and Checker Cab suffering losses. Boeing Aircraft dropped 5 points. The widest decline in the early dealings was a 15-point drop in Crocker Wheeler.

Mining shares rallied from early slumps, Kennecott (new) recovering most of its 2-point loss.

STOCK MARKET PRICES DRIFT LOWER

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The stock market drifted lower today on selling inspired by the bearish commission house advices and the growing uneasiness over the possibility of an early increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates. Early losses of 3 to nearly 12 points in the active issues were cut down, and in a few cases made up, by the mid-day rally, but the higher prices failed to hold and the market turned soft again in the early afternoon.

The rise in bankers' acceptance rates yesterday was intercepted in some quarters as foreshadowing a rise in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, directors of which meet after the close of the market. Some bankers doubt that such action will be taken at this time because of the belief that it would nullify the recent action of the Bank of England in raising its rate in order to check the flow of gold from London to New York. Call money renewed at 6½ per cent, but was available in the "outside market" at 6. Time money rates, however, continued firm around the highest levels in years.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Market Enjoys Good Rally

The market enjoyed a substantial rally this afternoon under the influence of pronounced strength in the utilities and strong buying in selected specialties. Some of the standard industrial leaders were inclined to hang back, but as the session progressed they assumed a more prominent position in the trading. Steel was rather disappointing in the face of the additional evidence of a prosperous first quarter, a fact which led many observers to believe that most of the unsettlement currently is of a technical character. American and Foreign Power, the big subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share, was the shining light in the utility group. Coppers were firm, but did not indulge in any wild gyrations. Reports from Washington that official opinion at the treasury seemed to be against undue interference with the securities markets by the Federal Reserve encouraged those favoring the constructive side. In Congress a suggestion was made on the floor that if the Federal Reserve is going to adopt policies in the present case similar to those brought into play in the 1920 deflation, and if the Federal Reserve act empowers such policies, the act should be revoked or modified. This, of course, was regarded as a little severe but indicative, nevertheless, of the way one side of the question is viewed.

Traders' Accounts Strengthened.

Unusually high margin requirements, which average around 85 per cent, minimum in most of the leading commission houses, are believed to have forestalled any extensive "distress selling" in the recent reaction caused by adverse credit developments. In the old days when 10 to 20 per cent margins were common, a warning such as the Federal Reserve Board issued the other day would have resulted in the closing out of thousands of weakened speculative accounts, and possibly some casualties among the smaller brokerage houses. In the break early this month, relatively few margin calls were sent out, and the large majority of these were speedily complied with.

Prisoner Thought Dead in Fire Visits Wife

BRIDGEPORT, O., Feb. 14.—Elmer S. Whiting, believed to have perished in a fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary brick plant at Junction City, O., last fall when 15 were listed as dead, visited his 14-year-old bride at Colerain, several days ago, according to local police.

Mrs. Whiting admitted, police say, that her husband had visited her and that she would join him when she became of age. She refused information as to his whereabouts.

Whiting was sentenced to the penitentiary from Marietta, O., for stealing an automobile in which he took his bride, then Katherine Rucker, of Colerain, on a honeymoon trip.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 10 points. Active months sold about 8 to 17 points net higher in the early trading on covering and trade and commission house buying, inspired by the census report showing domestic consumption of 668,389 bales for January, against 586,142 last year.

The advance to 20.23 for May and 19.66 for the new October contract met realizing by traders who had bought recently in anticipation of large consumption figures. There also appeared to be some southern selling and prices eased off after the first flurry of demand had been supplied.

At the end of the first half hour the market showed reactions of 6 to 12 points from the best. The more active positions were selling within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations.

ENDED 15 YEARS OF SUFFERING

McKees Rocks Man Feels Fine, Ten Herbs Again Demonstrates Amazing Power.

Ten Herbs, the famous new natural medicine, which has been a tremendous success throughout this section for the past year, again demonstrates its amazing power often to restore perfect health after many other medicines have proved an absolute failure. This time it is Mr. Daniel Kordan, 79 Island Extension, McKees Rocks, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), who reaps the rich rewards by using this renowned herbal medicine. Mr. Kordan is only one of thousands of persons of this locality who have found glorious health by taking Ten Herbs. This is proved by convincing statements of local men and women that have been printed in the Pittsburgh papers during the past year. If you have trouble with your stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, you need Ten Herbs.

"Ten Herbs has made a new man of me," said Mr. Kordan. "I had suffered for 15 years without being able to find satisfactory relief, although I tried every kind of medicine I heard of or saw advertised. I had trouble with my stomach and bowels, and kept getting worse until often I would have to remain in bed instead of going to work. There were only a few things I could eat, and even these would cause pain and gas. Sometimes the gas was so bad that it affected my heart and breathing. I was always constipated. Headaches came on me, and frequently I would get so dizzy I could not stand. Black specks floated before my eyes.

"One lucky day I read about Ten Herbs in the paper and started using this medicine. Even the first bottle gave me relief. I continued taking Ten Herbs until now I am well and enjoying life again. I can eat anything without having distress afterwards. I am working every day and find more pleasure in my work. I cannot say enough in favor of Ten Herbs."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth Avenue and Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, and sold at all May's Drug Stores.

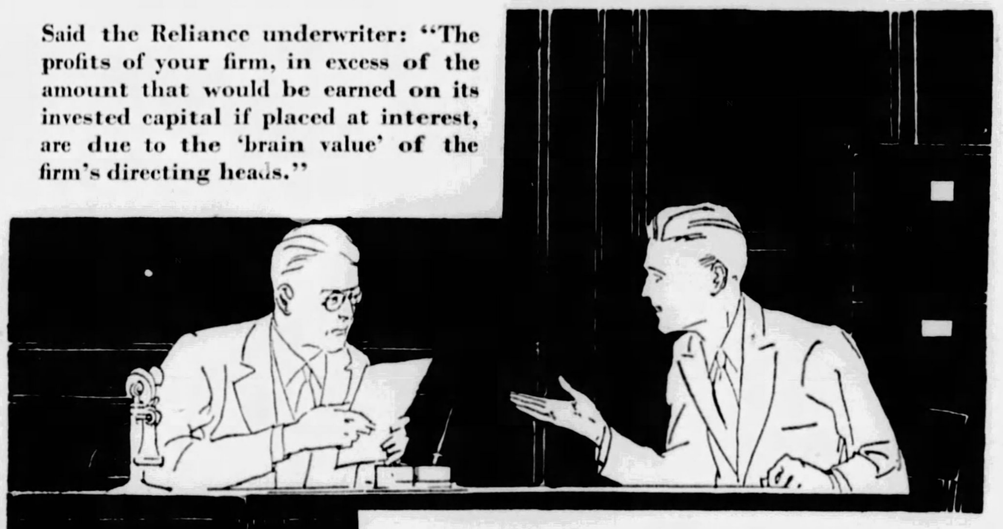
Said the Reliance underwriter: "The profits of your firm, in excess of the amount that would be earned on its invested capital if placed at interest, are due to the 'brain value' of the firm's directing heads."



ARE "THE BRAINS" OF YOUR BUSINESS INSURED....?

IT is management and supervision that make a business prosperous. Human initiative and enterprise are the vitalizing forces, yet we frequently find an executive who insures everything in his businesss but its most valuable asset...the brains ...the energy...the knowledge ...the experience of those who manage it.

By means of Reliance Business Insurance you can safeguard your firm's credit; guarantee the continuance of dividend payments and in other ways fortify the firm's stability when a key man or an executive in the organization is suddenly taken.

Death is a potential liability until adequate insurance is carried on the lives of its principal members. Why not let this strong insurance company help you solve this important problem?

Absence from business through accident or sickness often proves disastrous. Keen business men safeguard themselves with the Perfect Protection Policy. Ask for our illustrated booklet to-day.

WEIRTON STEEL NET EARNINGS $6,800,000

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Weirton Steel Company earned $6,800,000 after taxes, depreciation and all other charges in 1928, it has been learned from a reliable source. This would be equivalent to $28.99 a share on the 234,670 shares of $100 par capital stock.

The exact earnings of the Weirton Steel Company have always been the subject of much speculation in the steel trade. Due to the fact that most of the stock is closely held by a small group in the management, the company has never published its earnings.

This is probably the first time Weirton's net figures have been printed in any newspaper. Weirton is today the only one of the large steel companies which does not take the public into its confidence where its profits are concerned at least once a year.

SALES in 1928 were about $55,000,000. Before making provision for depreciation, depletion, interest and other charges an average profit of over $1,000,000 a month was shown.

Weirton is reputed to enjoy about the lowest costs of any maker of steel sheets, strips and tin plate. This is due to the fact that the rivers are used to bring coal to the Weirton plant where most of the production activity is centered. A battery of 86 Koppers by-product coke ovens extracts all of the commercial value from the coal.

THE concentration of all of these operations at one point gives an advantage not enjoyed by many other makers of these products. Even the United States Steel Corporation must go to the expense of hauling sheet bars from the plants of Carnegie Steel to those of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company. The Steel Corporation, however, enjoys other advantages through the ownership of more of its own transportation facilities.

Weirton's selling policy is also a factor in keeping down costs. In order to keep its entire plant, including blast furnaces and open hearth furnaces, working close to capacity, the company is less rigid in its stand on prices than many other sheet makers who have only the margin between the cost of their purchased steel and the selling price of the finished product.

In addition to the Weirton plant, smaller mills are located at Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O. The company also owns 5,000 acres in Fayette County, Pa.

The current financial condition is strong. On March 5, $1,700,000 of first mortgage purchase money bonds will be retired.

THE Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation showed an increase of 25.3 per cent in its net income after all charges in 1928. Net for the year was $29,155,585 or $6.96 a share on the common stock. This compares with $23,265,753 or $5.28 a share in 1927.

Gross earnings for 1928 of $107,195,658 represented an increase of 10.6 per cent.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Prices in the early bond market today moved downward in sympathy with the stocks, traders displaying nervousness over the New York Federal Reserve Bank directors' meeting today. Trading was on a small scale and most of the price changes were fractional. Time money was firm.

Anaconda Copper 7s in the early dealings failed to respond to reports the stock would be split two for one and sold fractionally under yesterday's close. Two other speculative leaders displayed a weak tone, Alleghany Corporation 5s selling near yesterday's closing figure and American International 5½s declining.

Rails also encountered selling. St. Paul Adjustment 5s slipping back to 78¼. Pronounced weakness was displayed by the utilities. International Telephone convertible 4½s lost ground.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

CITY TO RADIO OWN MERITS

Pittsburgh's products and its advantages as a residence, industrial and commercial city will be advertised to the world by Radio Station KDKA in an hour program broadcast for 14 consecutive nights through the co-operation of City Council and the Chamber of Commerce. The first program will be at 10 p. m. Saturday, March 2.

The first speaker will be Mayor Charles H. Kline.

President James F. Malone explained at a meeting of the Councilmanic Finance Committee yesterday, a plan outlined earlier in the day at a Chamber of Commerce session, of "putting Pittsburgh on the air" in a campaign to attract new industries to the city.

On Malone's motion, Council tentatively agreed to appropriate $4,000 to pay the city's expense of the advertising plan.

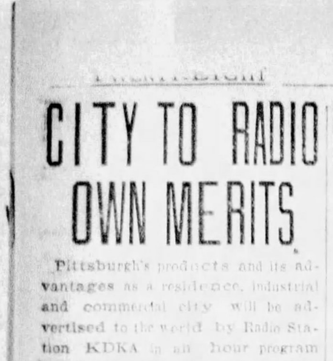
FIRE IMPERILS SUTTON HOTEL

The hotel of Frank Sutton, at 820 Wylie avenue, lodging place of Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion; of Bert Williams, stage star, and other Negro celebrities when they visited Pittsburgh, early today was the scene of a fire which drove several persons to the street and resulted in a trolley and traffic tieup in Wylie and Sixth avenues. The damage was slight.

The flames for a time, however, perilled the entire building, a four-story brick structure.

It was in Sutton's hotel that Jack Johnson finally agreed to fight James J. Jeffries, after having spurned offers for a match for months.

Three Negro families were forced into the street in scanty attire early today when fire started on the roof of the Bedford flats, 1312 Bedford avenue, while 17 others prepared to evacuate the building. The damage was estimated by Battalion Chief Henry Schwartz at $2,000.



AFTER OPERATIONS

"I was three times under an operation and I was very weak and nervous and could not eat. I suffered for ten years. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my husband bought me a bottle. I felt a little better and he bought me two more. I had the Compound in my home for two years and took it all the time. Now I feel strong and can do anything."—Mrs. A. Michalk, 1443 Mitchell Ave., Detroit, Michigan.

Local Bridge Bills Signed by President

President Coolidge yesterday signed bills to permit Allegheny County to construct the McKees Rocks bridge over the Ohio River, the West End-North Side bridge over the Ohio River and the South Tenth street bridge over the Monongahela River. The McKees Rocks bridge will cost $6,914,000; the West End-North Side bridge, $3,540,000, and the South Tenth street bridge, $1,925,000.

HER HUSBAND'S AWFUL COUGH ANNOYED EVERYONE NEAR HIM

His Cough Worried Family—Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS AND WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor, who said he was all right but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into the house. Movie or Church and soon he would be hawking and coughing terribly and at night he was all stuffed up," declared Mrs. D. R. M——.

"He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it. I finally told our doctor, who laughingly said: 'Men are all alike and you can't blame him much, so go get him a big bottle of Lin-O-Nine, which is a nice tasting Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine remedy, far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quicker.'

RESULTS WONDERFUL.

"He liked Lin-O-Nine so well he took a spoonful before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped his cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Children love to take it, too."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well stocked druggists have Lin-O-Nine, 50c or $1.00 size, or send dollar bill to nationally famous Kerr Chemical Company, Brentwood, Md., for large bottle, parcels post.

BUGS BAER Says

FEATHERS FOR THE EAGLE'S WINGS

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

WELL, the Senate gave us that delayed gift of 15 cruisers. Just when our Christmas stocking had a big hole in the toe.

We need that hatching of 15 ugly ducklings. We don't know what for. But we need 'em.

This has been an economical administration. When Cal wrote his presidential message of 15 thousand words he claims that he dipped his pen in the ink only once.

Mr. Coolidge winds up his administration in a blaze of affirmatives just when we were beginning to think that we would have to change that travel slogan to, "Join the Navy and see a veto."

Of course, Cal's slight hesitancy about those 15 cruisers was due to a desire to spare Hoover's president-electro feelings.

Cal didn't want it to look as if he didn't need 'em, but Herbie did.

We have had peace during the last two administrations. That is because Europe recognized the superior Coolidge bookkeeping.

Europe knew that it couldn't beat Cal on land on sea—or to the bank.

Those 15 trouble-shooters raise our good-will ambassadors to the dignity of railroad watchmen. Anytime, anybody wants a collision we will be able to furnish the grade-crossing.

Now, when we sing the "Army and Navy forever," we mean them both.

That ain't all. Preparations for the future are simmering sweetly in all departments. The catch-word is cruisers. If we sell the Leviathan it is only because it is too comfortable.

The Army went on a long, practice hike of marking time last week. The boys picked them up and laid them down in perfect tempo. They didn't gain any ground. But they didn't lose any.

Congressman Frisby Found on Fire Escape

WASHINGTON.—Scandal, which threatened to dash Congressman Frisby against the rocks of infamy, almost disrupted his fearless attempt to establish a non-stop walking record last night.

About 9:30 p. m. the police received a phone call from Miss Gertie Abercrombie, who declared that a Peeping Tom was scratching her screen. Police hurried to her apartment, on the top floor of the Behemouth Building, and there found Congressman Frisby leisurely sauntering up and down the fire escape.

Confronted by the woman, Frisby denied that he had ever met her socially. Asked to identify Frisby, Miss Abercrombie asked for permission to speak to him privately. Fifteen minutes later she announced that Frisby was not the man. The Congressman was released with a warning not to stop walking.

John Borkoski's Murder Death Blow to Cossacks

For many causes there must be martyrs. There have been numerous martyrs to the movement to have the state abolish Coal and Iron Cossacks. But the particular martyr whose life's extinction likely spells the doom of a czaristic system which has long been the shame of Pennsylvania is John Borkoski, whose brutal murder, blamed on the State of Pennsylvania's legalized thugs, has aroused the community as no other demonstration of lawlessness on their part ever has done.

John Borkoski did not die in vain. Into his grave also will go the corpse of a notorious organization, if the protests of the public be of any weight with our legislators. And the Legislature is aroused. The Governor, himself, is aroused. By this time he has in his hands an official report of the Borkoski murder—a murder for which the State of Pennsylvania, in the final analysis, is responsible.

It is high time something were done about Cossackism in this state. Let, not alone all the facts about the Borkoski affair be the guide in this matter, but the whole vile record of this unspeakable organization. Never has it been anything but a blot on the history of the state. Never has this worst of all conceivable forces for obliqueness of official authority been anything but a hissing and a by-word.

Terrorism, thuggery, invasion and ruthless disregard of constitutional rights of the people are the marks of this ignoble crew.

Our hand extends in sympathy to the widow and family of John Borkoski, martyr. If we could console them with the thought that in death he is a big figure we would do it. And he is a big figure. Big enough in all probability to bring about a long-needed reform in this state.

All Citizens Interested In Sunday Law Dispute

A communication relative to the desirability of a modified Sunday observance law makes the point that some concession is due to "humble citizens." He means the opposite of those whom we term "influential." We will quote a paragraph:

"Some concession to the views of their fellow citizens in the matter of regulatory laws must be made by those who hold the view of 'strict observance of Sunday.' To concede nothing provokes strife and does not advance the world in morals."

He holds that in a matter of manners and customs, outside the clearly vicious, the question is not "Shall the legislature do anything that is opposed by one set of people?" but "Shall not the legislature respect the views of a very large number of our people?"

The large number of people to whom he refers are the humble citizens whom no person ever thinks of calling "influential," but whose views he very properly thinks are worthy of consideration. He would adjust the law to permit healthy play and recreation on Sunday, adequately regulated, and would not permit a seven-day week for workers, restricting the working hours per week to a stipulated limit.

He has no fear that a "commercialized" Sunday will come and points to "a large class of people who gain their living through music (vocal and instrumental) in churches."

Define Reckless Driving, In Law, Motorist Urges

A motorist, commenting on the proposed changes in the motor code of Pennsylvania, now before the Legislature, believes the law should define what constitutes reckless driving.

Amendment of the law contemplated would abolish the speed limit of 35 miles an hour. Motorists pay no heed to it, anyway, when there is a clear road ahead of them in the open country and they are not under the eye of some highway patrolman.

So our motorist has no objection to the abolition of the speed limit, but he sees trouble ahead. Under it a man CAN be arrested for going at high speed. Without the limit the only charge that could be placed against him for the offense of speeding would be reckless driving.

So he feels that the law should be definite on that point.

The suggestion is passed along to our law-makers.

Women Drivers Surpass Men in Motor Accidents

After a survey of automobile records, Dr. Viteles, of the University of Pennsylvania, reports that women drivers become involved in accidents three times as readily as men. At first glance, that statement appears a strong indictment against the ability of women to operate automobiles, but deeper study of the report proves otherwise.

Women become involved in accidents, it is explained, because they are overcautious. They are struck far more frequently than they strike other cars. They bear the brunt of masculine recklessness. Another point for feminine motorists is that they act so quickly at the critical moment in accidents that far less damage is done than when cars driven by men collide. In other words, women are more cautious in driving, quicker-witted and capable of protecting themselves and their passengers. It would seem that the case against the woman driver must be thrown out of court.

Tales That Are Told

His Only Request

HUBERT had spent the winter in Monto Carlo. When he returned home he had 50 cents between him and starvation. In his desperation Hubert secured a job at a timber yard.

All through the morning the two sawed at the wood, but Hubert was gradually weakening. The old hand made no complaint, but went on sawing on his side.

When the afternoon was almost through, however, he could bear it no longer.

"Look here, son," he said, "I don't mind you hanging on to this 'ere saw, but if it's just the same to you, I wish you'd keep your feet on the ground."

The Last Laugh

GREEN was suffering from liver trouble, and the doctor had told him that if he laughed for 10 minutes before each meal his condition would improve. Green was having his laugh in a restaurant one evening when a man came over from the opposite table.

"If you go on laughing at me, sir," he said, "I'll punch you on the nose."

Green became serious and did his best to explain.

"I wasn't laughing at you," he assured the other diner. "I was laughing for my liver."

At once the other man burst into loud roars of mirth.

"Is that the way to get it?" he said. "I ought to have started before. It's half an hour since I ordered mine."

Trouble for Nothing

A DISTINGUISHED visitor was to spend a night in a certain small town, and the proprietor of the tiny local hotel was notified to be ready.

The hotelkeeper was flattered, and at once set to work to have a bathroom added. His small son of 10 years, however, thought this a piece of reckless extravagance.

"Just think!" he said. "Fancy building a bathroom for one night. And then, after all, it might not be his bath night."

THERE was two chauffeurs in New York that was talking while they waited outside of the opera house. They were talking about their bosses, of course.

"I got a good boss now," says Jones. "He's rich, and a smart guy, too. He's down in Wall street most of the time. He made his money out of silver, they tell me."

"You can bet he's smart," says Smith. "Now my boss, on the other hand, made his money out of aluminum, and they caught him. He's just come back from doing five years at Atlanta."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THIS is the year 1929 A. D. For millions of years human beings have inhabited this earth. For millions of years men have had bodies such as we have today and have given birth to other bodies.

If there is one thing that we should know by this time it is the complete truth about bodies and all physical functions.

We should learn these truths as inevitably and as naturally as we learn to eat, drink and walk. We should teach them to our children as soon as they show the slightest interest in such matters. We should be able to discuss them without embarrassment. Such knowledge and discussion should be part of the normal equipment of every life.

But, as a matter of fact, we are more ignorant about our bodies than about any other subject on earth—and in sex matters this ignorance causes appalling tragedy.

Children entering puberty do not know what is happening to them and their parents are either uninformed or "too modest" to tell them. As a consequence, the whole life is often marred by improper treatment at this time.

Adolescents, caught in the hot flood tide of growth, are overwhelmed with a feeling of "wickedness" at what should be regarded as a perfectly natural and beautiful development.

Young people contract marriage in almost complete ignorance of its proper physical technique, and many a union lands in the divorce court for lack of proper instruction on this subject.

IT IS FUTILE TO LEAVE THE MATTERS TO "INSTINCT" OR "INTUITION." IT IS AS IMPOSSIBLE TO BECOME A GOOD HUSBAND BY "INSTINCT" AS TO BECOME A GOOD DOCTOR OR CARPENTER OR ENGINEER.

The proper handling of the body requires a definite technique like any delicate, complicated machine. Parents are truly "engineers" enlisted in the holiest service on earth. Yet we put our fiercest taboos on instruction in or discussion of this sacred craft.

At present, how and where does an adolescent boy learn the technique of fatherhood? Does he learn it in high schools? He does not. HE LEARNS IT BY SOWING WILD OATS. And the girl—where does she learn how to be a mother? Answer that for yourself.

Why don't we stop this wicked foolishness—why don't we give human beings this most necessary information?

TRY AND DO IT!

Sherwood Eddy has just tried to do it. He has written a clean, dignified, honest book called "SEX AND YOUTH." And the chances are that by the time this is printed, Sherwood Eddy will be in jail and the book barred from the mails.

WHY?

BECAUSE WE'VE GOTTEN SO DIRTY-NICE IN AMERICA THAT ANYONE WHO TRIES TO PRESENT THE NAKED TRUTH IS PROMPTLY ARRESTED FOR INDECENT EXPOSURE.

In an age when sex is constantly being stimulated by fashions, fiction, music and movies—when sex temptation is constantly before our young people—we refuse to teach the most fundamental facts in life. This is an outrage.

NO COUNTRY IS CIVILIZED THAT ALLOWS ITS CHILDREN TO GROW UP IN IGNORANCE OF THEIR ORIGIN OR PERMITS YOUNG PEOPLE TO MARRY WITHOUT FULL KNOWLEDGE OF MARITAL TECHNIQUE.

Read Sherwood Eddy's book if you can get it. It is still on all book stands and progressive citizens are trying to keep it there. Give it to your adolescent boys and girls.

Buy Karl de Schweinitz's book "GROWING UP" for your little children. It tells the story of sex and birth most beautifully and simply.

Buy a good physiology. Study the maps of the human body. Put these books in an accessible place in your home. Encourage your children to consult and discuss them. STOP MAKING A DIRTY SECRET OF GOD'S MOST SACRED GIFT AND SERVICE.

And if Sherwood Eddy is in jail by the time this is printed send him sweet peas and fruit cake—lots of fruit cake. He deserves them. He has done a good job.

PLANET MOVIES

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE other night I attended a meeting of the Amateur Astronomers' Association in New York. There were more than a thousand persons in attendance. They were deeply interested in listening to a talk about the planet Jupiter and in watching a wonderful motion picture of that planet based on photographs taken with the great Lick telescope in California. The peculiarity of this picture is that it shows the giant planet rapidly revolving on its axis, the effect being produced on the same principle as that whereby a plant is made to grow, or a flower to develop before the eyes of an audience, by combining, in a movie projecting machine, a rapidly succeeding series of photographs of the growing plant taken at successive stages of its development, which may, in nature, occur hours or days apart.

Jupiter requires nearly 10 hours to make one turn on its axis. As it rotates it, of course, presents all of its sides in succession toward the observer on the earth. If, then, a series of photographs of the planet, covering an entire rotation, are taken and arranged on a film in the same order, they can be made to blend into a continuous picture of the planet, apparently rotating like a suspended globe. For this purpose it is only necessary to shorten the time elapsed between any two successive photograhs appearing on the screen to a fraction of a second so small that the eye perceives no interruption. This is what occurs in any movie picture, but in the case of an object whose movement is too slow to be directly sensible to vision, it is necessary to greatly hasten the real movement by presenting pictures of its successive stages very rapidly before the eye.

In this way the actual 10-hour rotation of Jupiter is made to appear to occur on the screen within a fraction of a minute. And, as many successive rotations can thus be represented, the result is a most realistic exhibition of the king of planets whirling like a spinning school globe before the spectator.

Nor is there any essential deception about this. The motion seen is the real motion of rotation of the planet photographed and hastened in the way just described. All of the features of the great planet presented to the eye are photographs of its real features, and their relative positions are true to nature.

The same method has been applied in photographing an eclipse of the sun, except that the series of pictures was not carried far enough to show the most sensational feature of an eclipse, which is the swift development of the mysterious corona.

Bible Passages

Daniel in the Lions' Den

(Daniel 6; 1-18)

IT pleased Darius to set over the kingdom an hundred and twenty prices, which should be over the whole kingdom;

And over these three presidents, of whom Daniel was first: that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.

Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.

Then the presidents and princes sought to find occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom; but they could find none occasion nor fault; forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him.

Then said these men, We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

Then these presidents and princes assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, King Darius, live for ever.

All the presidents of the kingdom, the governors, and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.

Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

Then the king, when he heard these words, was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.

Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, That no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his lords, that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting: neither were instruments of musick brought before him: and his sleep went from him.

Attila

By Herbert Kaufman

THE "Yellow Peril" is here at last. But not guised as fiction and jingoism prophesied.

It didn't arrive to the tramp of regiments, the clash of cannon, or the whir of propellers—the invader sneaked through, snugly stowed in a nursery shipment.

If we don't arm wits and drive the Japanese beetle out of the country, ultimate consequences threaten to be dreader and more enduring than the average havoc wrought by military conquest.

This is the most ominous and omnivorous foe that has yet set foot upon American soil.

But this appalling and prolific scourge, scarcely bigger than a buckshot, not only multiplies between eye-winks but utterly denudes all deciduous life within flight reach.

It ravages foliage, fruit, flowers and garden truck, catholically exterminates lawns and berry patches, dotes on grapevines, and strips the last twig of oaks and sycamores.

The search for a balancing parasite has winnowed Asia, but no acclimatable check seems procurable—except the geranium, which peculiarly secretes a deadly repellent: but how will we get enough geraniums to save the situation—or room to plant 'em?

State and federal quarantines have failed to confine the infernal plague to New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania, where it first appeared.

The Department of Agriculture issues warning that Maryland and Delaware are already in process of investment.

The beetle has reached the lower Hudson counties and, unless a supreme and cost-regardless resistance is offered, our entire continent will soon find itself at grips with a bug Hun.

If Congress characteristically dawdles with the emergency, agriculture will take the surplus-crop quandary off its hands and substitute, instead, the sterner problem of re-stocking barren larders.

We're at war—and, as usual, unprepared!

O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The streets of Paris are a poem of tone. The sad, the gay, the ancient and the modern supply melodies to the symphonic whole. At dawn there was a thin piping voice that might have come from the quiet green hills of Provence instead of the grey cobblestoned plaza of Place Vendome.

And through a balcony window one saw a goatherd with a dozen black and white goats rounding into rue des Petit Champs. Even along the Seine, whose banks are enveloped in almost perpetual hush, one often hears a fisherman break into song in exultation over an infrequent catch. He seems a little nutty and maybe is.

On the river barges, bargemen and their families add to the hum with their harsh cries, heightened by the babel of children and barking of dogs. In the student quarters one hears snatches of bright song, together with the agonizing squeak of disreputable fiddles of sidewalk beggars.

In the open markets to which every thrifty housewife, rich or poor, makes her way daily is another strident roar. Here voices raucous from long screaming above their neighbors proclaim the superiority of their wares. Every street echoes the jangle of belled horses and the horn-blowing of the mongers.

To those whose ears are musically inclined there is nothing quite like that delightful section of the Ile de la Cite, where Notre Dame lifts its majestic Gothic towers, on a quiet Sabbath morning. The huge bells, intoning a summons, may be heard in all the outskirts of Paris.

And as their notes die away on the still air, they will be taken up by hundreds of tiny throats, across the way, for in the shadows of the church is the famed bird market of Notre Dame. For a half dozen blocks the sidewalks are filled with cages of every variety of bird.

It seems fitting it should be on Sundays this bird market is held so the shrill songs from many-colored warblers should add to the sabbatical paean of praise. And at night when the Grands boulevards cascade their many cross currents of life, the chatter and laughter attain a strange and deafening crescendo. Paree! Paree!

For the ladies: Hats are being worn off the forehead. The face-concealing bonnet so long a boon to irregular profiles is passe. And the prevailing combination for the spring ensemble is pink and black.

Paris is standardizing a walking stick that seemed nothing more than a gee-gaw of the moment. The handle is of opaque glass which has in it a little electric bulb lighting to pressure. It is used to confound taxi brigands who have their meters unlighted after dark and demand ridiculous fares. Many stay-outs have been able to save the price of a cane in a few weeks.

* * *

The Paris department store is like one of those mystic mirrored affairs at Coney Island. They are easy to enter, but try to get out! The aisles wind and twist shoot forward and backfire and one may become as hopelessly lost as in a jungle. The waste of time for an ordinary purchase would give an efficiency expert the camp meeting jerks. Around the doors are grouped the floorwalkers, with beards rivaling the left Smith brother, wearing frocks-coats, celluloid collars and white hook-on puff ties. One of them leads you to the desired departments, turns you over to a clerk, who, after the sale, escorts you—usually via Madrid—to the cashier's cage. Here your purchase is gravely recorded in a ponderous ledger in ink. Then you are put in charge of another guide who pilots you and your purchase to the wrapping desk, where it is done up in a package with a cute little finger loop. After this it is usually time to hurry home, put out the cat, sprinkle the geraniums and have a gentleman with long whiskers turn down your bed.

* * *

In one department store my pilot dog trotting after me kept shouting "Regardez!" Finally, exasperated, I turned, tempted to shout back: "My regards to you, too! And also to your Aunt Ida!" Then I saw I had somehow stepped into a gadget that looked like the fly net for a horse, and was dragging it along.

The Rhyming Optimist

Request

THAT is not love which any bondage knows,
For love must be immune from every taint
Which worldly pride and folly can impose.
Love must go free from every false restraint.
This, then, I ask: If one day you should find
That you must weigh the words upon your lips,
Must gauge your glances lest they be unkind
And guard your thoughts so that no question slips
Down ways where all was tenderness and trust,
I beg you, say goodby and yet no man can say
When lies are wordless they are most unjust,
And truth the greatest kindness you can show,
That is not love which any bondage knows,

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IF THERE are frequent quarrels in your home, if you are arrogant in your manner, how can you expect that your children will display a good disposition when they are out of the home?

At home they may not show traits like yours because they dare not.

But with your daily example in mind they will exemplify it when they are out and beyond your control.

You feel that you have a certain degree of standing which you enjoy with the social circle which you count your own, outside your home.

Your children are not actors and too young to be as deceitful as you are.

When they get to be your age they may be able to mask their feelings.

Parents who think that they can hide so much of their real natures from outsiders might be surprised and chagrined if they knew the facts presented by their children.
